

INSPIRED TALKS

BY

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA

(Recorded by a disciple during the seven weeks at Thousand Island Park)

Acc. No. 13065

SRI RAMAKRISHNA MATH

MYLAPORE, MADRAS (INDIA)

1969

Published by

© The President,
SRI RAMAKRISHNA MATH,
Mylapore, Madras.

All Rights Reserved

TENTH EDITION

VIII—Jan., 1969

Printed at Super Power Press, Madras-1

DEDICATED TO HIS HOLINESS

SWAMI BRAHMANANDAJI

(A Beloved Disciple of Sri Ramakrishna and the first President of the Ramakrishna Order)

IN LOVING MEMORY
OF
SWAMI VIVEKANANDA

DEDICATED TO
HIS HOLINESS
SWAMI BRAHMANANDJI
(A Beloved Disciple of Sri Ramakrishna and the first President of the Ramakrishna Order)
IN LOVING MEMORY
OF
SWAMI VIVEKANANDA

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

ALL who had the blessing of personal contact with Swami Vivekananda are of one accord that those who knew him on the lecture platform only, had known but a small measure of his true power and greatness. It was in familiar conversation with chosen friends and disciples that came his most brilliant flashes of illumination, his loftiest flights of eloquence, his utterances of profoundest wisdom. Unfortunately, however, his printed works so far have shown us only Vivekananda the lecturer ; Vivekananda the friend, the teacher, the loving master, was known only to the happy few who had the rare privilege of sitting at his feet. Glimpses of this side of the great spiritual genius are revealed to us, it is true, in his published letters ; but the present volume is the first to give us words spoken by him in the intimacy of an inner circle.

They were taken down by Miss S. E. Waldo of New York, who from the early days of the Swami's American mission served him with unremitting devotion. It was to her that he dictated his translation and explanation of Patanjali's Aphorisms, published in his 'Raja Yoga', and often has she told me how she would sit for long periods of time watching always to see that the ink on her pen was kept wet, ready to write down the first word that would come as the Swami would emerge from the depths of self-contemplation into which he had plunged, to discover the true meaning of the terse Sanskrit phrases. It was she also who prepared all his American publications for the press. And so great was Swami Vivekananda's confidence in her ability, that he would pass the type-written transcriptions of his lectures over to her with the instruction to do with them what she thought best ; for his own indifference to the fruits of his work was so extreme, that he could not be induced to give even a cursory glance at his recorded words.

Through this constant faithful service with heart and brain, the disciple's mind became so at one with the master's that, even without the aid of shorthand, she was able to transcribe his teaching with wonderful fullness and accuracy. As she herself said, it was as if the thought of Swami Vivekananda flowed through her and wrote itself upon the page. Once when she was reading a portion of these same notes to some tardy arrivals in the Thousand Island Park home, the Swami paced up and down the floor, apparently unconscious of what was going on, until the travellers had left the room. Then he turned to her and said, "How could you have caught my thoughts and words so perfectly? It was as if I heard myself speaking." What need of other commendation?

The Ramakrishna Math of Madras is highly gratified in having been entrusted with the task of presenting these truly Inspired Talks to the public, and it wishes to express its heartfelt gratitude to each one of those who have aided in making this rich treasure, so long hidden, the property of all mankind.

Madras,
November, 1908. }

DEVAMATA

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

THIS invaluable book is published for the second time. In this edition I have added a few notes where Swamiji's utterances may appear to be abrupt and unconnected. Some typographical mistakes also have been attended to and no pains have been spared to make it intelligible to all readers and free from all errors, as far as possible.

Swamiji is known all over the world as the greatest and most powerful exponent of the Vedanta in modern times. Many have felt the irresistible charm of his eloquence in India and abroad. In the present case Swamiji did not stand before a vast and critical audience to conquer them by his irrefutable arguments based upon sound logic, his bewitching personality and his rare gifts of explaining the most abstruse subjects in a most perspicuous manner accompanied by his 'cyclonic' eloquence, but he was sitting before a few of his already conquered chosen disciples who had begun to see in him their only guide to take them beyond the ocean of ignorance and misery. There he sat in the glory of his own all-illuminating realisation, diffusing all about him, the balmy rays of his inner light by means of his sweet and musical voice, softly raising and opening the lotus buds of the hearts of his ardent devotees. Peace reigned all around him. Blessed indeed were those few fortunate souls who had the rare privilege of sitting at the feet of such a great sage and Guru.

The cyclonic monk was not there carrying everything before him. There sat the peaceful Rishi mildly disseminating the message of peace and bliss to a few ardent souls fully ripe to receive them. How illuminating and solacing were those sweet words coming out of his holy mouth like the smiling and breezy dawn, which comes out of the lap of bright and ruddy east and drives away the darkness before her. If those words had the power to console a few souls, they must have the power to bring comfort to all souls ; and blessed be the mother-heart of that loving disciple who preserved those saving words and did not allow them to be lost in the abysmal womb of Eternity. To mother Haridasi (Miss S. Ellen Waldo) the whole world should be grateful for these 'inspired' talks of Swamiji, which have brought into existence the present volume. There cannot be a better friend and a better guide to all humanity than this. Whoever will taste the nectar in it, is sure to know that death has no power over him. May every soul seeking for illumination, rest and peace, have recourse to it to end his or her miseries once for all.

Madras,
9th December, 1910. }

RAMAKRISHNANANDA

CONTENTS

	Page
House at Thousand Island Park
Introductory Narrative	1
The Master	17
Inspired Talks	37
The Song of the Sannyasin	198
Index	203

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA

VIVEKANANDA COTTAGE

House where Swami Vivekananda lived at Thousand Island Park. (The upper open window in the left-hand wing belonged to the Swami's room. The upper piazza was where the evening talks were given and the Swami's seat was at the end near his room. It is now used as a retreat by The Ramakrishna-Vivekananda Centre, New York.)

I

INTRODUCTORY NARRATIVE

IN the summer of 1893 there landed in Vancouver a young Hindu Sannyasin.¹ He was on his way to attend the Parliament of Religions at Chicago, but not as an accredited delegate from any recognized religious organization. Unknown and inexperienced, he had been chosen for his mission by a few earnest young men of Madras, who, firm in their belief that he, better than any one, could worthily represent the ancient religion of India, had gone from door to door, soliciting money for his journey. The amount thus collected, together with contributions from one or two princes, enabled the youthful monk, the then obscure Swami Vivekananda, to set out on his long journey.

It required tremendous courage to venture forth on such a mission. To leave the sacred soil of India for a foreign country means far more to a Hindu than we of the West can realize. Especially is this the case with a Sannyasin, whose whole training is away from the practical, material side of life. Unused to handling money, to any mode of travel save on his own feet, the Swami was robbed and imposed upon at every stage of his journey, until when he finally reached Chicago, he was nearly penniless. He had brought with him no letters of introduction and knew no one in the great city.¹ Thus, alone among strangers, thousands of miles from his own country, it was a situation to daunt even a strong man ; but the Swami left the matter in the hands of the Lord, firm in his faith that Divine protection would never fail him.

1 Literally 'one who has renounced'—the Hindu name for a man who gives up everything and devotes himself to the religious life either as a hermit or as a wandering religious teacher.

For nearly a fortnight he was able to meet the exorbitant demands of his hotel-keeper and others. Then the small sum still in his possession was reduced to such meagre proportions that he realized that, if he did not wish to die of starvation in the street, he must at once seek a place where the cost of living would be less. It was very hard

1 Later a Brahmin of Madras wrote to a gentleman in Chicago about the Swami and this gentleman took the young Hindu into his own family. Thus was begun a friendship which lasted as long as Swami Vivekananda lived. All the members of the family learned to love the Swami dearly, to appreciate his brilliant gifts and to admire the purity and simplicity of his character, to which they often bore willing and loving testimony.

INTRODUCTORY NARRATIVE

3

for him to abandon the task which he had so bravely undertaken. For a moment a wave of discouragement and doubt swept over him and he began to wonder why he had been so foolish as to listen to those few hot-headed schoolboys of Madras. Yet, since no other course was left to him, with a sad heart he set out for Boston, determined to cable for money and, if need be, return to India.

But the Lord, in whom he so firmly trusted, willed otherwise. On the train he met an old lady and so far awakened her friendly interest that she invited him to become a guest in her house. Here he made the acquaintance of a professor from Harvard University, who after being closeted with the Swami for four hours one day, was so deeply impressed with his rare ability that he asked him why he did not represent Hinduism at the Chicago Parliament of Religions. The Swami explained his difficulties,—that he had neither money nor letter of introduction to any one connected with the Parliament. “Mr. Bonney is my friend; I will give you a letter to him,” the Professor quickly replied; and at once he wrote it, declaring in the course of it that he had found this unknown Hindu monk ‘more learned than all our learned men put together'. With this letter and a ticket presented by the Professor, the Swami returned to Chicago and was readily accepted as a delegate.

At last the day of the opening of the Parliament arrived and Swami Vivekananda took his place in the line of Oriental delegates who filed out on the platform at the opening Session. His purpose was accomplished ; but as he caught sight of that vast audience, a sudden nervousness seized him. All the others had prepared speeches. He had none. What should he say to that great gathering of six or seven thousand men and women ? Throughout the morning he kept putting off his turn to be introduced, whispering each time to the President, "Let some one else speak first." So again in the afternoon, until about five when Dr. Barrows, rising, named him as the next speaker.

The shock steadied the nerves and stimulated the courage of Vivekananda, and he at once rose to the occasion. It was the first time in his life that he had ever stood upon his feet to speak, or had addressed a large audience, but the effect was electric. When he looked over the sea of expectant faces, he was filled with power and eloquence, and beginning in his musical voice, he addressed his hearers as 'Sisters and Brothers of America'. His success was immediate and during all the rest of the Congress his popularity never waned. He was always eagerly listened to, and people would remain to the end of a long Session on a hot day in order to hear him.

INTRODUCTORY NARRATIVE

5

This was the beginning of his work in the United States. After the Parliament was over, in order to provide for his necessities, the Swami accepted an offer from a Lecture Bureau to make a tour through the West. Although he attracted large audiences, he soon gave up the uncongenial work. He was here as a religious teacher, not as a popular lecturer on secular subjects; so he quickly abandoned a most profitable career, and early in 1894 came to New York to start on his real mission. He first visited friends whom he had made in Chicago. They were chiefly among the wealthier class and he spoke now and then in their parlours; but this too failed to satisfy him. He felt that the interest he awakened was not what he wanted; it was too superficial, too much mere amusement-seeking. Therefore he decided to have a place of his own, where all earnest truth-seekers, whether rich or poor, would be free to come.

A lecture before the Brooklyn Ethical Association led naturally to this independent teaching.

Dr. Lewis G. Janes, the President of the Association, had heard the young Hindu monk and, much attracted by his ability as well as by his message to us of the Western Hemisphere, had invited him to speak before the Association. It was on the last day of 1894. A large audience filled the Pouch Mansion, where the Ethical Association then held its meetings. The lecture was on 'Hinduism', and as the Swami, in his long robe and turban, expounded the ancient religion of his native land, the interest grew so deep that at the close of the evening there was an insistent demand for regular classes in Brooklyn. The Swami graciously acceded and a series of class meetings was held and several public lectures were given in the Pouch Mansion and elsewhere.

A few of those who had heard him in Brooklyn, now began to go to the place where he lived in New York. It was just an ordinary room on the second-floor of a lodging house, and as the classes rapidly increased beyond the capacity of the chairs and one lounge, students sat on the dresser, on the corner marble wash-basin, and still others on the floor, like the Swami himself, who, thus seated cross-legged after the manner of his own country, taught his eager students the great truths of Vedanta.

INTRODUCTORY NARRATIVE

7

At last he felt that he was fairly started on his mission, which was to deliver to the Western world the message of his Master, Sri Ramakrishna, which proclaimed the truth and fundamental unity of all religions. The classes grew so rapidly that they soon overflowed the small upstairs room, and the large double parlors below were engaged. In them the Swami taught until the end of the season. The teaching was entirely free, the necessary expenses being met by voluntary contributions. These proving insufficient to pay the rent and provide for the maintenance of the Swami, the classes came near ending for want of pecuniary support. At once the Swami announced a course of public lectures on secular subjects for which he could receive remuneration, and so earned the money to support the religious classes. He explained that the Hindus regarded it as the duty of a religious teacher not only to freely give his teaching, but also if he possibly could, to bear the expenses of his work. In former times in India, it was even customary for the teacher to provide a home and food for his students.

By this time some of the students had become so deeply interested in the Swami's teachings that they were desirous to have them continued through the summer. He, however, was tired after a hard season's work and at first demurred against prolonging his labours through the hot weather. Then, too, many of the students would be out of town at this time of year. The problem solved itself. One of our number owned a small cottage at Thousand Island Park, the largest island in the St. Lawrence River ; and he offered the use of it to the Swami and as many of us as it would accommodate. This plan appealed to the Swami and he agreed to join us there after a brief visit to the Maine Camp of one of his friends.

Miss D., the student to whom the cottage belonged, feeling that a special sanctuary should be prepared for the occasion, built as a true love offering to her Teacher, a new wing that was nearly as large as the original cottage. The place was ideally situated on high ground, overlooking a wide sweep of the beautiful river with many of its far famed Thousand Islands. Clayton could be dimly discerned in the distance, while the nearer and wider Canadian shores bounded the view to the north. The cottage stood on the side of a hill, which on the north and west sloped abruptly down towards the shores of the river and of a little inlet that like a small lake lay behind the house. The house itself was literally 'built upon a rock', and huge boulders lay all around it.

INTRODUCTORY NARRATIVE

9

The new wing stood on the steep slope of the rocks like a great lantern tower with windows on three sides, three stories deep at the back, and only two in the front. The lower room was occupied by one of the students. The one over it opened out of the main part of the house by several doors, and being large and convenient, became our class-room, where for hours each day the Swami gave us familiar instruction. Over this room was the one devoted exclusively to the use of the Swami. In order that it might be perfectly secluded, Miss D. had supplied it with a separate outside staircase, although there was also a door opening upon the second storey of the piazza.

This upstairs piazza played an important part in our lives, as all the Swami's evening talks were given here. It was wide and roomy, roofed in, and extended along the south and west side of the cottage. Miss D. had the west side of it carefully screened off by a partition, so that none of the strangers who frequently visited the piazza to see the magnificent view it commanded, could intrude upon our privacy. There, close by his own door, sat our beloved Teacher every evening during our stay and communed with us who sat silent in the darkness, eagerly drinking in his inspired words.

The place was a veritable sanctuary. At our feet, like a sea of green, waved the leaves of the tree tops ; for the entire place was surrounded by thick woods. Not one house of the large village could be seen, it was as if we were in the heart of some dense forest, miles away from the haunts of men. Beyond the trees spread the wide expanse of the St. Lawrence, dotted here and there with islands, some of which gleamed bright with the lights of hotels and boarding-houses. All these were so far away that they seemed more like a pictured scene than a reality. Not a human sound penetrated our seclusion ; we heard but the murmur of the insects, the sweet songs of the birds, or the gentle sighing of the wind through the leaves. Part of the time the scene was illumined by the soft rays of the moon and her face was mirrored in the shining waters beneath. In this scene of enchantment, ' the world forgetting, by the world forgot ', we spent seven blessed weeks with our beloved Teacher, listening to his words of inspiration. Immediately after our evening meal each day of our stay, we all repaired to the upper piazza and awaited the coming of our Master. Nor had we long to wait ; for hardly had we assembled ere the door of his room would open and he would quietly step out and take his accustomed seat. He always spent two hours with us and more often much longer. One glorious night, when the moon was about the full, he talked to us until she set below the western horizon, apparently as unconscious as we were of the lapse of time.

INTRODUCTORY NARRATIVE 11

Of these talks it was not possible to take notes. They are preserved only in the hearts of the hearers. None of us can ever forget the uplift, the intense spiritual life of those hallowed hours. The Swami poured out all his heart at those times; his own struggles were enacted again before us, the very spirit of his Master seemed to speak through his lips, to satisfy all doubts, to answer all questioning, to soothe every fear. Many times the Swami seemed hardly conscious of our presence, and then we almost held our breath for fear of disturbing him and checking the flow of his thoughts. He would rise from his seat and pace up and down the narrow limits of the piazza, pouring forth a perfect torrent of eloquence. Never was he more gentle, more lovable than during these hours. It may have been much like the way his own great Master taught his disciples, just allowing them to listen to the outpourings of his own spirit in communion with himself.

It was a perpetual inspiration to live with a man like Swami Vivekananda. From morning till night it was ever the same—we lived in a constant atmosphere of intense spirituality. Often playful and fun-loving, full of merry jest and quick repartee, he was never for a moment far from the dominating note of his life. Everything could furnish a text or an illustration, and in a moment we would find ourselves swept from amusing tales of Hindu mythology to the deepest philosophy. The Swami had an inexhaustible fund of mythological lore, and surely no race is more abundantly supplied with myths than those ancient Aryans. He loved to tell them to us and we delighted to listen, for he never failed to point out the reality hidden under myth and story and to draw from it valuable spiritual lessons. Never had fortunate students greater cause to congratulate themselves on having so gifted a Teacher !

By a singular coincidence just twelve students followed the Swami to Thousand Islands Park, and he told us that he accepted us as real disciples and that was why he so constantly and freely taught us, giving us his best. All the twelve were not together at once, ten being the largest number present at any one time. Two of our number subsequently became Sannyasins, both being initiated at Thousand Island Park. On the occasion of the consecration of the second Sannyasin, Swami initiated five of us Brahmacharins,¹ and later, in New York City, the rest of our number took initiation, together with several other of the Swami's disciples there.

INTRODUCTORY NARRATIVE 13

It was decided, when we went to Thousand Island Park, that we should live as a community, each doing his or her share of the house-work in order that no alien presence should mar the serenity of our household. The Swami himself was an accomplished cook and often prepared for us delicious dishes. He had learned how to cook when, after his Master's death, he had served his brethren, a band of young men, his fellow-disciples, whom he held together and taught, continuing the training begun by his master, in order that they might be fitted to spread abroad over the world the truths imparted by Sri Ramakrishna.

Every morning, just as soon as our various tasks were over (and often before), the Swami called us together in the large Parlour that served us as Class-room and began to teach us. Each day he took up some special subject, or expounded from some sacred book, as the Bhagavad Gita, the Upanishads, or Vedanta Sutras of Vyasa. The Sutras are in the form of aphorisms, being the briefest possible statements of the great truths imbedded in the Vedas. They have neither nominative nor verb, and so intent were the writers of them on eliminating every unnecessary word, that a Hindu proverb says that 'a writer of Sutras would rather give one of his sons than add a syllable to his Sutra'.

1 Religious students devoted to a particular teacher.

Because of their almost enigmatical brevity the Vedanta Sutras offer a rich field for the commentator, and three great Hindu philosophers, Sankara, Ramanuja, and Madhva, wrote elaborate commentaries upon them. In his morning talks the Swami would take up first one of these commentaries, then another, showing how each commentator was guilty of twisting the meaning of the Sutras to meet his own particular view, and would read in the aphorism whatever would best substantiate his own interpretation. The Swami often pointed out to us how old is the bad habit of 'text-torturing'.

Thus it was that in these lessons the point of view presented was sometimes that of pure dualism as represented by Madhva, while on another day it was that of the qualified non-dualism taught by Ramanuja, known as Visishtadvaita. Most frequently, however, the monistic commentary of Sankara was taken up ; but because of his subtlety he was more difficult to understand. So to the end Ramanuja remained the favourite among the students.

INTRODUCTORY NARRATIVE 15

Sometime the Swami took up the Bhakti Sutras of Narada. They are a short exposition of devotion to God, which gives one some conception of the lofty Hindu ideal of real, all-absorbing love for the Lord, love that literally possesses the devotee to the exclusion of every other thought. Bhakti is the Hindu method of realizing union with the Divine, a method which naturally appeals to the devout. It is to love God and Him only.

In these talks the Swami for the first time spoke to us at length about his great Master, Sri Ramakrishna, of his daily life with him and of his struggles with his own tendency to unbelief, which at times drew tears from his Master. The other disciples have often said that Sri Ramakrishna always told them that Swami Vivekananda was a great soul who had come especially to help his work, and that as soon as he knew who he really was, he would at once give up the body. But he added that before that time arrived, there was a certain mission which the Swami would have to accomplish, to help not only India but other lands as well. Frequently Sri Ramakrishna said, "I have other disciples far away, who speak a language I do not understand."

After seven weeks spent at Thousand Island Park the Swami returned to New York City and later went abroad. He lectured and held classes in England until the end of November, when he returned to New York and resumed his teaching there. On this occasion, his students secured a competent stenographer and thus preserved the Swami's words. The reports of the class lectures were soon after published in book form, and these books, together with the pamphlets of the public lectures, remain to-day as enduring monuments of Swami Vivekananda's work in America. To those of us who were privileged to hear the lectures given, the Swami's very presence seems to live again and to speak to us from the printed pages ; so exactly and accurately were his utterances transcribed by one, who subsequently became one of the Swami's most devoted disciples. The work of both Teacher and taught was purely a labour of love, and so the blessing of the Lord rested upon it.

New York,
1908

S. E. W.

II

THE MASTER

FEBRUARY 14th, 1894, stands out in my memory as a day apart, a sacred, holy day ; for it was then that I first saw the form and listened to the voice of that great soul, that spiritual giant, the Swami Vivekananda, who, two years later, to my great joy and never-ceasing wonder, accepted me as a disciple.

He had been lecturing in the large cities of this country, and on the above date gave the first of a series of lectures in Detroit, in the Unitarian Church. The large edifice was literally packed and the Swami received an ovation. I can see him yet as he stepped upon the platform, a regal, majestic figure, vital, forceful, dominant, and at the first sound of the wonderful voice, a voice all music—now like the plaintive minor strain of an Eolian harp, again deep, vibrant, resonant—there was a hush, a stillness that could almost be felt, and the vast audience breathed as one man.

The Swami gave five public lectures and he held his audiences ; for his was the grasp of the ' master hand ' and he spoke as one with authority. His arguments were logical, convincing, and in his most brilliant oratorical flights never once did he lose sight of the main issue—the truth he wished to drive home.

He fearlessly attacked principles, but in personal matters one felt that here was a man whose great heart could take in all of humanity, seeing beyond their faults and foibles ; one who would suffer and forgive to the uttermost. In fact, when it was given to me to know him more intimately, I found that he did forgive to the uttermost. With what infinite love and patience would he lead those who came to him, out of the labyrinth of their own frailties, and point out to them the way out of self to God. He knew no malice. Did one abuse him, he would look thoughtful and repeat, "Siva, Siva ;" then his face would become illumined and he would say gently, "It is only the voice of the Beloved," or if we who loved him would become indignant, he would ask, "What difference can it make when one knows that blamer, blamed, and praiser, praised, are one ?" Again, under like circumstances he would tell us some story of how Sri Ramakrishna would never recognise personal abuse or malice. Everything good or bad, 'the dual throng', was from the "Beloved Mother."

THE MASTER

19

It was given to me to know him in an intimate way for a period of several years, and never once did I find a flaw in his character. He was incapable of petty weakness, and had Vivekananda possessed faults, they would have been generous ones. With all his greatness he was as simple as a child, equally at home among the rich and the great, or among the poor and the lowly.

While in Detroit, he was the guest of Mrs. John J. Bagley, the widow of the ex-Governor of Michigan and a lady of rare culture and unusual spirituality. She told me that never once during the time he was a guest in her house (about four weeks) did he fail to express the highest in word and action, and that his presence was a 'continual benediction'. After leaving Mrs. Bagley, Vivekananda spent two weeks as the guest of Hon. Thomas W. Palmer. Mr. Palmer was President of the World's Fair Commission; he had been formerly U. S. Minister to Spain and also U. S. Senator. This gentleman is still living and is over eighty years of age.

For myself, I can say that never in all the years I knew Vivekananda, did he fail to manifest the highest in life and purpose.

Blessed and beloved Swamiji, I never thought it possible for man to be so white, so chaste, as he was ! It set him apart from other men. He was brought in contact with our most brilliant and beautiful women. Mere beauty did not attract him, but he would often say, "I like to cross swords with your bright intellectual women ; it is a new experience for me, for in my country the women are more or less secluded."

His manner was that of boyish frankness and naivete and very winsome. I remember one evening after he had delivered a profoundly impressive lesson, scaling the very heights of realization, he was found standing at the foot of the stairs with a puzzled, almost disconsolate expression on his face. People were going up and down stairs putting on their wraps, etc. Suddenly his face lighted up and he said, "I have it ! Going up the stairs, the gentleman precedes the lady,—coming down, the lady precedes the gentleman ; isn't it ?" True to his Eastern training, he felt that a breach of etiquette was a breach of hospitality.

In speaking to me one day regarding those who wished to have a part in his life-work, he said, "They must be pure in heart." There was one disciple of whom he hoped much. He evidently saw in her great possibilities for renunciation and self-sacrifice. He found me alone one day and asked me many questions regarding her life and environment, and after I had answered them all, he looked at me so wistfully and said, "And she is pure, pure in soul,—is it not?" I simply answered, "Yes Swami, she is absolutely pure in heart." His face lighted up and his eyes shone with divine fire. "I knew it, I felt it; I must have her for my work in Calcutta," he said with enthusiasm.

THE MASTER

21

He then told me of his plans and hopes for the advancement of the women of India. "Education is what they need," he would say; "we must have a school in Calcutta." A school for girls has since been established there by the Sister Nivedita, and the above-mentioned disciple shares the work with her, living in a Calcutta lane and wearing the Sari, doing the Mother's work as best she may. She shared all these experiences with me; for we together sought out the Master and asked him to teach us. He was the 'man of the hour' in Detroit that winter. Society smiled upon him and he was much sought after. The daily papers recorded his comings and his goings; even his food was discussed, one paper gravely stating that his breakfast consisted of bread and butter thickly sprinkled with pepper ! Letters and invitations came pouring in, and Detroit was at the feet of Vivekananda.

He always loved Detroit, and was grateful for all the kindness and courtesy shown him. We had no chance to meet him in a personal way at the time, but we listened and pondered in our hearts over all that we heard him say, resolving to find him sometime, somewhere, even if we had to go across the world to do it. We lost trace of him completely for nearly two years and thought that probably he had returned to India, but one afternoon we were told by a friend that he was still in this country and that he was spending the summer at Thousand Island Park. We started the next morning, resolved to seek him out and ask him to teach us.

At last after a weary search, we found him. We were feeling very much frightened at our temerity in thus intruding upon his privacy, but he had lighted a fire in our souls that could not be quenched. We must know more of this wonderful man and his teaching. It was a dark and rainy night and we were weary after our long journey, but we could not rest until we had seen him face to face. Would he accept us ? And if he did not, what then could we do ? It suddenly seemed to us that it might be a foolish thing to go several hundred miles to find a man who did not even know of our existence, but we plodded on up the hill in the rain and darkness, with a man we had hired to show us the way with his lantern. Speaking of this in after years, our Guru would refer to us as 'my disciples, who travelled hundreds of miles to find me and they came in the night and in the rain'. We had thought of what to say to him, but when we realized that we had really found him, we instantly forgot all our fine speeches, and one of us blurted out, "We came from Detroit and Mrs. P. sent us to you." The other said, "We have come to you just as we would go to Jesus if he were still on the earth and ask him to teach us." He looked at us so kindly and said gently, "If only he possessed the power of the Christ to set you free now!" He stood for a moment looking thoughtful, and then, turning to his hostess who was standing near, said, "These ladies are from Detroit; please show them upstairs and allow them to spend the evening with us." We remained until late, listening to the Master, who paid no more attention to us; but as we bade them all good night we were told to come the next morning at nine o'clock. We arrived promptly, and to our great joy were accepted by the Master and were cordially invited to become members of the household.

THE MASTER

23

Of our stay there, another disciple has written fully, and I will only say that it was a most blessed summer. I have never seen our Master quite as he was then. He was at his best among those who loved him.

There were twelve of us and it seemed as if Pentecostal fire descended and touched the Master, One afternoon, when he had been telling us of the glory of renunciation, of the joy and freedom of those of the ochre robe, he suddenly left us, and in a short time he had written his 'Song of the Sannyasin', a very passion of sacrifice and renunciation. I think the thing which impressed me most in those days was his infinite patience and gentleness—as of a father with his children, though most of us were several years older than he. After a morning in the class-room, where it almost seemed as if he had gazed into the very face of the Infinite, he would leave the room, returning soon to say, "Now I am going to cook for you." And with what patience would he stand over the stove and prepare some Indian tit-bit for us! The last time he was with us in Detroit, he prepared for us the most delicious curries. What a lesson to his disciples—the brilliant, the great and learned Vivekananda ministering to their little wants ! He was at those times so gentle, so benign. What a legacy of sacred tender memories has he left us !

THE MASTER

25

One day Vivekananda related to us the story that had most impressed itself upon his life. It was told him over and over again in his babyhood by his nurse and he never wearied of hearing it repeated. I will give it as nearly as possible in his own words :

The widow of a Brahmin was left very, very poor, with one child, a little boy who was almost a baby. Because he was the son of a Brahmin, the boy had to be educated, but how to do it ? In the village, where the poor widow lived, there was no teacher. So the boy had to go to the neighbouring village to be taught, and because his mother was very, very poor, he had to walk there. There was a small forest between the two villages, and through this the boy had to pass. In India, as in all hot countries, teaching is given very early in the morning and again towards evening. Through the heat of the day no work is done ; so it was always dark when the little boy went to school and also when he came home. In my country, instruction in religion is free to those who cannot pay ; so the little boy could go to this teacher without charge, but he had to walk through the forest and he was alone and he was terribly afraid. He went to his mother and said, "I have always to go alone through that terrible forest and I am afraid. Other boys have servants to go with them and take care of them. Why cannot I have a servant to go with me ?" But his mother replied, "Alas, my child ! I am too poor, I cannot send a servant with you." "What can I do then ?" asked the little boy. "I will tell you," said his mother, "do this. In the forest is your shepherd-brother Krishna,¹ call on him and he will come and take care of you and you will not be alone." So the next day the little boy went into the forest and called, "Brother-shepherd, brother-shepherd, are you there ?" and he heard a voice say, "Yes, I am here," and the little boy was comforted and was no more afraid. By and by he used to meet, coming out of the forest, a boy of his own age, who played with him and walked with him, and the little boy was happy. After a while, the father of the teacher died, and there was a great ceremonial festival (as is common in India on such occasions), when all the scholars made presents to their teacher, and the poor little boy went to his mother and asked her to buy him a present to give like the rest. But his mother told him that she was too poor. Then he wept and said, "What shall I do?" And his mother said, "Go to brother-shepherd and ask him." So he went into the forest and called, "Brother-shepherd, brother-shepherd, can you give me a present to give to my teacher?" And there appeared before him a little pitcher of milk. The boy took the pitcher gratefully and went to the house of this teacher and stood in a corner waiting for the servants to take his gift to the teacher. But the other presents were so much grander and finer that the servants paid no attention to him. So he spoke and said, "Teacher, here is the present I have brought you." Still no one took any notice. Then the little boy spoke again from his corner and said, "Teacher, here is the present I have brought you," and the teacher looking over and seeing the pitiful little gift, scorned it, but said to the servant, "Since he makes so much fuss about it, take the pitcher and pour the milk into one of the glasses and let him go." So the servant took the pitcher and poured the milk into a cup, but just as soon as he poured out the milk, the pitcher filled right up again and it could not be emptied. Then everybody was surprised and asked, "What is this? Where did you get this pitcher?" And the little boy said, "Brother-shepherd gave it to me in the forest." "What!" they all exclaimed, "you have seen Krishna and he gave you this?" "Yes," said the little boy, "and he plays with me every day and walks with me when I come to school." "What!" they all exclaimed, "you walk with Krishna! You play with Krishna!" And the teacher said, "Can you take us and show us this?" And the little boy said, "Yes, I can; come with me." Then the little boy and the teacher went into the forest, and the little boy began to call as usual, "Brother-shepherd, brother-shepherd, here is my teacher come to you. Where are you?" But no answer came. The little boy called again and again, and no answer came. Then he wept and said, "Brother-shepherd, do come, or else they will call me a liar." Then from afar off a voice was heard saying, "I come to you because you are pure and your time has come, but your teacher has many many rounds to go through before he can see me."

¹ Krishna is known in India as the 'shepherd god'.

THE MASTER

27

After the summer at Thousand Island Park, Vivekananda sailed for England, and I did not see him until the following spring (1896), when he came to Detroit for two weeks. He was accompanied by his stenographer, the faithful Goodwin. They occupied a suite of rooms at The Richelieu, a small family hotel, and had the use of the large drawing room for class work and lectures. The room was not large enough to accommodate the crowds, and to our great regret many were turned away. The room, as also the hall, staircase and library, was literally packed. At that time he was all Bhakti—the love for God was a hunger and thirst. A kind of divine madness seemed to take possession of him, as if his heart would burst with longing for the Beloved Mother.

THE MASTER

29

His last public appearance in Detroit was at the Temple Beth El, of which the Rabbi Louis Grossman, an ardent admirer of the Swami, was the pastor. It was Sunday evening, and so great was the crowd that we almost feared a panic. There was a solid line reaching far out into the street and hundreds were turned away. Vivekananda held the large audience spell-bound, his subject being, 'India's Message to the West', and 'The Ideal of a Universal Religion'. He gave us a most brilliant and masterly discourse. Never had I seen the Master look as he looked that night. There was something in his beauty not of earth. It was as if the spirit had almost burst the bonds of flesh, and it was then that I first saw a fore-shadowing of the end. He was much exhausted from years of over-work, and it was even then to be seen that he was not long for this world. I tried to close my eyes to it, but in my heart I knew the truth. He had needed rest but felt that he must go on.

The next time I saw him was in July 1899. He had been extremely ill, and it was thought that a long sea voyage would benefit him. So he sailed for England from Calcutta on the steamship Golconda. Much to his surprise, two of his American disciples were at the Tilbury Docks in London when the ship arrived. We had seen in an Indian magazine a notice that he would sail on a certain date, and we hastened over to the other side to meet him, as we were very much alarmed at the reports we had heard regarding his health.

He had grown very slim, and looked and acted like a boy. He was so happy to find the voyage had brought back some of the old strength and vigor. The Sister Nivedita and the Swami Turiyananda accompanied him to England, and quarters were found for the two Swamis in a roomy old-fashioned house at Wimbledon not far from London. It was very quiet and restful, and we all spent a happy month there.

THE MASTER

31

The Swami did no public work in England at that time, and soon sailed for America accompanied by Swami Turiyananda and his American friends. There were ten never-to-be-forgotten days spent on the ocean. Reading and exposition of the Gita occupied every morning, also reciting and translating poems and stories from the Sanskrit and chanting old Vedic hymns. The sea was smooth and at night the moon-light was entrancing. Those were wonderful evenings ; The Master paced up and down the deck, a majestic figure in the moonlight, stopping now and then to speak to us of the beauties of Nature. “ And if all this Maya is so beautiful, think of the wondrous beauty of the Reality behind it ! ” he would exclaim.

One especially fine evening, when the moon was at the full and softly mellow and golden, a night of mystery and enchantment, he stood silently for a long time drinking in the beauty of the scene. Suddenly he turned to us and said, “ Why recite poetry when there,” pointing to sea and sky, “ is the very essence of poetry ? ”

We reached New York all too soon, feeling that we never could be grateful enough for those blessed, intimate ten days with our Guru. The next time I saw him was on July 4th, 1900, when he came to Detroit for a short visit among his friends.

He had grown so thin, almost ethereal,—not long would that great spirit be imprisoned in clay. Once more we closed our eyes to the sad truth, hoping against hope.

I never saw him again but 'that other disciple' was privileged to be with him in India for a few weeks before he left us for ever. Of that time, I cannot bear to think. The sorrow and the heart-break of it all still abide with me ; but deep down underneath all the pain and grief is a great calm, a sweet and blessed consciousness that great souls do come to earth to point out to men 'the way, the truth, and the life' ; and when I realize that it was given to me to come under the influence of such a one, finding each day a new beauty, a deeper significance in his teaching, I can almost believe, as I meditate upon all this, that I hear a voice saying : "Take off thy shoes from off thy feet ; for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground."

M. C. F.

Detroit, Michigan,
1908.

NOTE

AT the morning talks it was possible to take a few notes and these that follow were made on these occasions. They are naturally somewhat disconnected, as the Swami encouraged us to ask questions and to seek the fullest explanation of any problem that presented itself. Thus these are not at all like notes of regular lectures, but simply brief records of familiar discourses. Being taken in longhand (and solely for individual use), much that was said failed to be written down. Such as they are, with all their incompleteness, they possess a value of their own, and an added value to those who knew and loved the Swami, as being his utterances. While necessarily the teaching itself cannot vary much, the presentation is new and different from anything that we now have in print of the words of our much loved Teacher.

In loving remembrance of a great and good man and of many happy hours spent with him, these fragments of his teachings are now offered to the public. May the Lord whom he so devoutly worshipped and untiringly proclaimed to us, bless his inspired words and fill our hearts with that Divine love which the Swami so constantly urged us to manifest !

S. E. W.

INSPIRED TALKS

WVI

Rain-water flowing down from a terrace through spouts shaped grotesquely like tiger's head, appears to come through the mouth of these animals, but in reality it descends from the sky. So also the holy teachings that come out of the mouths of godly men seem to be uttered by them, but in truth they come from God Himself.

—SRI RAMAKRISHNA

INSPIRED TALKS

WEDNESDAY, June 19th, 1895.

(This day marks the beginning of the regular teaching given daily by Swami Vivekananda to his disciples at Thousand Island Park. We had not yet all assembled there, but the Master's heart being always in his work, he commenced at once to teach the three or four who were with him. He came on this first morning with the Bible in his hand and opened the Book of John, saying that since we were all Christians, it was proper that he should begin with the Christian Scriptures.)

“In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.” The Hindu calls this Maya—the manifestation of God, because it is the power of God.¹ The Absolute reflecting through the Maya is what we call nature. The Word has two manifestations,—the general one of Nature, and the special one of the great Incarnations of God — Krishna, Buddha, Jesus, Ramakrishna. Christ, the special manifestation of the Absolute, is known and knowable. The Absolute cannot be known. We cannot know the Father ; we can only know the Son. We can only see the Absolute through the “ tint of humanity ”—through Christ.

1 Maya—being the Sakti or the power of the Supreme Lord, which appears to hide His Reality and Project the names and forms of the relative Universe.

In the first five verses of John is the whole essence of Christianity ; each verse is full of the profoundest philosophy.

The Perfect never becomes imperfect. It is in the darkness, but is not affected by the darkness. God's mercy goes to all, but is not affected by man's wickedness. The sun is not affected by any disease of our eyes which makes us see it distortedly. In the twenty-ninth verse, “ taketh away the sin of the world ” means that Christ will show us the way to become perfect. God became Christ to show man his true nature—that we too are God. We are human coverings over the Divine ; but as the Divine Man, Christ and we are one.

The Trinitarian Christ is elevated above us ; the Unitarian Christ is merely a moral man. So neither can help us. The Christ who is the Incarnation of God, who has not forgotten his divinity—that Christ can help us, in Him there is no imperfection. These Incarnations are always conscious of their own divinity ; they know it from their birth. They are like the actors whose play is over, but who, after their work is done, return to please others. These great ones are untouched by aught of earth. They assume our form and our limitations for a time in order to teach us, but in reality they are never limited; they are ever free.

* * *

Good is near Truth but is not yet Truth. After learning not to be disturbed by evil, we have to learn not to be made happy by good. We must find that we are beyond both evil and good; we must study their adjustment and see that they are both necessary.

The idea of dualism comes from the ancient Persians.¹ Really good and evil are one and the same,² and are in our own mind. When the mind is tranquil, neither good nor evil affects it. Be perfectly free; then neither can affect you, and you will enjoy freedom and bliss. Evil is the iron chain; good is the gold one. Both are chains. Be free, and know once for all that there is no chain for you. Lay hold of the gold chain to loosen the hold of the iron one ; then throw both away. The thorn of evil is in our flesh ; take another thorn from the same bush and extract the first thorn, and then throw away both and be free.

¹ i.e. the Parsees. They are the followers of Zoroaster who taught that the whole creation has come out of two primary principles, one being called Ahura-Mazda (the principle of Good), and the other Ahriman (the principle of Evil)

² Because, as products of maya, they are both chains binding men to the relative world.

* * * *

Very Very Important

In the world take always the position of the giver. Give everything and look for no return. Give love, give help, give service, give any little thing you can, but keep out barter. Make no conditions and none will be imposed. Let us give out of our own bounty, just as God gives to us. The Lord is the only giver, all the men in the world are only shopkeepers. Get His cheque, and it will be honoured everywhere.

God is the inexplicable, inexpressible essence of love — to be known, but never defined.

* * * *

In our miseries and struggles the world seems to us a very dreadful place. But just as when we watch two puppies playing and biting we do not concern ourselves at all — realizing that it is only fun and that even a sharp nip now and then will do no actual harm — so all our struggles are but play in God's eyes. This world is all for play and only amuses God ; nothing in it can make God angry.

* * * *

“Mother, in the sea of life my bark is sinking !
The whirlwind of illusion, the storm of attachment is growing every moment ;
My five oarsmen (senses) are foolish, and the helmsman (mind) is weak.
My bearings are lost, my boat is sinking.
O Mother, save me !’

“Mother Thy light stops not for the saint or the sinner ; it animates the lover and the murderer.” Mother is ever manifesting through all. The light is not polluted by what it shines on, nor benefitted by it. The light is ever pure, ever changeless. Behind every creature is the Mother — pure, lovely, never-changing. “Mother, manifested as light in all beings, we bow down to Thee.” She is equally in suffering, hunger, pleasure, sublimity. “When the bee sucks honey, the Lord is eating.” Knowing that the Lord is everywhere, the sages give up praising and blaming. Know that nothing can hurt you. How can it ? Are you not free ? Are you not the Atman ? He is the life of our lives, the hearing of our ears, the sight of our eyes.

We go through the world like a man pursued by a policeman and see the barest glimpses of the beauty of it. All this fear that pursues us comes from believing in matter. Matter gets its whole existence from the presence of mind behind it. What we see is God percolating through nature.¹

SUNDAY, June 23rd.

Be brave and be sincere ; then follow any path with devotion and you must reach the Lord. Once lay hold of one link of the chain, and the whole chain must come by degrees. Water the roots of the tree—that is reach the Lord—and the whole tree is watered. Getting the Lord, we get all.

One-sidedness is the bane of the world. The more sides you develop, the more varied will be your enjoyment of the universe. You will enjoy it as a Jnani, a Bhakta and in all other ways. Determine your own nature and stick to it. Nishtha is the only method for the beginner, but with devotion and sincerity it will lead to all. Churches, doctrines, forms, are the hedges to protect the tender plant, but they must later be broken down that the plant may become a tree. So the various religions, Bibles, Vedas, dogmas, all are just pots for little plants ; but they must get out of the pots. Nishtha is, in a manner of

As per the Mahar's Sadhana Pachakam
 1 Here 'nature' means matter and mind speaking, placing the plant in the pot, shielding the struggling soul on its chosen path.

* * * *

Look at the ocean and not at the wave ; see no difference between ant and angel. Every worm is the brother of the Nazarene. How can you say one is greater and one less ? Each is great in his own place. We are in the sun and in the stars as much as here. Spirit is beyond space and time, and is everywhere. Every mouth praising the Lord is my mouth ; every eye seeing is my eye. We are confined nowhere. We are not the body ; the universe is our body. We are magicians waving magic wands and creating scenes before us at will. Vyoma-Vad Vagapto Dehay

We are the spider in a huge web, who can go on the varied strands wheresoever he desires. The spider is now conscious only of the spot where he is ; but he will in time become conscious of the whole web. We too are conscious of our existence only where our body is ; we can use only one brain. But when we reach ultra-consciousness we know all, we can use all brains. Even now we can "give the push" to consciousness and it will go beyond and act in the super conscious.

We are striving to "be" and nothing more ; —there will not even be "I"—just pure crystal, reflecting all, but itself ever the same. When that state is reached there is no more doing ; the body becomes a mere mechanism, pure without our trying for purity ; it cannot become impure.

Know you are the Infinite ; then fear will die. Say ever, " I and my father are one."

* Teevo * Brahmā na paraha *

In time to come Christs will be in numbers like bunches of grapes on a vine ; then the play will be over and all will pass out—just as water in a kettle beginning to boil shows first one bubble, then another, then more and more, until all is in ebullition and passes out as steam. Buddha and Christ are the two biggest 'bubbles' the world has yet produced. Moses was a tiny bubble, greater and greater ones came. Sometimes, however, all will be bubbles and escape ; but creation, ever new, will bring new water to go through the process all over again.

MONDAY, June 24th.

(The reading today was from the Bhakti Sutras. .
by Narada.)

"Extreme love to God is Bhakti, and this love is the real immortality, getting which a man becomes perfectly satisfied, sorrows for no loss, and is never jealous ; knowing which a man becomes mad."

My Master used to say : "This world is a huge lunatic asylum where all men are mad—some after money, some after women, some after name or fame, and a few after God. I prefer to be mad after God. God is the philosopher's stone that turns us to gold in an instant ; the form remains, but the nature is changed ; the human form remains, but no more can we hurt or sin."

"Thinking of God, some weep, some sing, some laugh, some dance, some say wonderful things, but all speak of nothing but God."

Prophets preach, but the Incarnation—Jesus—Buddha, Ramakrishna, can give religion. One glance, one touch is enough. That is the power of the Holy Ghost, the "laying on of hands".

The power was actually transmitted to the disciples by the Master—the "chain of Guru-power". That, the real baptism, has been handed down for untold ages.

Bhakti cannot be used to fulfil any desires, itself being the check to all desires." Narada gives these as the signs of love : "When all thoughts, all words and all deeds are given up unto the Lord, and the least forgetfulness of God makes one intensely miserable, then love has begun."

"This is the highest form of love, because in it there is no desire for reciprocity which desire is in all human love."

"A man who has gone beyond social and scriptural usage is a Sannyasin. When the whole soul goes to God, when we take refuge only in God, then we know that we are about to get this love."

Obey the scriptures until you are strong enough to do without them, then go beyond them. Books are not final. Verification is the only proof of religious truth. Each must verify for himself; and no teacher who says, "I have seen, but you cannot," is to be trusted—only that one who says, "You can see too." All scriptures, all truths of all times, and of all countries, are vedas; because these truths are to be seen and any one may discover them.

"When the sun of love begins to break on the horizon, we want to give up all our actions unto God, and when we forget Him for a moment, it grieves us greatly."

Let nothing stand between God and your love for Him. Love Him, love Him, love Him,—and let the world say what it will. Love is of three sorts—one demands, but gives nothing; the second is exchange; and the third is love without thought of return, love like that of the moths for the light.

"Love is higher than works, than Yoga, than knowledge."

Work is merely a schooling for the doer ; it can do no good to others. We must work out our own problem ; the prophets only show us how to work.

"What you think, you become." So if you throw your burden on Jesus, you will have to think of Him ; thus you become like Him and you love Him.

"Extreme love and the highest knowledge are one."

But theorizing about God will not do. We must love and work. Give up the world and all worldly things, especially while the "plant" is tender.

Day and night think of God, and as far as possible think of nothing else. The daily necessary thoughts can all be thought through God. Eat to Him, drink to Him, sleep to Him, see Him in all. Talk of God to others—this is most beneficial.

Get the mercy of God and of His greatest children ; these are the two chief ways to God. The company of these children of Light is very hard to get. Five minutes in their company will change a whole life, and if you really want it enough, one will come to you. The presence of those who love God makes a place holy, such is the glory of the children of the Lord. They are He ; and when they speak ; their words are scriptures. The place where they have been becomes filled with their vibrations, and those going there feel them and have a tendency to become holy also.

“To such lovers there is no distinction of caste, learning, beauty, birth, wealth, or occupation ; because all are His.” Viveka chudamani

Give up all evil company, especially at the beginning. Avoid worldly company ; that will distract your mind. Give up all thought of “me and mine”. To him who has nothing in the universe the Lord comes. Cut the bondage of all worldly affections ; go beyond laziness and also beyond all worry as to what will become of you. Never turn back to see the result of what you have done. Give all to the Lord, and work, and think not of it. When whole soul pours in a continuous current to God, when there is no time to seek money or name or fame, no time to think of anything but God, then will come into our heart that infinite, wonderful bliss of love. All desires are but beads of glass. True Love of God increases every moment and is ever new—it is to be known only by feeling it. Love is the easiest of all disciplines. It waits for no logic ; it is natural. We need no demonstration, no proof.

Reasoning is limiting something by our own minds. We throw a net and catch something, and then say that we have demonstrated it. But never, never can we catch God in a net.

Love should be motiveless. Even when we love wrongly, it is an expression of the true love, of the true bliss. The power is the same, use it as we may. Its very nature is peace and bliss. The murderer, when he kisses his baby, forgets for an instant all but love. Give up all self, all egotism; get out of anger and lust; give all to God. "Not I, but Thou. The old man is all gone; only Thou remainest." "I am Thou." Blame none. If evil comes, know the Lord is playing with you and be exceeding glad.

Love is beyond time and space. It is absolute.

TUESDAY, June 25th.

After every happiness comes misery; they may be far apart or near. The more advanced the soul, the more quickly does the one follow the other. What we want is neither happiness nor misery. Both make us forget our true nature; both are chains—one iron, one gold. Behind both is the Atman, who knows neither happiness nor misery. These are states, and states must ever change; but the nature of the Soul is bliss, peace—unchanging. We have not to get it, we have it.

Only wash away the dross and see it.

Stand upon the Self ; then only can we truly love the world. Take a very, very high stand. Knowing our universal nature, we must look with perfect calmness upon all the panorama of the world. It is but baby's play, and we know that, so cannot be disturbed by it. If the mind is pleased with praise it will be displeased with blame. All pleasures of the senses or even of the mind are evanescent ; but within ourselves is the one true unrelated pleasure, dependent upon nothing. It is perfectly free. It is bliss. The more we enjoy inner bliss, the more spiritual we are. The pleasure of the Self is what is called religion.

The internal universe, the real is infinitely greater than the 'external, which is only a shadowy projection of the true one. This world is neither true nor untrue ; it is the shadow of truth. It is imagination—the gilded shadow of truth—says the poet.

We enter into creation, and then for us it becomes living. Things are dead in themselves ; only we give them life, and then, like fools, we turn around and are afraid of them or run after them. But be not like certain fishwives who caught in a storm on their way home from market, took refuge in the house of a florist. They were lodged for the night in a room next to the garden, where the air was full of the fragrance of flowers. In vain did they try to rest, until one of their number suggested that they wet their fish baskets and place them near their heads. As soon as they got the smell of fish, they all fell into a sound sleep.

The world is our fish-basket. We must not depend upon it for enjoyment. Those who do are the Tamasikas, the bound. Then there are the Rajasikas, the egotistical, who talk always about "I", "I". They do good work sometimes and may become spiritual. But the highest are the Sattvikas, the introspective, those who live only in the Self. These three qualities — Tamas, Rajas, and Sattva — are in everyone, and different ones predominate at different times.

Creation is not a "making" of something ; it is the struggle to regain equilibrium — as when bits of cork, thrown to the bottom of a pail of water, rush to the top, singly or in clusters. Life is, and must be, accompanied by evil. A little evil is the source of life. The little wickedness that is in the world is very good ; for when the balance is regained, the world will end, because sameness and destruction are one. As long as this world exists, good and evil exist with it ; but when we can transcend this world, we get rid of both good and evil and have bliss.

There is no possibility of ever having pleasure without pain, good without evil ; for life itself is just lost equilibrium. What we want is freedom — not life, nor pleasure, nor good. Creation is infinite, without beginning and without end, the ever-moving ripple in an infinite lake. There are, however, unreached depths in this lake, where the equilibrium has been regained ; but the ripple on the surface is always there ; the struggle to regain the balance is eternal. Life and death are only different names for the same fact, the two sides of the one coin. Both are Maya, the inexplicable state of striving at one time to live, and a moment later having to die. Beyond this is our true nature, the Atman. What we call God, it is really only the Self from which we have separated ourselves and which we worship as outside us ; but it is our true Self, all the time, the one and only God.

To regain the balance we must counteract Tamas by Rajas, then conquer Rajas by Sattva, the calm, beautiful state that will grow and grow until all else is gone. Give up bondage, become a son of God, be free, and then you can “ see the Father " as did Jesus. Infinite strength is religion and God. Avoid weakness and slavery. You are the soul only if you are free ; there is immortality for you only if you are free ; there is a God only if He is free.

*

*

*

*

The world is for me — and not for the world. Good and evil are our slaves, not we theirs. The brute's nature to remain where he is. It is the nature of man to seek good and avoid evil ; it is the nature of God to seek neither, but just to be eternally blissful. Let us be god ! Make the heart like an ocean ; go beyond all the trifles of the world. Be mad with joy even at evil ; see the world as a picture and then enjoy its beauty, knowing that nothing affects you. Do you know what good is ? It is like glass beads that children find in a mud-puddle. Look at the world with calm complacency. See good and evil as the same ; both are merely God's "play". Enjoy all.

*

*

*

*

My Master used to say, " All is God, but tiger-God is to be shunned. All water is water, but we avoid dirty water for drinking."

The whole sky is God's votive tray, on which the sun and moon burn as lamps. What other temple is needed? All eyes are Thine, yet Thou hast not an eye; all hands are Thine, yet Thou hast not a hand.

Neither seek nor avoid; take what comes. This is freedom—to be affected by nothing. Do not merely endure; be unattached. Remember the story of the bull. A mosquito sat long on the horn of a certain bull. Then his conscience troubled him and he said, “Mr. Bull, I have been sitting here a long time; perhaps I annoy you. I am sorry; I will go away.” But the bull replied; “Oh no, not at all! Bring your whole family and live on my horn. What can you do to me?”

WEDNESDAY, June 26th.

Our best work is done, our greatest influence is exerted, when we are without thought of self. All great geniuses know this. Let us open ourselves to the one Divine Actor and let Him act, let us do nothing ourselves. “O Arjuna! I have no duty in the whole world,” says Krishna in the Bhagavad Gita. Be perfectly resigned, perfectly unconcerned; then alone can you do any true work. No eyes can see the real forces behind the work, we can only see the results. Put out self, lose it, forget it. Just let God work; it is His business. We have nothing to do but stand aside and let God work. The more we go away, the more God comes in. Get rid of the little "I" and let only the great "I" live.

We are what our thoughts have made us ; so take care about what you think. Words are secondary. Thoughts live ; they travel far. Each thought we think is tinged with our own character ; so even the jests or abuse of a pure and holy man will bear a trace of his own love and purity and do good.

Desire nothing. Think of God and look for no return. It is desireless work that brings results. The begging monks carry religion to every man's door ; but they think that they do nothing, they claim nothing, their work is unconsciously done. If they should eat of the tree of knowledge, they would become egotists and all the good they do would fly away. As soon as we say "I" we are fooled. And what we call "knowledge" is only going round and round like a bullock tied to an oilmill. The Lord has hidden Himself best and His work is best ; so he who hides himself best accomplishes most. Conquer yourself and the whole universe is yours.

In the state of Sattva we see the very nature of things ; we go beyond the senses and beyond reason. The adamant wall that shuts us in is egotism. We refer everything to ourselves, thinking I do this, that, or the other. Get rid of this puny "I"; kill this diabolism in us. "Not I, but Thou"—say it, feel it, live it. Until we give up the world manufactured by the ego, never can we enter the Kingdom of Heaven. None ever did, none ever will. To give up the world is to forget the ego, to know it not at all-being in the body but not of it. This rascal ego must be obliterated. Bless men when they revile you. Think how much good they are doing you. If any one is hurt it is only themselves. Go where people hate you; let them thrash the ego out of you and you will get nearer to the Lord. Like the mother-monkey,¹ we hug our baby, the world, as long as we can; but at last when we are driven to put it under our feet and step on it, then we are ready to come to God. Blessed it is to be persecuted for the sake of righteousness. Blessed are we if we cannot read; we have less to take us away from God.

Enjoyment is the million-headed serpent that we must tread under foot. We renounce, and go onward; then, perhaps, we find nothing and we despair. But hold on, hold on. The world is a demon.

1 The mother-monkey is very fond of her young one in time of safety; but when danger comes, she does not scruple to throw it down and trample on it, if necessary, to save herself.

The world is a kingdom of which the puny ego is king. Put it away and stand firm. Give up lust and gold and fame, and hold fast to the Lord, and at last you will reach a state of perfect indifference. The idea that the gratification of the senses constitutes enjoyment is purely materialistic. There is not one spark of real enjoyment there ; all the joy there is, is a mere reflection of the true bliss.

Those who give themselves up to the Lord do more for the world than all the so-called workers. One man who has purified himself thoroughly, accomplishes more than a regiment of preachers. Out of purity and silence comes the power of the word.

Be like a lily ; stay in one place and expand your petals and bees will come of themselves. There was a great contrast between Keshab Chunder Sen and Sri Ramakrishna. The second never recognized any sin or misery in the world, no evil to fight against. The first was a great ethical reformer, a leader, of the Brama-Samaj. After twelve years of discipline the quiet prophet of Dakshineswar had worked a revolution, not only in India, but in the world. The power is with the silent ones, who only live and love and then leave the world. They never say "me" and "mine"; they feel blessed in being instruments. Such men are the Christs and Buddhas, ever living, fully identified with God, ideal existences, asking nothing and not consciously doing anything. They are the real world-movers, the Jivan-muktas, absolutely selfless; their little personality is entirely blown away, and their ambition is non-existent. They are all principle, no personality.

THURSDAY, June 27th.

(The Swami brought the New Testament this morning and talked again on the Book of John.)

Mahommed claimed to be the 'Comforter' that Christ promised to send. He considered it unnecessary to claim a supernatural birth for Jesus. Such claims have been common in all ages and in all countries. All great men have claimed gods for their fathers.

Knowing is only relative; we can be God, but never know him. Knowledge is a lower state. Adam's fall occurred when he came to know. Before that he was truth, he was purity. We certainly are not other than our own faces, but we can see only a reflection, never the real thing.

We are love, but when we think of it, we have to use a phantasm,¹ which proves that matter is only externalized thought.

Nivriti means turning aside from the world. Hindu Mythology says that the four first-created beings² were warned by a Swan—God Himself—that manifestation was only secondary; so they lived without procreating. The meaning of this is that manifestation is degeneration, because Spirit can only be expressed by the letter, and the “letter killeth”.³ Yet principle is bound to be clothed in matter, though we know that later we lose sight of the real in the covering. Every great teacher understands this. And that is why a continual succession of prophets has to come to show us the principle and give it a new form suited to the times. My Master taught that religion is one. All prophets teach the same thing; but they can only present the principle in a form, and so they take it out of the old form and put it before us in a new one.

When we free ourselves from name and form, especially from a body—when we need no body,

1 That is to say, an external object of Love.

2 Namely, Sanaka, Sanandana, Sanatana, and Sanat-kumara.

3 New Testament II Cor. 3: 6.

good or bad—then only do we escape from bondage. Eternal progression is eternal bondage ; annihilation of form is to be preferred. We must get free from all bodies, even a god-body. God is the only real Existence ; there cannot be two.¹ There is but One Soul, and I am That.

Good works are valuable only as a means of becoming free. They do good to the doer, never to any other.

*

*

*

*

Knowledge is mere classification. When we find many things of the same kind, we give them a name and are satisfied. We discover events, never why they happen. We take a circuit in a wider field of darkness and think we know something. No "why" can be answered in this world ; for that we must go to God. We can ever know the real knower by whom all things are known. A salt doll wanted to know the depth of the ocean. The moment it touched the water it merged in it.

Differentiation creates ; homogeneity or sameness is God. Get beyond differentiation ; then you will conquer life and death and reach eternal 1 The body is a limitation. Hence the formless must be limitless or infinite. Since there cannot be two Infinities, God or the Soul, who is formless must be one.

INSPIRED TALKS

61

sameness, and will be in God,—will be God. Get freedom, even at the cost of life. All our lives belong to us as leaves to a book ; but we are the unchanged witness—upon whom the impression is made—as when the impression of a circle is made upon the eyes when a firebrand is rapidly whirled round and round. The soul is the unity of all personalities, and because it is at rest, eternal, unchangeable ; It is God, Atma. It is not life, but it is coined into life. It is not pleasure, but it gives rise to pleasure.

*

*

*

*

To-day God is being abandoned by the world because He does not seem to be doing enough for the world. So we hear, “ Of what good is He ? ” Shall we look upon God as a mere municipal authority ?

All we can do is to put down all desires, hates, differences. We must put down the lower self, commit mental suicide, as it were. Keep the body and mind pure and healthy, but only as instruments to help us to God—that is their only true use.

Seek truth for truth's sake alone ; look not for bliss. It may come, but do not let that be your incentive. Have no motive except God. Dare to come to truth even through hell.

FRIDAY, June 28th.

(The entire household went on a picnic for the day, and although the Swami taught constantly, as he did wherever he was, no notes were taken this day and no record, therefore, of what he said remains. As he began his breakfast before setting out, however, he made the following remark.)

Be thankful for food, it is Brahman. The universal energy of Brahman¹ is transmuted into our individual energy and helps us in all that we do.

SATURDAY, June 29th.

(The Swami came this morning with the Gita in his hand.)

Krishna, the "Lord of souls", talks to Arjuna, or Gudakcsa, the "lord of sleep"—he who has conquered sleep. Dharmakshetra the "field of virtue"—the battlefield—is this world; the five brothers—representing righteousness—fight the hundred other brothers—the worldly objects that we are attached to and have to contend against. The most heroic brother, Arjuna—the awakened soul—is the general. We have to fight all sense-delights, the things to which we are most attached and kill them. We have to be detached. We are Brahman; all other ideas must be merged in this one.

¹ Brahman (neuter) is the impersonal, beginningless Supreme Spirit. Brahma (masculine) is the first person of the Hindu Trinity (Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva) and is the Creator of the Universe.

INSPIRED TALKS

63

Krishna did everything, but without any attachment; he was in the world, but not of it. Do all work but without attachment: work for work's sake, never for yourself.

*

*

*

*

Freedom can never belong to name and form. As by name and form, pots are made out of clay, so are we made out of Brahman. But then Brahman becomes limited and is not free. Freedom can never belong to the relative. A pot can never say, "I am free"—as a pot; only as it loses all idea of form does it become free. The whole universe is only the Self with variations, one tune made bearable by variations. Sometimes there are discords, but they only make the subsequent harmony more perfect. In the universal melody three ideas stand out: freedom, strength and sameness.

If your freedom hurts others, you are not truly free; you must not hurt others. Imp

"To be weak is miserable," says Milton. Work and result are inseparably joined. "To Imp work you have the right—not to the fruits thereof.”

Evil thoughts, from the physical standpoint are the disease bacilli.

Each thought is a little hammer blow on the lump of iron, which in our body, making it into what we want it to be. We are heirs to all the good thoughts of the universe, if we open ourselves to them.

The book is in us. “Fool, hearest thou not? In thine own heart day and night is singing that eternal music,—‘Satchidananda, soham, soham’—‘Existence-Knowledge-Bliss Absolute, I am He, I am He’.” soham soham

The fountain of all knowledge is in every one of us—in the ant as in the highest angel. Real religion is one, but we quarrel with the forms, the symbols, the illustrations. The millennium exists already for those who find it; we have lost ourselves and then think the world is lost.

Perfect strength has no activity in this world; it only is, it does not act.

While real perfection is only one, relative perfections must be many.

SUNDAY, June 30th.

To try to think without imagery is to try to make the impossible possible. We cannot think "mammalia" without a concrete example. So with the idea of God.

The highest abstractions in the world is what we call God.

Each thought has two parts ; the idea and the word ; and we must have both. Neither idealists nor materialists are right ; we must take both idea and expression.

All knowledge is of the reflected just as we can only see our face in a mirror. No one will ever know his own Self or God, but we are that Self, we are God.

In Nirvana you are when you are not. Buddha said, "You are best, you are real when you are not,"—when the little self is gone.

The Light Divine within is obscured in most people. It is like a lamp in a cask of iron : no gleam of light can shine through. Gradually, by purity and unselfishness, we can make the obscuring medium less and less dense, until at last it becomes as transparent as glass. Sri Ramakrishna was like the iron cask transformed into a glass cask, through which the inner light can be seen as it is. We are all on the way to becoming the cask of glass and even higher and higher medium of reflection. As long as there is a ‘cask’ at all, we must think through material means. No impatient one can ever succeed.

*

*

*

*

Great saints are illustrations of the Principle. But the disciples make the saint the Principle and then they forget the Principle in the person.

The result of Buddha’s constant inveighing against a personal God was the introduction of idols in India. In the Vedas they knew them not, because they saw God everywhere. But the reaction against the loss of God as creator and friend was the introduction of idols; and Buddha became an idol—so too, with Jesus. The range of idols is from wood and stone to Jesus and Buddha, but we must have idols.

Violent attempts at reform always end by retarding reform. Do not say, “You are bad”; say only, “You are good, but be better.”

Priests are an evil in every country, because they denounce and criticise, pulling at one string to mend it until two or three others are out of place. Love never denounces, but ambition does. There is no such thing as “righteous” anger or justifiable killing.

If you do not allow a man to become a lion, he will become a fox. Woman is a power; only now it is more for evil because man oppresses her. She is fox but when she is no longer oppressed, she will become the lion.

Ordinarily speaking, spiritual aspiration ought to be balanced through the intellect ; otherwise it may degenerate into mere sentimentality.

* * * *

All theists agree that behind the changeable there is an Unchangeable, though they differ in their conception of the Ultimate. Buddha denied this in toto. "There is no Brahman, no Atman, no soul," he said.

As a character Buddha was the greatest the world has ever seen ; next to him, Christ. But the teachings of Krishna as given in the Gita are the grandest the world has ever known. He who wrote that wonderful poem was one of those rare souls whose life sends a wave of regeneration through the world. The human race will never again see such a brain as his.

* * * *

There is only one Power, whether manifesting as evil or good. God and the devil are the same river with the water flowing in opposite directions.

MONDAY, July 1st.

(Sri Ramakrishna Deva)

Sri Ramakrishna was the son of a very orthodox brahmin who would refuse even a gift from any but a special caste of brahmins. Neither would he work, nor even be a priest in a temple nor sell books, nor serve anyone. He would only have "what fell from the skies" (alms), and even then it must not come through a "fallen" brahmin. Temples have no hold on the Hindu religion; if they were all destroyed, Hinduism would not be affected a bit. A man can build a house for "God and guests"; to build for himself would be selfish. Therefore he erects temples as dwelling places for God.

Owing to the extreme poverty of his family, Sri Ramakrishna was obliged to become in his boyhood a priest in a temple dedicated to Divine Mother, also called Prakriti or Kali, represented by a female figure standing with feet on a male figure—indicating that until Maya lifts we can know nothing. Brahman is neuter, unknown and unknowable, but to be objectified. It covers Itself with a veil of Maya, becomes the Mother of the Universe, and so brings forth the creation. The prostrate male figure is Siva, or Brahman. Being covered by Maya He has become a corpse, sava. The Jnani or non-dualist says, "I will uncover God by force"; but the dualists says, "I will uncover God by praying to Mother, begging Her to open the door to which She alone has the key."

The daily service of the Mother Kali gradually awakened such intense devotion in the heart of the young priest that he could no longer carry on the regular temple worship ; so he abandoned his duties and retired to a small woodland in the temple compound, where he gave himself up entirely to meditation. These woods were on the bank of the river Ganges, and one day the swift current bore to his very feet just the necessary materials to build him a little hut. In this hut he stayed and wept and prayed, taking no thought for the care of his body or for aught except his Divine Mother. A relative fed him once a day and watched over him. Later came a woman Sannyasin, or ascetic, to help him find his 'Mother'. Whatever teachers he needed came to him unsought ; from every sect some holy saint came and offered to teach him, and to each he listened eagerly. But he worshipped only Mother ; all to him was Mother.

Sri Ramakrishna never spoke a harsh word against anyone. So beautifully tolerant was he that every sect thought that he belonged to them. He loved every one. To him all religions were true. He found a place for each one. He was free—but free in love, not in ‘thunder’. The mild type creates, the thundering type spreads. Paul was the thundering type to spread the light.

The age of St. Paul, however, is gone. We are to be the new lights for this age. A self-adjusting organization is the great need of our time. When we can get one, that will be the last religion of the world. The wheel of the world must revolve, and we should help it, not hinder.

*

*

*

*

The waves of religious thought rise and fall, and on the top-most wave stands the prophet of the period. Ramakrishna came to teach the religion of today—constructive, not destructive. He had to go afresh to nature to ask for facts, and he got scientific religion, which never says, “Believe,” but, “See” “I see, and you too can see.” Use the same means and you will reach the same vision. God will come to everyone, harmony is within the reach of all. Sri Ramakrishna’s teachings are the gist of Hinduism; they were not peculiar to him. Nor did he claim that they were; he cared naught for name or fame.

*

*

*

*

He began to preach when he was about forty; but he never went out to do so. He waited for those who wanted his teachings to come to him. In accordance with Hindu custom, he had been married by his parents in early youth to a little girl of five, who lived at home with her family in a distant village, unconscious of the great struggle through which her young husband was passing. When she reached maturity he was already deeply absorbed in religious devotion. She travelled on foot from her home to the temple at Dakshineswar where he was then living, and as soon as she saw him she recognized what he was ; for she herself was a great soul, pure and holy, who only desired to help his work, never to drag him down to the level of the Grihastha, the house-holder.

Sri Ramakrishna is worshipped in India as one of the great Incarnations, and his birthday is celebrated there as a religious festival.

*

*

*

*

A round stone with special marks is the emblem of Vishnu, the omnipresent, worshipped in the Shrine. Each morning a priest comes in, bathes the image, clothes it, and puts his own divine spirit into it to "make it alive". Then he worships it with flowers and other offerings, waves incense before it, and finally puts it to bed, apologizing to God for worshipping Him in that way because of his inability to conceive Him without the help of an image or some other material object.

* * * *

There is a sect which says, "It is weakness to worship only the good and the beautiful; we ought also to love and worship the hideous and the evil." This sect prevails all over Tibet and its members do not marry. In India they cannot work openly, but organize secret societies. No decent men will belong to them except sub-rosa. Thrice communism was tried in Tibet and thrice it failed. They use Tapas and with immense success, as far as power is concerned.

* Imposed * * *

Tapas means, literally "to burn". It is a kind of penance to "heat" the higher nature. It is sometimes in the form of a sunrise to sunset vow, such as repeating Om all day incessantly. Such a discipline produces a certain power that you can convert into any form you wish, spiritual or material. This idea of Tapas pervades the whole of the Hindu religion. The Hindus even say that God practised Tapas to create the world. It is a mental instrument with which you can do anything. "Everything in the three worlds can be obtained by Tapas."

* * * *

People who report about sects with which they are not in sympathy are either conscious or unconscious liars. A staunch believer in one sect can rarely see truth in others.

*

*

*

*

A great bhakta, Hanuman once said when asked what day of the month it was, "God is my eternal date ; no other date I care for."

*

*

*

*

TUESDAY, July 2nd.

(The Divine Mother)

The Saktas worship the Universal Energy as Mother ; it is the sweetest name they know. The mother is the highest ideal of womanhood in India. When God is worshipped as Mother, the Hindus call such worship the "right-hand" way, and it leads to spirituality but never to material prosperity. When God is worshipped in His terrible aspect, that is, in the "left-hand" way it leads usually to great material prosperity but rarely to spirituality ; and eventually it leads to degeneration and the obliteration of the race that practises it.

Mother is the first manifestation of power and is considered a higher idea than father. The name of mother brings the idea of Sakti, Divine energy and omnipotence, the baby believes its mother to be all-powerful, able to do anything. The Divine Mother is the Kundalini sleeping in us ; without worshipping Her we can never know ourselves. All-merciful, all-powerful, omnipresent—these are attributes of the Divine Mother. She is the sum total of the energy in the Universe. Every manifestation of power in the universe is Mother. She is Life, She is Intelligence, She is Love. She is in the universe, yet separate from it. She is a person, and can be seen and known—as Sri Ramakrishna saw and knew Her. Established in the idea of Mother, we can do anything. She quickly answers prayer.

She can show Herself to us in any form at any moment. The Divine Mother can have form, (Rupa) and name (Nama), or name without form ; and as we worship Her in these various aspects, we can rise to Pure Being, having neither form nor name.

The sum-total of all the cells in an organism is one person ; each soul is like one cell, and the sum of them is God. And beyond that is the Absolute. The sea calm is the Absolute ; the same sea in Waves is the Divine Mother. She is time, space and causation. Mother is the same as Brahman and has two natures ; the conditioned and the unconditioned. As the former She is God, nature and soul. As the latter she is unknown and unknowable. Out of the Unconditioned came the trinity, God, nature and soul—the triangle of existence. This is the Visishtadvaita idea.

A bit of Mother, a drop, was Krishna ; another was Buddha ; another was Christ. The worship of even one spark of Mother in our earthly mother leads to greatness. Worship Her if you want love and wisdom.

WEDNESDAY, July 3rd.

Generally speaking, man's religion begins with fear. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." But later comes the higher idea : "Perfect love casteth out fear." Traces of fear will remain with us until we get knowledge, know what God is. Christ, being man, had to see impurity and denounced it ; but God, infinitely higher, does not see iniquity and cannot be angry. Denunciation is never the highest. David's hands were smeared with blood ; he could not build the temple.

The more we grow in love and virtue and holiness, the more we see love and virtue and holiness outside. All condemnation of others really condemns ourselves. Adjust the microcosm—which it is in your power to do, and the macrocosm will adjust itself for you. It is like the hydrostatic paradox: one drop of water can balance the universe. We cannot see outside what we are not inside. The universe is to us what a huge engine is to a miniature engine; an indication of any error in the tiny engine leads us to imagine trouble in the huge one.

Every step that has been really gained in the world has been gained by love. Criticising can never do any good; it has been tried for thousands of years. Condemnation accomplishes nothing.

A real Vedantist must sympathize with all. Monism, or absolute oneness, is the very soul of Vedanta. Dualists naturally tend to become intolerant, to think theirs the only way. The Vaishnavas in India, who are dualists, are a most intolerant sect. Among the Saivas, another dualistic sect, the story is told of a devotee by the name of Ghantakarna, or the Bell-eared, who was so fanatical a worshipper of Siva that he did not wish even to hear the name of any other deity; so he wore two bells tied to his ears in order to drown the sound of any voice uttering other Divine names. At the sight of his intense devotion, Siva wanted to teach him that there was no difference between himself and Vishnu ; so He appeared before him as half Vishnu and half Siva. At that moment the devotee was waving incense before Him ; but so great was the bigotry of Ghantakarna that when he saw the fragrance of the incense entering the nostril of Vishnu, he thrust his finger into it to prevent the Deity from enjoying the sweet smell.

*

*

*

*

The meat-eating animal, like the lion, gives one blow and becomes still, but the patient bullock goes on all day, eating and sleeping as it walks. The "live Yankee" cannot compete with the rice-eating Chinese coolie. While military power dominates, meat-eating will prevail ; but with the advance of science fighting will grow less, and then the vegetarians will come in.

*

*

*

*

We divide ourselves into two to love God—myself loving my Self. God has created me and I have created God. We create God in our image. It is we who create Him to be our Master ; it is not God who makes us His servants. When we know that we are one with God, that we and He are friends, then come equality and freedom. So long as you hold yourself separated by a hair's breadth from this Eternal One, fear cannot go.

Never ask that foolish question : What good will our love of God do the world ? Let the world go. Love, and ask nothing ; love, and look for nothing further. Love, and forget all the "isms". Drink the cup of love and become mad. Say, "Thine, O Thine forever, O Lord !" and plunge in, forgetting all else. The very essence of God is love. Seeing a cat loving her kittens, stand and pray. God has become manifest there—literally believe this. Repeat, "I am Thine, I am Thine" ; for we can see God everywhere. Do not seek for Him, just see Him.

"May the Lord—the light of the world, the Soul of the universe—ever protect you !"

*

*

*

*

The Absolute cannot be worshipped ; so we must worship a manifestation, such a one as has our nature. Jesus had our nature ; he became the Christ : So can we and so must we. Christ and Buddha were the names of a state to be attained ; Jesus and Gautama were the persons to attain it. 'Mother' is the first and highest manifestation of the Absolute, next, the Christs and Buddhas.

We make the prison of our own environment and we strike the fetters off. The Atman is fearless. When we pray to a God outside, it is good, only we do not know what we do. When we know the Self, we understand. The highest expression of love is unification.

“ There was a time when I was a woman and he was a man ;

Still love grew until there was neither he nor I.

Only I remember faintly there was a time when there were two ;

But love came between and made them one.”

—Persian Sufi Poem.

Knowledge exists eternally and is co-existent with God. The man who discovers a spiritual law is inspired and what he says is revelation ; but revelation too is eternal, not to be crystallized as final and then blindly followed. The Hindus have been criticised so many years by their conquerors that they—the Hindus—dare to criticise their religion themselves, and this makes them free-thinkers. Their foreign rulers struck off their fetters without knowing it. The most religious people on earth, the Hindus, have actually no sense of blasphemy ; to speak of holy things in any way is to them in itself a sanctification. Nor have they any artificial respect for prophets or the scriptures, or for hypocritical piety.

The Church tries to fit Christ into it, not the Church into Christ; so only those writings were preserved that suited its purpose in hand. Thus the scriptures are not to be depended upon. Book-worship is the worst kind of idolatry to bind our feet. All have to conform to the book,—science, religion, philosophy. It is the most horrible tyranny, this tyranny of the Protestant Bible. Every man in Christian countries has a huge cathedral on his head, and on top of that a Book, and yet man lives and grows! Does not this prove that man is God?

Man is the highest being that exists, and this is the greatest world. We can have no conception of God higher than man; so our God is man and man is God. When we rise and go beyond and find something higher, we have to jump out of the mind, out of body, and the imagination, and leave this world; when we rise to be the Absolute, we are no longer in this world. Man is the apex of the only world we can ever know. All we know of animals is only by analogy; we judge them by what we do and feel ourselves.

The sum-total of knowledge is ever the same; only sometimes it is more manifested and sometimes less. The only source of it is within ; there alone it is found.

*

*

*

*

All poetry, painting, and music is feeling expressed through words, through colour, through sound.

*

*

*

*

Blessed are those upon whom their sins are quickly visited ; their account is the sooner balanced ! Woe to those whose punishment is deferred ; it is the greater !

Those who have attained sameness are said to be living in God. All hatred is killing the " Self by the self " ; therefore love is the law of life. To rise to this is to be perfect ; but the more perfect we are, the less work—so called—can we do. The Sattvikas see and know that all is mere child's play, and do not trouble themselves about anything.

It is easy to strike a blow, but tremendously hard to stay the hand, stand still, and say, " In Thee, O Lord, I take refuge," and then wait for Him to act.

FRIDAY, July 5th.

Until you are ready to change any minute for the sake of Truth, you can never see the truth ;

but you must hold fast and be steady in the search for truth.

*

*

*

*

Charvakas, a very ancient sect in India, were rank materialists. They have died out now and most of their books are lost. They claimed that the soul, being the product of the body and its forces, died with it and that there was no proof of its further existence. They denied inferential knowledge, accepting only the knowledge that comes through the senses.

*

*

*

*

Samadhi is the state in which the Divine and the human become one ; or it means " the attaining of the sameness ".

*

*

*

*

Materialism says : " The voice of freedom is a delusion." Idealism says : " The voice that tells of bondage is a delusion." Vedanta says, " You are free and not free at the same time—never free on the earthly plane, but ever free on the spiritual."

Be beyond both freedom and bondage.

We are Siva : we are immortal knowledge beyond the senses.

Infinite power is at the back of everyone ; pray to Mother, and it will come to you.

“ O Mother, Giver of Vak, eloquence ! Thou Self-existent one, come as Vak upon my lips ” (invocation).

“ Mother, whose voice is in the thunder, manifest thyself in me ! Kali, Thou time eternal, Thou force irresistible—Sakti, Power ! ”

SATURDAY, July 6th. 1895

(To-day we had Sankaracharya's commentary on Vyasa's Vedanta Sutras.)

Om Tat Sat.

According to Sankara, there are two phases of the universe : one is “ I ” and the other “ thou ” and they are as contrary as light and darkness. So it goes without saying that neither can be derived from the other. On the subject, the object has been superimposed ; the subject is the only reality, the other a mere appearance. The opposite view is untenable. Matter and the external world are but certain states of the Soul ; in reality there is only one.

All our world comes from truth and untruth coupled together. Samsara, life is the result of the contradictory forces acting upon us, like the diagonal motion of a ball in a parallelogram of forces. The world is God and is real, but that is not the way we see. Just as we see silver in the mother-of-pearl where it does not exist, so we see the relative world in God. This is what is known as adhyasa or superimposition, that is, a relative existence dependent upon a real one—as when we recall a scene we have seen before. For the time it exists for us, but that existence is not real. Or some say that it is as when we imagine water to be hot. Heat does not belong to it. It is something which has been superimposed. Thus adhyasa means, “taking a thing for what it is not”. We see Reality, but distorted by the medium through which we see It.

You can never know yourself except as objectified. When we mistake one thing for another, we always take the thing before us as the real—never the unseen. Thus we mistake the object for the subject. The Atman never becomes the object. Mind is the internal sense; the outer senses are its instruments. In the subject is a trifle of the objectifying power, which enables him to know, “I am”; but the subject is the object of its own self, never of the mind or the senses. You can, however, superimpose one idea on another idea, as when we say, “The sky is blue.” We are superimposing the idea of blueness on the idea of sky.

Science and nescience—are all that there is ; but the Self is never affected by nescience. Relative knowledge is good, because it leads to Absolute Knowledge ; but neither the knowledge of the senses, nor that of the mind, nor even of the Vedas is Truth, since they are all within the realm of relative knowledge. First get rid of the delusion, “ I am the body,” then only will we want real knowledge. Man’s knowledge is only a degree higher than brute knowledge.

* * *

One part of the Vedas deals with Karma—forms and ceremonies. The other part deals with the Knowledge of Brahman and discusses spirituality. The Vedas in this part teach of the Self, and because they do, their teaching approaches real Knowledge. Knowledge of the Absolute depends upon no book, upon nothing ; it is absolute in itself. No amount of study will give this Knowledge. It is not theory ; it is realization. Cleanse the dust from the mirror, purify your own mind, and in a flash you will know that you are Brahman.

God alone exists—not birth or death, nor pain, nor misery, nor murder, nor change, nor good, nor evil, All is Brahman. We take the “ rope for the serpent ” ; the error is ours.

We can do good only when we love God. The murderer is God ; only the mask of " murderer " is superimposed upon him. Take him by the hand and tell him the truth.

The Soul has no caste and to think It has, is a delusion ; neither has It life or death or any motion or quality. The Atman never changes, never goes or comes. It is the eternal Witness of all Its own manifestations, but we take It for the manifestation—an eternal illusion, without beginning or end, ever going on. The Vedas, however, have to come down to our level ; for if they told us the highest truth in the highest way, we could not understand it.

*

*

*

*

Heaven is mere superstition arising from desire, and desire is ever a yoke, a degeneration. Never approach anything except as God. For if we do not approach things as God, we see evil. We throw a veil of delusion over what we look at and then we see evil. Get free from these illusions. Be blessed. Freedom is to be rid of all illusions.

By Jeeva Brahmanah vana para

In one sense Brahman is known to every human being ; he knows, " I am ". But man does not know himself as he is. We all know we are, but not what we are. All lower explanations are partial truths ; but the flower, the essence of the Vedas is that the Self in each of us is Brahman. Every phenomenon is limited by birth, growth and death—appearance, continuance and disappearance. Our own realization is beyond the Vedas, because even the Vedas depend for their proof upon realisation. The highest Vedanta is the philosophy of the Beyond.

V.V. Gmp

To say that creation has any beginning is to lay the axe at the root of all philosophy.

Maya is the energy in the universe, potential and kinetic. Until Maya, the Mother releases us, we cannot get free.

The universe is ours to enjoy. But want nothing : to want is weakness. What makes us beggars, and we are sons of the King—not beggars.

SUNDAY MORNING, July 7th.

Infinite manifestation dividing itself into portions, still remains infinite, and each portion is infinite.¹

Brahman is the same though appearing in two forms : changeable and unchangeable, expressed and unexpressed. Know that the knower and the known are one. The Trinity of the knower, the known and knowing is manifesting as this universe. The God that the Yogi sees in meditation, he sees through the power of his own Self.

¹ Because the idea of division is Maya.

What we call nature, fate, is simply God's will.

So long as enjoyment is sought, bondage remains. Only imperfect being can enjoy, because enjoyment is the fulfilling of desire. The human soul enjoys nature. The underlying reality of nature, soul and God is Brahman ; but Brahman is unseen, until we bring It out. It may be brought out by Pramantha, friction, just as we can produce fire by friction. The body is the lower piece of wood, Om is the upper piece, and Dhyana (meditation) is the friction. Through friction, that is to say, meditation, that light, which is the knowledge of Brahman, will burst forth in the soul. Seek it through Tapas. Holding the body upright, sacrifice the organs of sense in the mind. The sense-centres are within, and the organs without. So drive them into the mind, and through Dharana (concentration) fix the mind in Dhyana, meditation.¹ Brahman permeates the universe as butter permeates milk ; but friction makes it manifest in one particular place. As churning brings out the butter, so Dhyana leads to the realization of Brahman in the soul.

¹ When the thought current is Interrupted, it is called concentration, when the flow is uninterrupted, it is called meditation.

All Hindu philosophy declares that there is a sixth sense, the superconscious, and through it comes inspiration.

* * * *

The universe is motion, and friction will eventually bring everything to an end. Then comes a rest, and after that all begins again.

* * * *

So long as the "skin sky" surrounds a man, that is, so long as he identifies himself with his body, he cannot see God.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

There are six schools of philosophy in India that are regarded as orthodox because they believe in the Vedas.

Vyasa's philosophy is par excellence that of the Upanishads. He wrote in Sutra form, that is, in brief algebraical symbols without nominative or verb. This caused so much ambiguity that out of the Vedanta Sutras came dualism, qualified dualism, and monism or the "roaring line of Vedanta", and all the great commentators of these different schools were at times 'conscious liars' in order to make the texts suit their philosophy.

The Upanishads contain very little history of the doings of any man ; but nearly all other Scriptures are largely personal histories. The Upanishads deal almost entirely with philosophy. Religion without philosophy runs into superstition ; philosophy without religion becomes dry atheism.

Visishtadvaita is qualified Advaita (monism). Its expounder was Ramanuja. He says, "Out of the ocean of milk of the Vedas, Vyasa has churned this butter of philosophy, in order to help mankind." He says again : "All virtues and all qualities belong to Brahma, the Lord of the universe. He is the greatest Purusha. Madhva is a thorough-going dualist or Dvaitist. He claims that even women may study the Vedas. He quotes chiefly from Puranas. He says that Brahman means Vishnu, not Siva at all, because there is no salvation except through Vishnu.

MONDAY, July 8th.

There is no place for reasoning in Madhva's explanation ; it is all taken on the authority of the Vedas.

Ramanuja says that the Vedas are the holiest study. Let the sons of the three upper castes receive the sacred thread at eight, ten, or eleven years of age and begin the study, which means going to a Guru and learning the Vedas word for word, with perfect intonation and pronunciation.

Japa is repeating the holy name. Through this the devotee rises to the Infinite. The boat of sacrifices and ceremonies is very frail; we need more than that to know Brahman, the knowledge of which alone is freedom. Freedom is nothing more than destruction of ignorance, and that can only go when we know Brahman. It is not necessary to go through all these ceremonials to reach the meaning of Vedanta. Repeating Om is enough.

Seeing difference is the cause of all misery; and ignorance is the cause of seeing difference. That is why ceremonials are not needed. They increase the idea of inequality. You practise them to get rid of something, or to obtain something.

Brahman is without action; Atman is Brahman and we are Atman—knowledge like this takes away all error. This must be heard, apprehended intellectually, and finally realized. Reflection is applying reason and establishing this knowledge in ourselves by reason. Realizing is making it a part of our lives by constant thinking of it. This constant thought, Dhyana, is like the unbroken flow of oil as it is poured from vessel to vessel ; Dhyana holds the mind to this thought day and night, and so helps us to attain to liberation. Think always, "Soham, Soham ;" this is almost as good as liberation. Say it day and night ; realization will come as the result of this continuous cogitation. This absolute and continuous remembrance of the Lord is what is meant by Bhakti.

This Bhakti is indirectly helped by good works. Good thoughts and good works create less differentiation than bad ones ; so indirectly they lead to freedom. Work, but give up the result to the Lord. Knowledge alone can make us perfect. He who follows the God of Truth with devotion—to him the God of Truth reveals Himself.

*

*

*

*

We are like a lamp and its burning is what we call life. When the supply of oxygen gives out, then the lamp must go out. All we can do is keep the lamp clean. Life is a product, a compound, and as such must resolve itself into its elements.

TUESDAY, July 9th.

Man, as Atman, is really free ; as man he is bound, changed by every physical condition. As man, he is a machine with an idea of freedom ; but this human body is the best body and the human mind the highest mind there is. When a man attains to the Atman he can take a body, making it to suit himself ; he is above law. This is a statement and must be proved. Each one must prove it for himself. We may satisfy ourselves but we cannot satisfy another.

Raja-Yoga is the only science of religion that can be demonstrated, and only what I myself have proved by experience, do I teach. The full ripeness of reason is intuition, but intuition cannot antagonize reason.

Work purifies the heart and so leads to Vidya, wisdom. The Buddhists said that doing good to men and to animals were the only works ; the brahmins said that worship and all ceremonials were equally 'work' and purified the mind. Sankara declares that all works, good and bad, are against knowledge. Actions tending to ignorance are sins, not directly, but as causes, because they tend to increase Tamas and Rajas. With Sattva only, comes wisdom. Virtuous deeds take off the veil from Knowledge, and Knowledge alone can make us see God.

Knowledge can never be created ; it can only be discovered ; and every man who makes a great discovery is inspired. When it is a spiritual truth he brings, we call him a prophet, and when it is on the physical plane, we call him a scientific man ; and we attribute more importance to the former, although the source of all truth is One.

Sankara says that Brahman is the essence, the reality of all knowledge, and that all manifestations, such as knower, knowing, and known—are mere imaginings in Brahman. Ramanuja attributes consciousness to God ; the real monists attribute nothing, not even existence whatever meaning we may attach to it. Ramanuja declares that God is the essence of conscious knowledge. Undifferentiated consciousness, when differentiated, becomes the world.

*

*

*

*

Buddhism, one of the most philosophical religions in the world, spread all through the populace, the common people of India. What a wonderful culture there must have been among the Aryans twenty-five hundred years ago, if they were able to grasp such ideas !

Buddha was the only great Indian philosopher who would not recognise caste; and very few of his followers remains in India. All the other philosophers pandered more or less to social prejudices, no matter how high they soared, still a bit of the vulture remained in them. As my Master used to say, "The vulture soars high out of sight in the sky, but his eye is ever on a bit of carrion on the earth."

*

*

*

*

The ancient Hindus were wonderful scholars, veritable living encyclopædias. They said, "Knowledge in books and money in other people's hands are like no knowledge and no money at all."

Sankara was regarded by many as an Incarnation of Siva.

WEDNESDAY, July 10th.

There are sixty-five million Mohammedans in India, some of them Sufis. The Sufis identify man with God, and through them this idea came into Europe. They say, "I am that Truth"; but they have an esoteric as well as an exoteric doctrine, although Mohammed himself did not hold it.

'Hashshashin' has been derived from assassin,¹ because the old sects of Mohammedans killed non-believers as a part of their creed.

The Mohammedans at the time of worship must have a pitcher of water as a symbol of Gods filling the universe.

The Hindus believe that there will be ten Divine Incarnations. Nine have been and the tenth is still to come.

*

*

*

*

Sankara sometimes resorts to sophistry in order to prove that the ideas in the vedas go to uphold his philosophy. Buddha was more brave and sincere than any teacher. He said : " Believe no book ; the Vedas are all humbug. If they agree with me, so much the better for the books. I am the greatest book. Sacrifice and prayer are useless." Buddha was the first human being to give to the world a complete system of morality. He did good for good's sake ; he loved for love's sake.

Sankara says that God is to be reasoned about because the Vedas say so. Reason helps the scriptures and ones own realization—both are proofs of God's existence. The Vedas are, according to him, a sort of embodiment of universal knowledge. The proof of the Vedas is that they were brought forth by Brahman, and the proof of Brahman is that Brahman alone could give out such wonderful books. The Vedas are the mine of all knowledge and they have come out of Brahman as the breaths come out of a man. Therefore we know that He is infinite in power and knowledge. He may or may not have created the world—that is a trifle. To have produced the Vedas is more important ! The world has come to know God through the Vedas. No other way there is. And so universal is this belief held by Sankara in the all-inclusiveness of Vedas, that there is even a Hindu proverb, that if a man loses his cow, he goes to the Vedas to look for her !

¹ The name of a military and religious Order existing in Syria in the 11th century famous for the number of secret murders committed by its members in obedience to the will of their chief. The literal meaning of the word is "Hashish-eater," and was applied to the Order because of their habitual use of this special drug to fortify the murderers for their task.

Sankara further affirms that obedience to ceremonial is not Knowledge. Knowledge of God is independent of moral duty, or sacrifice, or ceremonial, or what we think or do not think, just as the stump is not affected when one man takes it for a ghost and another sees it as it is.

The knowledge of Vedanta is necessary because neither reasoning nor books can show us

God. He is only to be realized by superconscious perception and Vedanta teaches how to attain that. You must get beyond the Personal God (Isvara), and reach the Absolute. Brahman alone is perceived by every being. It is all there is to be perceived. That which says "I" is Brahman; but although we day and night perceive It, we do not know that we are perceiving It. As soon as we become aware of this truth, all misery goes. So we must get Knowledge of the Truth. Reach unity; no more will duality come. But Knowledge does not come through sacrifice, but by seeking, worshipping, knowing the Atman.

*

*

*

*

Brahmavidya, the Knowledge of Brahman, is the higher knowledge; the lower knowledge is science. This is the teaching of the Mundakopani-shad, or the Upanishad for Sanyasins. There are two sorts of knowledge; principal and secondary. The unessential is that part of the Vedas which deals with worship and ceremonial, also all secular knowledge. The essential is that by which we reach the Absolute. The Absolute creates everything from Itself; there is no other cause, nothing outside. Brahman is all energy; It is all there is. He who makes all sacrifices to the Self, the Atman, he alone knows Brahman. Fools think external worship the highest ; fools think works can give us God. Only those who go through the Sushumna, the 'path' of the Yogis reach the Atman. They must go to a Guru to learn. Each part has the same nature as the whole ; all springs from the Atman. The soul is the arrow, and Om is the bow which speeds the arrow to its mark, the Atman. As finite beings, we can never express the Infinite ; but we are the Infinite. Knowing this we argue with no one.

Divine wisdom is to be got by devotion, meditation, and chastity. "Truth alone triumphs, and not untruth." Through truth alone the way is spread to Brahman, where dwell love and truth.

THURSDAY, July 11th.

Without mother-love no creation could continue. Nothing is entirely physical, nor yet entirely metaphysical ; one presupposes the one and explains the other. All Theists agree that there is a background to this visible universe ; they differ as to the nature or character of that background. Materialists say there is no background.

In all religions the superconscious state is identical. Hindus, Christians, Mohammedans, Buddhists, and even those of no creed, all have the very same experience when they transcend the body.

*

*

*

*

The purest Christianity in the world was established in India by the Apostle Thomas about twenty-five years after the death of Jesus. This was while the Anglo-Saxons were still savages, painting their bodies and living in caves. The Christians in India once numbered about three millions, but now there are about one million.

Christianity is often propagated by the sword. How surprising that the disciples of such a gentle soul should kill so much! The three missionary religions are the Buddhism, Mohammedanism and Christianity. The three older ones, Hinduism, Judaism and Zoroastrianism—never sought to make converts. Buddhists never killed, but at one time converted three-quarters of the world by pure gentleness.

The Buddhists were the most logical agnostics. You can really stop nowhere between nihilism and non-dualism. The Buddhists were intellectually all-destroyers, carrying their theory to its logical conclusion. The Advaitists also worked out their theory to its logical conclusion and reached the Absolute, the one, homogeneous, Unitary Substance, out of which all phenomena are being manifested. Both Buddhists and Advaitists have a feeling of identity and non-identity at the same time; one of these feelings must be false and the other true. The Buddhist-nihilist describes non-identity¹ as reality; the Advaitists describe identity² as reality; and this is the fight which occupies the whole world. This is the tug-of-war.

The Advaitists ask: How does the nihilist get any idea of identity?³ How does the revolving light appear as a circle? A state of rest alone explains motion. The existence of an indivisible reality behind phenomena must be admitted. The nihilist calls this a delusion, but can never explain the genesis of the delusion. Neither can the Advaitists explain how the One becomes the many. The explanation can come only from beyond the sense plane. We must rise to the super-conscious, to a state entirely beyond sense 1 i. e. unrelated sensations.

2 i. e. the oneness of existence.

3 The Buddhist idealist (called nihilist by Sankara) accepts sensations alone as real. He gives the example of a stick one end of which is burning, when the stick is whirled about, the point of fire creates the illusion of a circle. Likewise, sensation, moved by the wind of desire, creates the illusion of names and forms.

perception. That inexplicable power by which we can go beyond phenomena, Advaitists alone can use. He can experience the Absolute. The man Vivekananda can resolve himself into the Absolute and then come back to the man again. For him primarily, then, the problem is solved, and secondarily for others ; for he can show the way to others. Religion begins where philosophy ends.

The good to the world, through such realisation is that what is now the superconscious, will in ages to come be the conscious for all. Religion is therefore the highest task the world has ; and because man has unconsciously felt this, he has clung through all the ages to the idea of religion.

Religion, the great milch cow, has given many kicks—but never mind—it gives a great deal of milk. The milkman does not mind the kick of the cow which gives much milk.

The Sanskrit drama Prabodha Chandrodaya records the fight between two kings, Delusion and Discrimination. King Discrimination could not gain a complete victory. At last he was reunited with the Goddess Upanishad. A son was born to them called Prabodha, knowledge. Through the influence of this boy they could not look upon anyone as an enemy. Consequently they spent their days in great happiness. We too must beget a glorious son like Prabodha, knowledge. We must nourish him and help him to grow. Thus he will become a great hero.

Love concentrates all the power of the will without effort, as when a man and woman falls in love. The path of devotion is natural and pleasant. Philosophy is taking the mountain stream back to its source by force. It is a quicker method but very hard. Philosophy says, "Control everything." Devotion says, "Float with the stream; have eternal self-surrender." It is a longer way, but easier and happier.

"Thine am I for ever. Henceforth whatever I do, it is Thou doing it; no more is there any 'me' or 'mine'"—thus says the devotee. Further: "Having no money to give, no brains to learn with, no time to practise Yoga, to Thee, O sweet One, I give myself—to Thee my body and mind."

No amount of ignorance or wrong ideas can put a barrier between the soul and God. Even if there be no God, still hold fast to love. It is better to die seeking a God than as a dog seeking only carrion. Choose the highest ideal and give your life up to that. Death being so certain, it is the highest thing to give up life for a great purpose.

Love will painlessly lead to philosophy ; then, after knowledge, comes Parabhakti, supreme devotion.

Knowledge is critical and makes a great fuss over everything ; but love says, " God will show His real nature to me," and accepts all.

RABBIA

Rabbia, sick upon her bed,
By two saints was visited —

Holy Malik, Hassan wise,
Men of mark in Moslem eyes.

Hassan said, " Whose prayer is pure,
Will God's chastisements endure."

Malik, from a deeper sense Uttered his experience :

" He who loves his Master's choice
Will in chastisement rejoice,"

Rabbia saw some selfish will
In their maxims lingering still,

And replied, " O men of grace,
He who sees his Master's face

Will not in his prayers recall
That he is chastised at all."

—Persian Poem

FRIDAY, July 12th.

(Sankara's Commentary)

Fourth Vyasa-Sutra : " Atman or Brahman is the purport of all Vedantic texts ".

Isvara is to be known from the Vedanta ; all Vedas point to Him who is the cause—the creator, preserver and destroyer. Isvara is the unification of Trinity, known as Brahman, Vishnu and Siva, who stand at the head of the Hindu Pantheon.

The Vedas cannot show you Brahman. You are That already. They can only help to take away the veil that hides the truth from our eyes. The first veil to vanish is ignorance ; and when that is gone, sin goes ; next desire ceases, selfishness ends, and all misery disappears. This cessation of ignorance can come only when I know that God and I are one. In other words, identify yourself with the Atman, not with human limitations. Dis-identify yourself with the body, and all pain will cease. This is the secret of healing . The universe is a case of hypnotization; de-hypnotize yourself and cease to suffer.

In order to be free we have to pass through vice to virtue, and then get rid of both. Tamas is to be conquered by Rajas ; both are to be submerged in Sattva. Then go beyond the three qualities. Reach a state where your very breathing is a prayer.

Whenever you learn, that is to say, gain anything from another man's words, know that you had the experience in a previous existence, because experience is the only teacher.

With all powers comes misery ; so kill desire. Fulfilling any desire is like putting a stick into a hornets' nest. Vairagya is finding out that desires are but gilded balls of poison.

"Mind is not God" says Sankara. "Tat tvam asi", "Aham Brahmasmi" — "That thou art". "I am Brahman." When a man realizes this, all the knots of his heart are cut asunder, all his doubts vanish. Fearlessness is not possible as long as we have even God over us ; we must be God. What is disjoined will remain forever disjoined ; if you are separate from God, you can never be one with Him, and vice versa. If by virtue you are joined to God when that ceases, disjunction will come. The junction of man and God is eternal, and virtue only helps to remove the veil. We are azad (free) ; we must realize it. The Upanishad says, "The Self is only attained by him whom the self chooses." This means that we are the Self and we choose ourselves.

Does seeing depend upon our own efforts or does it depend upon something outside? It depends upon ourselves; our efforts take off the dust; the mirror does not change.

There is neither knower, knowing, nor known. "He who knows that he does not know, knows it." He who has only a theory knows nothing.

The idea that we are bound is indeed an illusion.

Religion is not of this world; it is heart-cleaning, and its effect on this world is secondary. Freedom is inseparable from the nature of the Atman, which is ever pure, ever perfect, ever unchangeable. This Atman you can never know. We can say nothing about the Atman but "Not this, not this". Neti Neti

"Brahman is that which we can never drive out by any power of mind or imagination" (Sankara).

*

*

*

*

The universe is thought, and the Vedas are the words expressing this thought. We can create and uncreate this whole universe. Through the repeating of words the unseen thought is aroused, and as a result, a seen effect is produced—this is the claim of a certain sect of Karmis. They think that each one of us is a creator. Pronounce the words, and the thought which corresponds to them will arise and the result will become visible. "Thought is the power of the word, the word is the expression of the thought," say Mimansakas, a Hindu philosophical sect.

SATURDAY, July 13th

Everything we know is a compound and all sense-knowledge comes through analysis. To think that mind is simple, single or independent, is dualism. Philosophical wisdom is not obtained through studying books; the more you read the more muddled you become. Superficial philosophers thought that the mind was an uncompounded substance and this led them to believe in free-will. Psychology, the analysis of the mind, shows the mind to be a compound, and every compound must be held together by some outside force : so the will which is an aspect of the mind is held together by a combination of outside forces. Man cannot even will to eat unless he is hungry. The will is subject to desire. Still we are free ; everyone feels it.

The agnostic says this idea of freedom is a delusion. But how do you prove the world ? Its only proof is that we all see it and feel it. So, just as much, we all feel freedom. If the universal consensus affirms this world, it also affirms freedom. But freedom is not of the will, as we see it. The inherent belief of man in freedom is the basis of all reasoning. Freedom means freedom of the will, as it was before it became bound. The idea of free will is demonstrated every moment by man's struggle against bondage. That alone can be free which is one—the Unconditioned, the Infinite, the Unlimited. Freedom in man is now a mere memory, an attempt towards freedom.

Everything in the universe is struggling to complete a circle to return to its source, to return to its only real source, the Atman. The search for happiness is a struggle to find the balance, to restore the equilibrium. Morality is the struggle of the bound will to get free and is the proof that we have come from perfection.

*

*

*

*

The idea of duty is the midday sun of misery scorching the very soul. "O king, drink this one drop of nectar and be happy." ("I am not the doer,"—this is the nectar.)

Let there be action without reaction. Action is pleasant; all misery is reaction. The child puts its hand in the flame. That is pleasure. But when its body reacts, then comes the pain of burning. When we can stop that reaction, then we have nothing to fear. Control the brain, and do not let it read the record ; be the witness, and do not react. Only thus can you be happy. The happiest moments we ever know are when we entirely forget ourselves. Work of your own free will, not from duty. We have no duty. This world is just a gymnasium in which we play ; our life is an eternal holiday.

The whole secret of existence is to have no fear. Never fear what will become of you ; depend on no one. Only the moment you reject all help are you free. The full sponge can absorb no more.

*

*

*

*

Even fighting in self-defence is wrong, though it is higher than fighting in aggression. There is no 'righteous' indignation, because indignation comes from not recognizing sameness in all things.

SUNDAY, July 14th.

Philosophy in India means that through which we see God ; it is the rationale of religion ; so no Hindu would ever ask for a link between religion and philosophy.

Concrete, generalized, and abstract are the three stages in the process of philosophy. The highest abstraction in which all things are harmonised, is the One. In religion we have, first, symbols and forms, next mythology, and last, philosophy. The first two serve a temporary purpose. Philosophy is the underlying basis of all and the others are only stepping stones in the struggle to reach the Ultimate.

In Christianity the idea is that without the New Testament and Christ there could be no religion and a similar belief exists in Judaism with regard to Moses and the Prophets—because these religions are dependent upon mythology only. Real religion, the highest, rises above mythology; it can never rest upon that. Modern science has really made the foundations of religion strong. That the whole universe is one, is scientifically demonstrable. What the metaphysicians call 'being', the physicist calls 'matter', but there is no real fight between the two, for they are one. Though an atom is invisible, unthinkable, yet in it are the whole power and potency of the universe. That is exactly what the Vedantist says of the Atman. All sects are really saying the same thing in different words.

Vedanta and modern science both posit a self-evolving Cause. In it exist all subsidiary causes. Take for example the potter shaping a pot. The potter is the primal cause, the clay the material cause, and the wheel the instrumental cause ; but the Atman is all three. The Atman is cause and manifestation too. The Vedantist says that the universe is not real, it is only apparent. Nature is God seen through the veil of nescience. The Pantheists say that God has become Nature or this world ; the Advaitists affirm that God is appearing as this world, but He is not this world.

We can only know an experience as a mental process, a fact in the mind as well as a mark in the brain. We cannot push the brain back or forward, but we can the mind ; it can stretch over all time past, present, and future. So facts in the mind are eternally preserved. All facts are already generalized in mind, which is omnipresent.¹

Kant's great achievement was the discovery that 'time, space and causation are modes of thought', but Vedanta taught this ages ago and

I Since the entire creation existing in space, time and causation can never exist beyond mind or memory, manifesting itself as thinking, feeling and willing, therefore the whole of space, time and causation must exist in it. Hence mind is omnipresent. The individual mind is a portion of the omnipresent or universal mind almost shut up in a body like a gulf or a bit of the ocean mostly surrounded by land with only a narrow opening which joins it to the ocean.

called it "Maya." Schopenhauer stands on reason only and rationalizes the Vedas.

Sankara maintained the orthodoxy of the Vedas.

"Treeness" or the idea of tree, discovered by looking at trees, is knowledge, and the highest knowledge is the knowledge of the One.

The Personal God is the last generalization of the universe—only hazy, not clear-cut and philosophic.

Unity is self-evolving, out of it everything comes.

Physical science wants to find out facts ; metaphysics is the thread to bind these flowers into a bouquet. Every abstraction is metaphysical even putting manure at the root of a tree involves a process of abstraction.

Religion includes the concrete, the more generalized and the ultimate unity. Do not stick to particularizations. Get to the principle, to the One.

*

*

*

*

Devils are machines of darkness, angels are machines of light ; but both are machines. Man alone is not a machine. Destroy the machine idea ; feel you are superior to both angels and devils, then alone you can become free. This is the only world where man can work out his salvation.

“Whom the Self chooses,” is true. Election is true ; but explain it as an inner experience. As an external and fatalistic doctrine, it is horrible.

MONDAY, July 15th. 1895

Where there is polyandry, as in Tibet, women are physically stronger than the men. When the English go there, these women carry large men up the mountains.

In Malabar although naturally polyandry does not exist there, the women lead in everything. Exceptional cleanliness is apparent everywhere, and there is the greatest impetus to learning. When I myself was in that country, I met many women who spoke good Sanskrit, while in the rest of India not one woman in a million can speak it. Freedom elevates and servitude debases. Malabar has never been conquered either by the Portugese, or by the Mussalmans.

The Dravidians were a non-Aryan race of Central Asia, who preceded the Aryans, and those of Southern India were the most civilized. Women with them stood higher than men. They subsequently divided, some going to Egypt, others to Babylonia, and the rest remaining in India.

Please Note

TUESDAY, July 16th. 1895

(Sankara)

Adrishtam, the "unseen cause,"¹ leads us to the performance of sacrifice and worship, which in turn produce seen results. But in order to attain liberation we must first hear about Brahman, then think or reason, and then meditate upon Brahman.

The result of works and the result of knowledge are two different things. "Do," and "Do not do," are the foundation of all morality, but they really belong to the body and the mind. All happiness and misery are inextricably connected with the senses, and body is necessary to experience them. The higher the body, the higher the standard of virtue. Upto Brahma all have bodies. As long as there is a body, there must be pleasure and pain ; only when one has got rid of the body can one escape them. The "Atman is bodiless", says Sankara.

No law can make you free ; you are free. Nothing can give you freedom, if you have it not already. The Atman is self-illuminated. Cause and effect do not reach there. And this luminosity is freedom. Beyond what was, or is to be is Brahman. As an effect, freedom would have no value; it would be a compound, and as such would contain the seeds of bondage. Freedom is the one real thing—not to be attained, but forms the real thing—not to be attained, but the real nature of the soul.

1 According to the Vedic mystics the oblations offered at the sacrifice are transformed into adrishtam or an unseen factor, which produces a tangible result.

Work and worship, however, are necessary to take away the veil, to lift off the bondage and illusion. They do not give us freedom; but all the same without effort on our own part, we do not open our eyes and see what we are. Sankara says further that Advaita-Vedanta is the crowning glory of the Vedas. But the other systems of vedanta are also necessary, because they teach work and worship, and through these many come to the Lord. Some may come without any help but Advaita. Work and worship lead to the same result as Advaita.

Books cannot teach God, but they can destroy ignorance; their action is negative. To have held to the books and at the same time opened the way to freedom was Sankara's great achievement. But to accomplish this he had to indulge in hair-splitting arguments. Give man first the concrete, then raise him to the highest by slow degrees. This is the effort of the various religions, and justifies their existence and explain how each is suited to some stage of development. The very books are a part of the ignorance they help to dispel. Their duty is to drive out the ignorance that has come upon knowledge. "Truth shall drive out untruth." You are free, you cannot be made so.

The end of the world

So long as you have a creed, you have no God. "He who knows he knows, knows nothing." Who can know the Knower? There are two eternal facts in existence, God and the universe—the former unchangeable, the latter changeable. The world exists eternally. Where your mind cannot grasp the amount of change, you call it eternity. You see the stone or the bas-relief on it, but not both at once. Yet both are one.

* * * *

Can you make yourself at rest even for a second? All Yogis say that you can.

* * * *

The greatest sin is to think yourself weak. No one is greater. Realize that you are Brahman. Nothing has power except what you give it. We are beyond the sun, the stars, the universe. Teach the Godhood of man. Deny evil, create none. Stand up and say, "I am the master—the master of all." We forge the chain and we alone can break it.

No action can give you freedom ; only knowledge can make you free. Knowledge is irresistible ; the mind cannot take it or reject it. When it comes, the mind has to accept it ; so it is not a work of the mind, but its expression comes through the mind.

Work and worship brings you back to your own nature. Through illusion the Self is identified with the body ; so even while living in the body, we can be free. The body has nothing in common with the Self. Illusion means to take the unreal for the real—not “nothing at all”.

WEDNESDAY, July 17th.

Ramanuja divides the universe into Chit, Achit and Isvara—Soul, Nature and God ; conscious, the subconscious and the superconscious. Sankara, on the contrary, says that Chit, the soul, is the same as God. God is truth, is knowledge, is infinity ; these are not qualities. Any thought is God is a qualification, and all that can be said of him ; “Om tat sat.”

Sankara further asks : Can you see existence separate from everything else ? Where is the differentiation between two objects ? Not in sense perception ; else all would be one in it. We have to perceive in sequence. In order to know what a thing is, we also have to know what it is not. The differentiae are in the memory and are known by comparison with what is stored there. Difference is not in the nature of a thing ; it is in the brain. Homogeneous oneness is outside, differentiae are inside in the mind. So the idea of 'many' is the creation of the mind.

Differentiae become qualities when they are separate but joined in one object. We cannot say positively what differentiation is. All that we see and feel about things is pure and simple existence, "isness". All else is in us. Being is the only positive proof we have of anything. All differentiation is really secondary reality like the snake in the rope—because the serpent too has a certain reality in that something is seen although misapprehended. When the knowledge of the rope becomes negative, the knowledge of the snake becomes positive and vice versa ; but the fact that you see only one of them does not prove that the other is non-existent. The idea of the world is an obstruction covering the idea of God and is to be removed ; but it does have an existence.

Sankara says, again, that perception is the final proof of existence. It is self-effulgent and self-luminous, because to go beyond the senses we should still need perception. Perception is independent of the senses, and all other instruments ; it is unconditioned. There can be no perception without consciousness. Perception has self-luminosity, whose partial manifestation is called consciousness. Not one act of perception can be unconscious ; in fact, consciousness is the nature of perception. Existence and perception are one thing, not two things joined together. That which needs no cause is infinite ; so as perception is the final proof of itself, it is infinite. It is always subjective ; perception itself is its own perceiver. Perception is not in the mind, but perception creates mind. It is absolute, the only knower ; so perception is really the Atman. Perception itself perceives, but the Atman cannot be a knower, because a knower becomes such by the action of knowledge. But Sankara says that this Atman is not 'I', because the consciousness 'I am' (Aham) is not in the Atman. We are but the reflections of that Atman ; and Atman and Brahman are one.

When you talk and think of the Absolute, you have to do it in the relative ; all these logical arguments apply there. In Yoga, perception and realization are one. Visishtadvaita, of which Ramanuja is the exponent, means seeing partial unity and is a step toward Advaita. 'Visishta' means differentiation. Prakriti is the nature of the world and change comes upon it. Changeful thoughts expressed in changeful words can never prove the Absolute. You reach only something that is minus certain qualities, not Brahman Itself—only a verbal unification, the highest abstraction, but not the non-existence of the relative.

THURSDAY, July 18th.

(The lesson to-day was mainly Sankara's argument against the conclusions of the Sankhya philosophy.)

The Sankhya says that consciousness is a compound, and beyond that, the last analysis gives us the Purusha, the Witness ; but there are many Purushas ; each of us is one. Advaita, on the contrary, affirms that Purushas can be only One. That Purusha cannot be conscious, unconscious or have any qualification ; for these qualities would bind It and they would eventually cease. So the One must be without any qualities, even knowledge ; and it cannot be the cause of the universe or of anything. "In the beginning there was existence only, One without a second," says the Vedas.

The presence of Sattva with knowledge does not prove that Sattva is the cause of knowledge ; on the contrary, Sattva calls out what was already existing in man, as fire heats an iron ball placed near it by arousing the heat latent in it and not by entering into the ball.

Sankara says that knowledge is not a bondage, because it is the nature of God. The world ever is, whether manifested or unmanifested ; so an eternal object exists.

God is Jnana-bala-kriya—knowledge, power, activity. He does not need form, because only the finite needs form to interpose as an obstruction to catch and hold infinite knowledge ; but God really needs no such help. There is no transmigrating soul ; there is only one Atman, The Jiva the individual soul is the conscious ruler of this body in whom the five life principles are unified, and yet that very Jiva is the Atman, because all is Atman. What you think about it is your delusion and not in the Jiva. You are God, and whatever else you may think is wrong. You must worship the Self in Krishna, not Krishna as Krishna. Only by worshipping the Self can freedom be won. Even the Personal God is but the Self objectified. “An intense search after one’s own reality is bhakti,” says Sankara.

All the means we take to reach God are true ; it is only like trying to find the pole star by locating it through the stars that are around it.

*

*

*

*

The Bhagavad Gita is the best authority on Vedanta.

FRIDAY, July 19th.

So long as I am conscious of " I ", and " you ", I have the right to speak of a God protecting us. So long as I see differentiation, I must take all the consequences. If I admit this existence of " I " and " you ", I must also admit the existence of the third, the ideal which stands between us. The ideal is the apex of the triangle. The vapour becomes snow, then water, then Ganges ; but when it is vapour, there is no Ganges, and when it is water, we think of no vapour in it. The idea of creation or change is inseparably connected with will. So long as we perceive this world in motion, we have to conceive a will behind it. Physics proves the utter delusion of the senses : nothing really is as we see, hear, feel, smell or taste it. Certain vibrations producing certain results affect our senses ; We know only relative truth.

The Sanskrit word for truth is Sat " isness ".

From our present standpoint this world appears to us as will and consciousness. Personal God is as real as we are ourselves, and no more. God can also be seen as a form, just as we are seen. As men, we must have a God : as God, we need no one. This is why Sri Ramakrishna constantly saw the Divine Mother present with him, more real than any other thing around him ; but in Samadhi all disappeared but the Self. The Personal God comes nearer and nearer until He melts away and there is no more Personal God and no more "I" ; all is merged in the Self.

The argument from design claims that intelligence precedes form ; but if intelligence is the cause of anything, it itself is in its turn an effect. This is Maya. God creates us and we create God, and this is Maya. [The circle is unbroken : mind creates body and body creates mind ; the egg brings the chicken, the chicken the egg ; the tree the seed, the seed the tree. The world is neither entirely differentiated nor you entirely homogeneous. Man is free and must rise above both sides. Both are right in their places ; but to know truth, "isness", we must transcend all that we now know of existence, will, consciousness, doing, going, knowing.]

There is no real individuality of the Jiva, the embodied soul ; as a compound, it will eventually go to pieces. Only that which is beyond further analysis is simple, and that alone is truth, freedom, immortality, bliss. All struggles for the preservation of this illusive individuality are really vices. All struggles to lose this individuality are virtues. Everything in the universe is trying to break down this individuality, either consciously or unconsciously. All morality is based upon the destruction of separateness or false individuality, because that is the cause of all sin. Morality exists first, later religion codifies it. Customs come first, and then mythology follows to explain them. While things are happening, they come by a higher law than reasoning, reasoning arises later in the attempt to understand them. It is not the cause ; it is merely "chewing the cud" afterwards. Reason is the historian of the actions of the human being.

INSPIRED TALKS

*

*

*

*

Buddha was a great Vedantist—for Buddhism was really only an offshoot of Vedanta, and Sankara is often called a 'hidden Buddhist'. Buddha made the analysis ; Sankara made the synthesis out of it. Buddha never bowed down to anything—neither Veda, nor caste, nor priest, nor custom. He fearlessly reasoned so far as reason could take him. Such a fearless search for truth and such love for every living thing, the world has never seen. Buddha was the Washington of the religious world; he conquered a throne only to give it to the world, as Washington did to the American people. He sought nothing for himself.

SATURDAY, July 20th.

Perception is our only knowledge or real religion. Talking about our soul for ages will never make us know it. There is no difference between theories and atheism. In fact, the atheist is the truer man. Every step I take in the light is mine for ever. When you go to a country and see it, then it is yours. We have each to see for ourselves. Teachers can only bring the food; we must eat it to be nourished. Argument can never prove God save as a logical conclusion.

It is impossible to find God outside of ourselves. Our own souls contribute all the divinity that is outside us. We are the greatest temple. The objectification is only a faint imitation of what we see within ourselves.

Concentration of the powers of the mind is our only instrument to help us see God. If you know one soul—your own—you know all souls, past, present and to come. The will concentrates the mind; certain things excite and control this will, such as reason, love, devotion, and breathing. The concentrated mind is a lamp that shows us every corner of the soul.

No one method can suit all. These different methods are not steps necessary to be taken one after another. Ceremonials are the lowest forms, next God external, and after that God internal. In some cases gradation may be needed, but in many only one way is required. It would be the height of folly to say to everyone, "You must pass through Karma and Bhakti before you can reach Jnana."

Stick to your reason until you reach something higher, and you will know it to be higher because it will not jar with reason. The stage beyond consciousness is inspiration (Samadhi), but never mistake hysterical trances for the real thing. It is a terrible thing to claim this inspiration falsely, to mistake instinct for inspiration. There is no external test for inspiration; we know it ourselves. Our guard against mistake is negative; the voice of reason. All religion means going beyond reason, but the reason is the only guide to get there. Instinct is like ice, reason is the water, and inspiration is like the subtlest form or vapour ; one follows the other. Everywhere is this eternal sequence ; unconsciousness, consciousness, intelligence ; matter, body, mind ; and to us it seems as if the chain began with the particular link we first lay hold of. According to some, the body creates the mind ; according to others, the mind, the body. The arguments on both sides are of equal weight and both are true. We must go beyond both, to where there is neither the one nor the other. These successions are all Maya.

Religion is above reason—supernatural. Faith is not belief, it is the grasp on the Ultimate, an illumination. First hear, then reason and find out all that reason can give about the Atman ; let the flood of reason flow over It, then take what remains. If nothing remains, thank God you have escaped a superstition. When you have determined that nothing can take away the Atman, it stands every test, hold fast to this and teach it to all. Truth cannot be your monopoly ; it is for the good of all. Finally, in perfect peace meditate upon it, concentrate your mind upon It, make yourself one with It. Then no speech is needed ; silence will carry the truth. Do not spend your energy in talking but meditate in silence ; and do not let the rush of the outside world disturb you. When your mind is in the highest state, you are unconscious of it. Accumulate power in silence, and become a dynamo of spirituality. What can a beggar give? Only a king can give and he only when he wants nothing himself.

*

*

*

*

Hold your money merely as custodian for what is God's. Have no attachment to it. Let name and fame and money go; they are a terrible bondage. Feel the wonderful atmosphere of freedom. You are free, free, free! "Oh, blessed am I! Freedom am I! I am the Infinite! In my soul I can find no beginning and no end. All is my Self." Say this unceasingly.

SUNDAY, July 21st.

(Patanjali's Yoga Aphorisms.)

Yoga is the science of restraining the Chitta, mind, from breaking into Vrittis, modifications. The mind is a mixture of sensations and feelings, or action and reaction; so it cannot be permanent. The mind has a fine body, and through this it works on the gross body. Vedanta says that behind the mind is the real Self. It accepts the other two, the body and the mind, but posits a third, the Self the eternal, the ultimate, the final conclusion of analysis, the indivisible unit, where there is no further compound. Birth is re-composition, death is de-composition, and the final analysis is where Atman is found. There being no further division possible, the perdurable is reached.

Akheunda

The whole ocean is present at the back of each wave, and all manifestations are waves—some very big, some small. Yet all are the ocean in their essence—the whole ocean; but as waves each is a part. When the waves are stilled, then all is one—"a spectator without a spectacle". says Patanjali. When the mind is active, the Atman is mixed up with it.

The repetition of old forms in quick succession is memory.

Be unattached. Knowledge is power; when you get knowledge you get power. By knowledge you can even banish the material world. When you can mentally get rid of one quality after another from any object, until all are gone, you can at will make the object itself disappear from your consciousness.

Those who are ready advance very quickly and can become Yogis in six months. The less developed may take several years; and anyone, by faithful work and by giving up everything else and devoting himself solely to practice, can reach the goal in twelve years. Bhakti will bring you there without any of these mental gymnastics; but it is a slower way.¹

Isvara is the Atman as seen or grasped by mind. His highest name is Om; so repeat it, meditate on it and think of its wonderful nature and attributes. Repeating the Om continually is the only true worship. It is not a word, it is God Himself.

Religion gives you nothing new; it only takes off obstacles and lets you see your Self. Sickness is the first great obstacle: a healthy body is the best instrument. Melancholy is an almost insuperable barrier. If you have once known Brahman, never again can you be in—melancholy. Doubt, want of perseverance and mistaken ideas, are other obstacles.

*

*

*

*

The Pranas are subtle energies, sources of motion. There are ten in all, five primary and five secondary. One great current flows upward, and the other downward. Pranayama means controlling 1 Here by bhakti swamiji does not mean intense or undivided love for God. He has already taught, "Extreme love and highest knowledge are one," and again in defining it he says, "This absolute and continuous remembrance of the Lord is what is meant by bhakti." So by bhakti he means here, love which is not yet whole-souled.

the Pranas through breathing. Breath is the fuel, Prana is the steam, and the body is the engine. Pranayama has three parts—puraka or in-breathing, kumbhaka or holding the breath, and rechaka or out-breathing.

*

*

*

*

The Guru is the conveyance through which the spiritual influence is brought to you. Anyone can teach, but the spirit is transmitted only by the Guru to the Sishya, the disciple, and that will fructify. The relation between Sishyas is that of brotherhood, and this is actually accepted by law in India. The Guru passes the thought-power, the mantra, that he has received from those before him; and nothing can be done without a Guru—in fact, great danger ensues. Usually, without a Guru these Yoga practices lead to lust; but with one, this seldom happens. Each Ishta has a mantra. The Ishta is the ideal peculiar to the particular worshipper; the mantra is the external word to express it. Constant repetition of the word helps to fix the ideal firmly in the mind. This method of worship prevails among religious devotees all over India.

TUESDAY, July 23rd.

(Bhagavad Gita : Karma Yoga.)

To attain liberation through work, join yourself to work, but without desire, looking for no result. Such work leads to knowledge, which in turn brings emancipation. To give up work before you know, leads to misery. Work done for the Self creates no bondage. Neither desire pleasure, nor fear, pain from work. It is the mind and body that work—not I. Tell yourself this unceasingly and realize it. Try not to feel that you work.

Do all as a sacrifice or offering to the Lord. Be in the world, but not of it, like the lotus leaf, whose roots are in the mud but which remains always pure. Let your love go to all, whatever they may do to you.

A blind man cannot see colour ; so how can we see evil unless it is in us ? We compare what we see outside with what we find in ourselves and pronounce judgment accordingly. If we are pure, we cannot see impurity. It may exist, but not for us. See only God in every man, woman and child ; see Him by the antariyoti, the inner light. Seeing Him, we can see naught else.

Do not want this world, because what you desire you get. Seek the Lord and the Lord only. The more power there is, the more bondage, the more fear. How much more afraid and miserable are we than the ant ! Get out of it all, and come to the Lord. Seek the science of the Maker and not that of the made.

"I am the doer and the deed." "He who can stem the tide of lust and anger is a great Yogi."

"Only by practice and non-attachment can we conquer the mind."

*

*

*

*

Our Hindu ancestors sat down and thought about God and morality, and so have we brains to use for the same ends ; but in the rush of trying to get material gain, we are likely to lose them.

*

*

*

*

The body has in it a certain power of curing itself, and many things can rouse this curative power into action, such as mental conditions or medicine or exercise. As long as we are disturbed by physical conditions, so long we need the help of physical agencies. Not until we have got rid of bondage to the nerves, can we disregard them.

There is unconscious mind, but it is below consciousness, which is just one part of the human organism. Philosophy is guess-work about the mind. Religion is based upon perception, upon seeing, the only basis of knowledge. When the mind goes beyond consciousness, it sees reality. Aptas are those who have "sensed" religion. The proof is that if you follow their method, you too will see. Each science requires its own particular method and instruments. An astronomer cannot show you the rings of Saturn by the aid of all the pots and pans in the kitchen. He needs a telescope. So, to see the great facts of religion, the method of those who have already seen must be followed. The greater the science, the more varied the means of studying it.

Before we came into the world, God provided the means to get out ; so all we have to do is to find the means. But do not fight over methods. Look only for realization and choose the best method you can find to suit you. "Eat the mangoes" and let the rest quarrel over the basket. See Christ—then you will be a Christian. All else is talk. The less talking the better.

The message makes the messenger. The Lord makes the temple—not vice versa.

Learn until the glory of the Lord shines through your face, as it shone through the face of Svetaketu.

Guess against guess makes fight ; but talk of what you have seen, and no human heart can resist it. Paul was converted against his will by realization.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

(After dinner there was a short conversation in the course of which the Swami made the following remarks.)

Delusion creates delusion. Delusion creates itself and destroys itself—such is Maya. All knowledge (so-called), being based on Maya, is a vicious circle, and in time that very knowledge destroys itself. “Let go the rope of Maya, delusion cannot touch the Atman. When we lay hold of the rope—identify ourselves with Maya—it has power over us. Let go of it, be a witness only ; then you can admire the picture of the universe undisturbed.

WEDNESDAY, July 24th.

The powers acquired by the practice of Yoga are not obstacles for the Yogi who is perfect, but are apt to be so for the beginner, through the wonder and pleasure excited by their exercise. Siddhis are the powers which mark success in the practice, and they may be produced by various means, such as the repetition of a Mantra, Yoga disciplines, meditation, fasting or even by the use of herbs and drugs. The Yogi who has conquered all interest in the powers acquired and who renounces all virtue arising from his actions attains the "cloud of virtue"—the name of one of the states of Samadhi—and radiates holiness as a cloud rains water.

Concentration means holding the mind to a particular object ; meditation is an unbroken flow of awareness towards that object. The mind is cognized by the Atman ; it is not self-illuminated. The Atman cannot be the cause of anything. How can It be? How can the Purusha join Itself to Prakriti, nature ? It does not ; it is only mistakenly thought to do so.

*

*

*

*

Learn to help without pitying or feeling that there is any misery. Learn to be the same to enemy and to friend. Then, when you can do that and no longer have any desires, the goal is attained.

Cut down the banyan tree of desire with the axe of non-attachment, and it will vanish utterly. It is all illusion. "He from whom grief and delusion have fallen, he who has conquered the evil of attachment—he alone is azad, free."

To love anyone personally is bondage. Love all alike ; then all desires fall off.

Time, the "eater of everything", comes, and all has to go. Why try to improve the earth, to paint the evanescent butterfly ? It all has to go at last. Do not be mere white mice in a cage with a treadmill, busy always and never accomplishing anything. Every desire is fraught with evil, whether the desire itself be good or evil. It is like a dog's jumping for a piece of meat which is ever receding from his reach, and dying a dog's death at last. Do not be like that. Cut off all desires.

*

*

*

*

Paramatman as ruling Maya is Isvara; the Paramatman under Maya is Jivatman. Maya is the sum-total of manifestation, and will one day utterly vanish.

Tree-nature is Maya; it is really God-nature, which we see under the veil of Maya. The 'why' of anything is in Maya. To ask why Maya came is a useless question, because the answer can never be given in Maya, and beyond Maya who will ask it? Evil creates "why", not "why" the evil; and it is evil that asks "why"? Illusion destroys illusion. Reason itself, being based upon contradiction, is a circle and has to kill itself. Sense perception is an inference, and yet all inference comes from perception.

Ignorance reflecting the light of God is seen; but by itself it is zero. The cloud would not appear except as the sunlight falls on it.

There were four travellers who came to a high wall. The first one climbed with difficulty to the top and, without looking back, jumped over. The second clambered up the wall, looked over, and with a shout of delight disappeared. The third in his turn climbed to the top, looked where his companions had gone, laughed with joy, and followed them. But the fourth one came back to tell what had happened to his fellow-travellers. The sign to us that there is something beyond is the laugh that rings back from those great ones who have plunged from Maya's wall.

*

*

*

*

Separating ourselves from the Absolute and attributing certain qualities to It, give us Isvara. He is the Reality of the universe as seen through our mind. The Devil is the misery of the world seen through the minds of the superstitious.

THURSDAY, July 25th.

(Patanjali's Yoga Aphorisms.)

'Thing may be done, caused to be done, or approved of', and the effect upon us is nearly equal.

Complete continence gives great intellectual and spiritual power. The brahmacharin must be sexually pure in thought, word, and deed. Lose regard for the body ; get rid of the consciousness of it so far as possible.

Asana, posture must be steady and pleasant ; and constant practice, identifying the mind with the Infinite—will make it so.

Continuous attention to one object is contemplation.

When a stone is thrown into still water, many circles, are made, each distinct but all interacting. so with our minds ; only in us the action is unconscious, while in the Yogi it is conscious. we are spiders in a web and Yoga practice will enable us like the spider, to pass along any strand of the web we please. Non-Yogis are bound to the particular spots where they are.

*

*

*

*

To injure another creates bondage and hides the truth. Negative virtues are not enough ; we have to conquer Maya, and then it will follow us. We only deserve things when they have ceased to bind us. When the bondage ceases, really and truly, all things come to us. Only those who want nothing are masters of nature.

Take refuge in some soul who has already broken his bondage, and in time he will free you through his mercy. Higher still, is to take refuge in the Lord or Isvara ; but it is the most difficult.

Only once in a century can one be found who has really done it. Feel nothing, know nothing, do nothing, have nothing, give up all to God and say utterly, "Thy will be done." We only dream this bondage. Wake up and let it go. Take refuge in God; only so can we cross the desert of Maya. "Let go thy hold, Sannyasin bold! say, 'Om tat sat, Om!'"

It is our privilege to be allowed to be charitable; for only so can we grow. The poor man suffers that we may be helped. Let the giver kneel down and give thanks; let the receiver stand up and permit. See the Lord back of every being, and give to Him. When we cease to see evil, the world will end for us, because to rid us of that mistake is its only object. To think there is any imperfection, creates it. Thought of strength and perfection alone can cure it. Do what good you can, some evil will inhere in it; but do all without regard to personal result, give up all results to the Lord, and then neither good nor evil will affect you.

Doing work is not religion; but work done rightly leads to freedm. In reality all pity is ignorance, because who is there to pity? Can you pity God? And is there anything else? Thank God for giving you this world as a moral gymnasium to help your development ; but never imagine you can help the world. Be grateful to him who curses you ; for he gives you a mirror to show what cursing is, also a chance to practice self-restraint. So bless him and be glad. Without exercise power cannot come out ; without the mirror we cannot see ourselves.

Unchaste imagination is as bad as unchaste action. Controlled desire leads to the highest result. Transform the sexual energy into spiritual energy ; but do not emasculate, because that is throwing away the power. The stronger this force, the more can be done with it. Only a powerful current of water can do hydraulic mining.

What we need to-day is to know that there is a God, and that we can see and feel Him here and now. A Chicago professor says : "Take care of this world. God will take care of the next." What nonsense ! If we can take care of this world, what need of a gratuitous Lord to take care of the other ?

FRIDAY, July 26th.

(Brihadaranyaka Upanishad).

Love all things only through and for the Self. Yajnavalkya said to Maitreyi, his wife, "Through the Atman we know all things." The Atman can never be an object of knowledge, nor can the Knower be known. He who knows he is the Atman—he is a law unto himself. He knows he is the universe and its Creator.

*

*

*

*

Perpetuating old myths in the form of allegories and giving them undue importance fosters superstition, and is really weakness. Truth must have no compromise. Teach truth and make no apology for any superstition ; neither drag truth down to the level of the listener.

SATURDAY, July 27th.

(Katha Upanishad).

Learn not the truth of the Self save from one who has realized it ; in all others it is mere talk. Realization is beyond virtue and vice, beyond future and past, beyond all the pairs of opposites. “The stainless one sees the Self and an eternal calm comes to his soul.” Talking, arguing, and reading books, the highest flights of the intellect, the Vedas themselves—all these cannot give knowledge of the Self.

In us are the two ; the God-soul and the man-soul. The sages know that the latter is but the shadow, and the former is the only real Sun.

Unless we join the mind to the senses, we get no report from eyes, nose, ears, and so forth. The external organs are used by the power of the mind. Do not let the senses go outside, then you can get rid of body and the external world.

This very "x" which we see here as the external world, the departed see as heaven or hell according to their own mental states. Here and hereafter are two dreams, the latter modelled on the former. Get rid of both. All is omnipresent, all is now. Nature, body, and mind go to death,—not we; we never go, nor come. The man Swami Vivekananda is in haute, is born and dies; but the Self which we see as Swami Vivekananda is never born and never dies. It is the eternal and unchangeable Reality.

The power of the mind is the same whether we divide it into five senses or whether we see only one. A blind man says, "Everything has a distinct echo; so I clap my hands and get that echo, and then I can tell everything that is around me." So in a fog the blind man could safely lead the seeing man. Fog or darkness makes no difference to him.

Control the mind, cut off the senses; then you are a Yogi; after that all the rest will come. Refuse to hear, to see, to smell, to taste; take away the mental power from the external organs.

You continually do it unconsciously as when your mind is absorbed; so you can learn to do it consciously. The mind can put the senses where it pleases. Get rid of the fundamental superstition that we are obliged to act through the body. We are not. Go into your own room and get the Upanishad out of your own Self. You are the greatest book that ever was or ever will be, the infinite depository of all that is. Until the inner teacher awakens, all outside teaching is in vain. It must lead to the opening of the book of the heart to have any value.

The will is the "still small voice", the real Ruler who says "Do" and "Do not". It has done all that binds us. The ignorant will leads to bondage, the knowing will can free us. The will can be made strong in thousands of ways. Every way is a kind of Yoga, but the systematized Yoga accomplishes the work more quickly. Bhakti, Karma, Raja and Jnana Yogas get over the ground more effectively. Employ all powers — philosophy, work, prayer, meditation. Crowd on all sail, put on full steam, and reach the goal. The sooner, the better.

*

*

*

*

Baptism is external purification symbolizing the internal. It is of Buddhist origin.

The Eucharist is a survival of a very ancient custom of savage tribes. They sometimes killed their great chiefs and ate their flesh in order to obtain in themselves the qualities that made their leaders great. They believed that in such a way, the characteristics that made the chiefs brave and wise would become theirs, and make the whole tribes brave and wise, instead of only one man. Human sacrifice was also a Jewish idea, and one that clung to the Jews despite many chastisements from Jehovah. Jesus was gentle and loving, but to fit him into Jewish beliefs, the idea of human sacrifice in the form of atonement, that is to say of a human scape-goat, had to come in. This cruel idea made Christianity depart from the teachings of Jesus himself and develop a spirit of persecution and bloodshed. Very sad thing

*

*

*

*

Say, it is your "nature" to do it; never say, it is your "duty" to do anything whatever.

"Truth alone triumphs, not untruth." Stand upon truth, and you have got God.

*

*

*

*

From the earliest times in India the Brahmins have held themselves beyond all law; they claim to be gods. They are poor, but their weakness is that they seek power. Here are about sixty millions of people who are good and moral and hold no property, and they are what they are because from their birth they are taught that they are above law, above punishment. They feel themselves to be "twice-born", to be sons of God.

INSPIRED TALKS

SUNDAY, July 28th.

(Avadhuta Gita or "Song of the Purified" by Dattatreya.)¹

"All knowledge depends upon calmness of mind."

"He who has filled the universe, He who is Self in self, how shall I salute Him?"

To know the Atman as my nature is both knowledge and realization. "I am He; there is not the least doubt about it."

"No thought, no word, no deed, creates a bondage for me. I am beyond the senses, I am Knowledge and Bliss."

There is neither existence nor non-existence: all is Atman. Shake off all ideas of relativity; shake off all superstitions. Let caste and birth and Devas and all else vanish. Why talk of being and becoming? Give up talking of ¹ Dattatreya was a sage, the son of Atri and Anasuya, and was an incarnation of Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva.

K.V. Jomp

Dualism and Advaitism. When were you two, that you talk of two or one? The universe is this Holy One and He alone. Talk not of Yoga to make you pure; you are pure by your very nature. None can teach you.

Men like him who wrote this Gita keep religion alive. They have actually realized the self, they care for nothing, feel nothing done to the body, care not for heat or cold or danger or anything. They sit still and enjoy the bliss of Atman even while red hot coals burn their body, and they feel them not.

“When the threefold bondage of knower, knowledge, and known ceases, then one realizes the Atman.”

“When the delusion of bondage and freedom ceases, one realises the Atman.”

“What if you have controlled the mind? What if you have not? What if you have money? What if you have not? You are the Atman ever pure. Say, ‘I am the Atman. No bondage ever came near me. I am the changeless sky; clouds of belief may pass over me, but they do not touch me’.”

“Burn virtue, burn vice. Freedom is baby talk. I am that immortal knowledge. I am that purity.”

“No one was ever bound; none was ever free.”

There is none but me. I am the Infinite, the Ever-Free. Do not try to teach me! What can change me, the essence of knowledge? Who can teach? Who can be taught?"

Throw argument, throw philosophy into the ditch. "Only a slave sees slaves, the deluded, delusion, the impure, impurity."

Space, time, causation are all delusions. It is your disease that you think you are bound and will be free. You are the unchangeable. Talk not. Sit down and let all things melt away; they are but dreams. There is no differentiation, no distinction; it is all superstition. Therefore be silent and know what you are.

"I am the essence of Bliss." Follow no ideal, you are all there is. Fear naught: you are the essence of existence. Be at peace. Do not disturb yourself. You never were in bondage; you never were virtuous or sinful. Get rid of all these delusions and be at peace. Who is there to worship? Who worships? All is the Atman. To speak, to think, is superstition. Repeat over and over, "I am Atman." "I am Atman." Let everything else go.

MONDAY, July 29th.

We sometimes indicate a thing by describing

To be remembered always

its surroundings. When we say, "Sat-chida-nanda"—(Existence-Knowledge-Bliss), we are merely indicating the shores of an indescribable Beyond. Not even can we say 'is' about It, for that too is relative. Any imagination, any concept is in vain. Neti, neti—"Not this, not this"—is all that can be said; for even to think is to limit and so to lose.

The senses cheat you day and night. Vedanta found that out ages ago; modern science is just discovering the same fact. A picture has only length and breadth, and the painter copies nature in its cheating by artificially giving the appearance of depth. No two people see the same world. The highest knowledge will show you that there is no motion, no change in anything; that the very idea of it is all Maya.

Study Nature as a whole; that is, study motion. Mind and body are not our real Self; both belong to nature. But eventually we can know the ding an sich. Then mind and body being transcended, all that they conceive goes. When you cease utterly to know and see the world, then you realize Atman. The superseding of relative knowledge is what we want. There is no infinite mind or infinite knowledge, because both mind and knowledge are limited. We are now seeing through a veil, then we reach the "x", which is the Reality of all our knowing.

If we look at a picture through a pin hole in a cardboard, we get an utterly mistaken notion ; yet what we see is really the picture. As we enlarge the hole, we get a clearer and clearer idea. Out of the reality we manufacture the different views in conformity with our mistaken perceptions of name and form. When we throw away the cardboard, we see the same picture, but we see it as it is. We put in all the attributes, all the errors ; the picture itself is unaltered thereby—because Atman is the reality of all. All we see is the Atman ; but it is not rightly seen through name and form ; they are in the veil, in Maya.

They are like spots in the object-glass of a telescope ; yet it is the light of the sun that shows us the spots ; we could not even see the illusion save for the background of Reality which is Brahman. Vivekananda the man is just a speck on the object-glass. But I truly am the Atman, real, unchangeable ; and that Reality alone enables me to see Vivekananda. The Atman is the essence behind every hallucination. The sun is never identified with the spots on the glass ; neither is the Atman with name and form. Our actions, evil or good, increase or decrease the spots, but never affect the Self. Cleanse the mind of spots, and you will instantly see : "I and my father are one."

We first perceive, and we reason later. We must have perception as a fact ; and this is called religion. No matter if one never heard of creed or prophet or book ; let him get this realization and he will need nothing more. Cleanse the mind—this is the whole of religion ; and until we ourselves clean off the spots, we cannot see the Reality as It is.

The baby sees no sin ; he has not yet in himself the means to measure it. Get rid of the defects which are within yourself, and you will not see any without. A baby sees robbery done, and it means nothing to him. Once you find the hidden object in a puzzle picture, you see it always ; so when once you are free and stainless, you see only freedom and purity in the world around. That moment all the knots of the heart are cut asunder, all crooked places are made straight, and this world vanishes as a dream. And when we awake, we wonder how we ever came to dream such trash !

"We must realise Him, getting whom, misery mountain-high has no power to move the soul."

With the axe of knowledge sever the wheels of mind and body from the Atman and It will stand free, even though the old momentum carries on the wheels of mind and body. But the wheels can now only go straight, can only do good. If that body or mind does anything bad, know that the man is not Jivanmukta, he lies if he makes that claim. It is only when the wheels have got a good straight motion—from cleansing the mind—that the axe can be applied. All purifying action deals delusion conscious or unconscious blows. Good action done ignorantly produces the same result and help to break the bondage. To call another a sinner is the worst thing you can do.

To identify the sun with the spots on the object glass is the fundamental error. Know the sun, the "I", to be ever unaffected by anything, and devote yourself to cleaning off the spots. Man is the greatest being that ever can be. The highest worship is to worship a man like Krishna, Buddha or Christ. What you want, you create. Get rid of desire.

*

*

*

*

The angels and the departed are all here, seeing this world as heaven. The same "x" is seen by all according to their mental attitude. The best vision to be had of the "x" is here on this earth. Never want to go to heaven: that is the worst delusion. Even here, too much wealth and grinding poverty are both bondages and hold us back from religion.

Important

There are three rare things. First, a human body. (The human mind is the nearest reflection of God ; we are 'His own image'.) Second, the desire to be free. Third, a noble soul, who has crossed the ocean of delusion, as teacher. When you have these three, bless the Lord. You are sure to be free.

What you only grasp intellectually may be overthrown by a new argument ; but what you realize is yours for ever. Talking, talking religion does but little good. Put God behind everything—man, animal, food, work ; make this a habit.

Ingersoll once said to me, " I believe in making the most of this world, in squeezing the orange dry, because this world is all we are sure of." I replied : " I know a better way to squeeze the orange of this world than you do, and I get more out of it. I know I cannot die, so I am not in a hurry ; I know there is no fear, so I enjoy the squeezing. I have no duty, no bondage of wife and children and property. I can love all men and women. Every one is God to me. Think of the joy of loving man as God ! Squeeze your orange this way and get ten thousandfold more out of it. Get every single drop."

That which seems to be the will is really the Atman, it is free.

MONDAY AFTERNOON

Jesus was imperfect because he did not live up fully to his own ideal and above all because he did not give woman a place equal to man's. Women did everything for him, and yet he was so bound by the Jewish custom that not one was made an Apostle. Still he was the greatest character next to Buddha, who in his turn was not fully perfect. Buddha, however, recognized woman's right to an equal place in religion, and his first and one of his greatest disciples was his own wife, who became the head of the whole Buddhistic movement among the women of India. But we ought not to criticise these great ones; we should only look upon them as far above ourselves. Nonetheless we must not pin our faith on any man however great; we too must become Buddhas and Christs.

No man should be judged by his defects. The great virtues a man has, are his own; but his errors are the common weaknesses of humanity and should never be counted in estimating his character.

Vira, the Sanskrit word for 'heroic', is the origin of our word virtue; in ancient times the best fighter was regarded as the most virtuous man.

TUESDAY, July 30th. 1895

Christs and Buddhas are simply occasions upon which to objectify our own inner powers. We really answer our own prayers.

It is blasphemy to think that if Jesus had never been born, humanity would not have been saved. It is horrible to forget thus the divinity in human nature, a divinity that must come out. Never forget the glory of human nature. We are the greatest God that ever was or ever will be. Christs and Buddhas are but waves on the boundless ocean which I am. Bow down to nothing but your own higher Self. Until you know that you are that very God of gods, there will never be any freedom for you.

All our past actions are really good, because they lead us to what we ultimately become. Of whom shall I beg? I am the real Existence, and all else is a dream. I am the whole ocean; do not call the little wave you have made "I"; know it for nothing but a wave. Satyakama heard the inner voice telling him, "You are the infinite; the Universal is in you. Control yourself and listen to the voice of your true Self."

The great prophets who do the fighting have to be less perfect than those who live silent lives of holiness, thinking great thoughts and so helping the world. These men, passing out one after another, produce as their final result the man of power who preaches.

*

*

*

*

Knowledge exists ; man only discovers it. The Vedas are the eternal knowledge through which God created the world. They preach high philosophy (the highest), and make this tremendous claim.

*

*

*

*

Tell the truth boldly, whether it hurts or not. Never pander to weakness. If truth is too much even for intelligent people and sweeps them away, let them go. The sooner the better. Childish ideas are for babies and savages and these are not all in the nursery and the forests ; some of them have fallen into the pulpits.

It is bad to stay in the church after you are grown up spiritually. Come out and die in the open air of freedom.

All progression is in the relative world. The human form is the highest and man the greatest being, because here and now we can get rid of the relative world entirely, can actually attain freedom. And this is the goal. Not only can we have perfection, but some have reached it. So no matter what finer bodies men may assume after death, they will still be on the relative plane, and can do no more than we; for to attain freedom is the highest.

The angels never do wicked deeds; so they never get punished and also never get saved. Blows are what awaken us and help to break the dream. They show us the insufficiency of this world and make us long to escape, to have freedom.

A thing dimly perceived we call by one name; the same thing when fully perceived, we call by another. The higher the moral nature, the subtler the perception and the stronger the will.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON

The reason for the harmony between thought and matter is that they are two sides of one thing—call it 'x'—which divides itself into the internal and the external.

The English word 'paradise' comes from the Sanskrit para-desa, which was taken over into the Persian language, and means literally 'beyond the land', or 'the land beyond'. That is, to say the other world. The old Aryans always believed in a soul, and never that man was the body. Their heavens and hells were all temporary, because no effect can outlast its cause and no cause is eternal; therefore all effects must come to an end.

Traithireya Upnishad

The whole of the Vedanta Philosophy is in this parable: Two birds of golden plumage sat on the same tree—the one above, serene, majestic, immersed in his own glory; the one below, restless and eating the fruits of the tree, now sweet, now bitter. Once the lower bird ate an exceptionally bitter fruit; then he paused and looked up at the majestic bird above. But he soon forgot about the other bird and went on eating the fruits of the tree as before. Again he ate a bitter fruit, and this time he hopped up a few boughs nearer to the bird at the top. This happened many times until at last the lower bird came to the place of the upper bird and lost himself in him. He found all at once that there had never been two birds, but that all the time he was that upper bird, serene, majestic and immersed in his own glory.

WEDNESDAY, July 31st. 1895

Luther drove a nail into the coffin of religion

when he took away renunciation and gave us morality instead. Atheists and materialists can have ethics, but only believers in the Lord can have religion.

The wicked pay the price of the great soul's holiness. Think of that when you see a wicked man and do not despise him: Just as the poor man's labour pays for the rich man's luxury, so is it in the spiritual world. The terrible degradation of the masses in India is the price she pays for the production of great souls like Mira Bai, Buddha, and so forth.¹

“I am the holiness of the holy” (Gita). “I am the root; each uses it in his own way, but all is I.” “I do everything, you are but the occasion.”

Do not talk much, but feel the spirit within you; then you are a Jnani. This is knowledge, all else is ignorance. All that is to be known is Brahman. It is the All.

1 Most people in society cannot follow an ideal if it is very high, in trying to do so they fail and generally become wicked. But the ideal cannot be preserved without their participation. It is like one hundred soldiers attacking a fort; eighty die and only twenty succeed. The fact cannot be denied that the eighty, by their deaths, paid the price for the success of the twenty.

Sattva binds through the search for happiness and knowledge ; rajas binds through desire, tamas binds through wrong perception and laziness. Conquer the lower two by Sattva, and then give up all to the Lord and be free.

The bhakti Yogi goes very soon beyond the three qualities and realizes Brahman.

The will, consciousness, the senses, desire, the passions,—all these combined make what we call the embodied soul.

There is, first, apparent self, or the physical body ; second, the mental self, which mistakes the body for itself ; and third, the Atman, the Absolute, the Ever Pure, the Ever Free. Seen partially, the Atman is nature ; when It is seen wholly, all nature disappears—even the memory of it is lost. First there is the changing or the mortal ; next, the eternally changing, or nature, and lastly, the Unchangeable or the Atman.

Give up hope completely ; that is the highest state. What is there to hope for ? Burst asunder the bonds of hope ; stand on your Self, and be at rest ; Never mind what you do ; give up all to God ; but have no hypocrisy about it.

Svastha, the Sanskrit word for “ standing on your own Self ”, is used colloquially in India to inquire : " Are you well ? are you happy ? " And when Hindus would express the idea " I saw a thing," they say, " I saw a word-meaning (Padartha)." Even this universe is a " word-meaning ", that is, an idea denoted by a word.

*

*

*

*

A perfect man's body mechanically does right ; it can do only good because it is fully purified. The past momentum that carries on the wheel of the body is all good. All evil tendencies are burnt out.

*

*

*

*

" That day is indeed a bad day when we do not speak of the Lord—not a stormy day."

Only love for the Supreme Lord is true bhakti. Love for any other being, however great, is not bhakti. The Supreme Lord here means Isvara, the concept of which transcends what you in the West mean by the Personal God. " He from whom this universe proceeds, in whom it rests, and to whom it returns—He is Isvara, the Eternal, the Pure, the All-merciful, the Almighty, the Ever Free, the All-knowing, the teacher of all teachers, the lord, who of His own nature is inexpressible love."

Man does not manufacture God out of his own brain ; but he can only see God in the light of his own capacity, and he attributes to Him the best of all he knows. Each attribute is the whole of God, and this signifying of the whole by one quality is the metaphysical explanation of the Personal God. Isvara is without form, yet has all forms ; is without qualities, yet has all qualities. As human beings we have to see the trinity of existence ; God, man, nature. We cannot do otherwise.

But to the Bhakta all these philosophical distinctions are mere idle talk. He cares nothing for argument ; he does not reason ; he senses, he perceives. He wants to lose himself in pure love of God. And there have been bhaktas who maintain that this is more to be desired than liberation, and who say : "I do not want to be sugar ; I want to taste sugar. I want to love and enjoy the Beloved."

In Bhakti Yoga the first essential is to seek God honestly and intensely. We want everything but God, because our ordinary desires are fulfilled by the external world. So long as our needs are confined within the limits of the physical universe, we do not feel any need for God. It is only when we have had hard blows in our lives and are disappointed with everything here that we feel the need for something higher ; then we seek God.

Bhakti is not destructive ; it teaches that all our faculties may become means to reach salvation. We must turn them all towards God and give to Him that love which is usually wasted on the fleeting objects of sense.

Bhakti differs from your Western idea of religion in that bhakti admits no element of fear, no Being to be appeased or propitiated. There are even Bhaktas who worship God as their own child, so that there may remain no feeling even of awe or reverence. There can be no fear in true love, and so long as there is the least fear, bhakti cannot even begin. In bhakti there is also no place for begging or bargaining with God. The idea of asking God for anything is sacrilege to a bhakta. He will not pray for health or wealth, or even to go to heaven.

One who wants to love God, to be a bhakta, must make a bundle of all these desires and leave them outside the door and then enter. He who wants to enter the realm of light must make a bundle of all 'shop-keeping' religion and cast it away before he can pass the gates. It is not that you do not get what you pray for ; you get everything ; but it is low, vulgar—a beggar's religion.

“A fool indeed is he who, living on the banks of the Ganges, digs a little well for water”. A fool indeed is the man who, coming to a diamond mine, begins to search for glass beads. These prayers for health and wealth and material prosperity are not bhakti. They are the lowest form of Karma. Bhakti is a higher thing. We are striving to come into the presence of the King of kings. We cannot get there in beggar's dress. If we wanted to enter the presence of an emperor, would we be admitted in beggar's rags? Certainly not. The lackey would drive us out of the gates. This is the Emperor of emperors, and never can we come before Him in beggar's garb. Shopkeepers never have admission there; buying and selling will not do there at all. You read in the Bible that Jesus drove the buyers and sellers out of the temple.

So it goes without saying that the first task in becoming a bhakta is to give up all desires for heaven and so on. Such a heaven would be like this place, this earth,—only a little better. The Christian idea of heaven is a place of intensified enjoyment. How can that take the place of God? All this desire to go to heaven is a desire for enjoyment. This has to be given up. The love of the bhakta must be absolutely pure and unselfish, seeking nothing for itself either here or hereafter.

Giving up the ideas of pleasure and pain, gain and loss, worship God day and night; not a moment is to be spent in vain."

"Giving up all other thoughts, with the whole mind day and night worship God. Thus being worshipped day and night, He reveals Himself and makes His worshippers feel His presence."

THURSDAY, August 1st. 1895

The real Guru is the one through whom we have our spiritual descent. He is the channel through which the spiritual current flows to us, the link which joins us to the whole spiritual world. Too much faith in personality has a tendency to produce weakness and idolatry. But intense love for the Guru makes rapid growth possible; he connects us with the internal Guru. Adore your Guru if there be real truth in him, that Guru-bhakti, devotion to the teacher will quickly lead you to the highest.

Sri Ramakrishna's purity was that of a baby. He never touched money in his life, and lust was absolutely annihilated in him. Do not go to great religious teachers to learn physical science; their whole energy has gone to the spiritual. In Sri Ramakrishna Paramahansa the man was all dead and only God remained. He actually could not see sin ; his eyes were so pure that he literally could not behold iniquity. The purity of these few Paramahansas is all that holds the world together. If they should all die and leave the world, it would go to pieces. They do good by simply being, and they know it not ; they just are.

INSPIRED TALKS

Books suggest the inner light and the method of bringing it out, but we can only understand them only when we have earned the knowledge ourselves. When the inner light has flashed for you, let the books go, and look only within. You have in you all that is in the books, and a thousand times more. Never lose faith in yourself ; you can do anything in this universe. Never weaken ; all power is yours.

If religion and life depend upon books or upon the existence of any prophet whatsoever, then perish all religion and books ! Religion is in us. No books or teachers can do more than help us to find it, and even without them we can get all truth within. Yet be grateful to books and teachers without being bound to them ; and worship your Guru as God, but do not obey him blindly. Love him as much as you will, but think for yourself. No blind belief can save you ; work out your own salvation. Remember that God is an eternal help.

V.V. Imp.

Freedom and the highest love must go together ; then neither can become a bondage. We can give nothing to God ; He gives all to us. He is the Guru of Gurus. Then we find that He is the Soul of our souls, our very Self. No wonder we love Him ; He is the Soul of our souls. Whom or what else can we love ? We want to be the "steady flame, burning without smoke".

To whom can you do good, when you see only God ? You cannot do good to God. All doubt goes, all is "sameness". If you do good at all, you do it to yourself ; feel that the receiver is the higher one. You serve the other because you are lower than he, not because he is low and you are high. Give, as the rose gives perfume—because it is its own nature—utterly unconscious of giving.

The great Hindu reformer, Rajah Ram Mohan Roy, was a wonderful example of this unselfish work. He devoted his whole life to helping India. It was he who stopped the burning of widows. It is usually believed that this reform was due entirely to the English ; but it was Rajah Ram Mohan Roy who started the agitation against the custom and succeeded in obtaining the support of the Government in suppressing it. Until he began the movement, the English did nothing. He also founded the important religious Society called the Brahmo Samaj, and subscribed $ 100,000 to found a university. He then stepped out and told them to go ahead without him. He cared nothing for fame or for results to himself.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON

The phenomenal world unceasingly goes on through endless series of manifestations — like a merry-go-round. Individual souls ride in it and finally get out. But the machine goes on. Events repeat themselves eternally; and that is how one's past and future can be read, because all is really present. When the soul is in a certain chain, it has to go through the experiences of that chain. From one series, the soul goes to another; from some series, it escapes for ever, through self-knowledge. By getting hold of one prominent event in a chain and holding on to it, you can drag in the whole chain and read it. This power is easily acquired; but it is of no real value, and to practise it takes just so much from our spiritual forces. Go not after these things. Worship God.

FRIDAY, August 2nd.

Nishtha, devotion to one Ideal is the beginning of realization. Take the honey out of all flowers ; sit and be friendly with all ; pay reverence to all. Say to all, " Yes brother ; yes, brother " but keep firm in your own way. A higher stage is actually to take the position of the other. If I am all, why can I not really and actively sympathize with my brother and see with his eyes ? While I am weak, I must stick to one course, I must practice nishtha ; but when I am strong, I can feel with all others and perfectly sympathize with their ideas.

The old way was to develop one idea at the expense of all the rest. The modern way is harmonious development. A third way is to develop the mind and control it, and then put it where you will ; the result will come quickly. This is developing yourself in the truest way. Learn concentration and use it in any direction. Thus you lose nothing. He who gets the whole must have the parts too. Dualism is included in Advaitism or monism.

" I first saw him and he saw me ; there was a flash of eye from me to him and from him to me."

This went on until the two souls became so closely united that they actually became one.

*

*

*

*

There are two kinds of Samadhi. The one is called Savikalpa. In it one feels a trace of duality of distinction between subject and object. The other kind is called Nirvikalpa. In that Samadhi one effaces, in the depths of meditation, all distinction between the knower and the goal of knowledge.

You must be able to sympathize fully with each ideal, and then at once jump back to the highest monism. After having perfected yourself, you limit yourself voluntarily. Put the whole power into each action. Be able to become a dualist for the time being and forget Advaita, yet be able to take it up again at will.

*

*

*

*

Cause and effect relationship is Maya, and we shall grow to understand that all we see is as disconnected as the child's fairy tales now seem to us. There is really no such thing as cause and effect, and we shall come to know it. Then if you can, lower your intellect to let any allegory pass through your mind without questioning about the connexion. Develop love of imagery and beautiful poetry, and then enjoy all mythologies as poetry. Come not to mythology with ideas of history and reasoning. Let it flow as a current through your mind ; let it be whirled as a candle before your eyes, without asking who holds the candle ; and you will get the circle ; the residuum of truth will remain in your mind.

The writers of all mythologies wrote in symbols of what they saw and heard ; they painted flowing pictures. Do not try to pick out the themes and so destroy the pictures ; take them as they are, and let them act on you. Judge them only by the effect and get the good out of them.

Your own will is all that answers prayer ; only it appears differently under the guise of different religious conceptions, to each mind. We may call it Buddha, Jesus, Krishna, Jehovah, Allah,—but it is only the Self, the “ I ”.

Concepts grow, but there is no historical value in the allegories which present them. Moses' visions are more likely to be wrong than ours are, because we have more knowledge and are less likely to be deceived by illusions.

Books are useless to us until our inner book opens ; then all other books are good so far as they confirm our book. It is the strong that understands strength ; it is the elephant that understands the lion, not the rat. How can we understand Jesus until we are his equals ? Only grandeur appreciates grandeur, only God realizes God. It is all in the dream, in Maya—to feed five thousand with two loaves or to feed with five loaves ; neither is real and neither affects the other. The dream is not different from the dreamer ; it has no other basis. The dream is not one thing and the dreamer another.

The keynote running through the music is “I am He I am He.” All other notes are but variations and do not affect the real theme. We are the living books, and books are but the words we have spoken. Everything is the living God, the living Christ ; see it as such. Read man, he is the living poem. We are the light that illumines all the Bibles and Christs and Buddhas that ever were. Without that, these would be dead for us, not living.

Stand on your own Self.

The dead body resents nothing ; let us make our bodies dead and cease to identify ourselves with them.

SATURDAY, August 3rd.

Individuals who are to get freedom in this life, have to live thousands of years in one lifetime. They have to be ahead of their times ; but the masses can only crawl. Thus we have Christs and Buddhas.

*

*

*

*

There was once a Hindu queen who so much desired that all her children should attain freedom in this life that she herself took all the care of them ; and as she rocked them to sleep, she sang always to them the one song : "Tat tvam asi, Tat tvam asi."—"That thou art, That thou art." Three of them became Sannyasins, but the fourth was taken away to be brought up elsewhere to become a king. As he was leaving home, his mother gave him a piece of paper, which he was to read when he grew to manhood. On that piece of paper was written, "God alone is true. All else is false. The soul never kills or is killed. Live alone, or in the company of holy ones." When the young prince read this, he too at once renounced the world and became a Sannyasin.

Give up. Renounce the world. Now we are like dogs that have strayed into a kitchen, eating a piece of meat, looking round in fear lest at any moment some one may come and drive them out. Instead of that, be a king and know you own the world. This never comes until you give up the world and it ceases to bind. Give up mentally, if you cannot physically. Give up from your heart of hearts. Have Vairagya, renunciation. This is the real sacrifice, and without it, it is impossible to attain spirituality. Do not desire ; for what you desire you get, and with it comes terrible bondage. It is nothing but bringing noses upon us, as it was in the case of the man who had three boons to ask.¹ We never get freedom

1 A poor man was once able to propitiate a certain God, who gave him some dice and said to him that he should ask for three boons along with three throws of the dice. The happy man went home and communicated the news of this piece of good luck to his wife, who, full of joy, at once told him to cast for wealth. Thereupon the man replied: "We both have very ugly little noses, for which people laugh at us. Let us first cast for beautiful equiline noses. Wealth cannot remove the deformity of our persons." But the wife was for the wealth first, and so she caught hold of his hand to prevent him from throwing the dice. The man hastily snatched his hand away and at once threw the dice, exclaiming, "Let us both have beautiful noses and nothing but noses." All at once both their bodies were covered over with many beautiful noses; but they proved such a great nuisance to them that both of them agreed to throw for the second time asking for their removal. It was done, and by that they also lost their own little noses and were left completely noseless. Thus they had lost two boons, and in utter dismay they did not know what to do. There was only one boon more to ask. Having lost their noses they looked more ugly then before. They could not even dream of going out in that plight. They wanted to have two beautiful noses, but they feared to be questioned about their transformation lest they until we are satisfied with the Self. "Self is the saviour of self—none else."

Learn to feel yourself in other bodies, to know that we are all one. Throw all other nonsense to the winds. Spit out your actions, good or bad ; and never think of them again. What is done is done. Throw off superstition. Have no weakness even in the face of death.

Do not repent, do not brood over past deeds, and do not remember your good deeds. Be azad, free. The weak, the fearful, the ignorant, will never reach Atman. You cannot undo the past ; the effect of it must come. Face it, but be careful never to do the same thing again. Give up the burden of all deeds to the Lord. Give all, both good and bad ; do not keep the good and give only the bad. God helps those who do not help themselves.

"Drinking the cup of desire, the world becomes mad." As day and night never come together ; so desire and the Lord can never come should be regarded by all as two big fools who could not mend their circumstances even with the help of three boons. So both of them agreed to get back their ugly little noses, and the dice were, accordingly cast. This story illustrates the sentence "Do not desire ; for what you desire you get and with it comes terrible bondage."

together. Give up desire.

*

*

*

*

There is a vast difference between saying "Food, food!" and eating it, between saying "Water, water" and drinking it. So by merely repeating the word "God! God!" we cannot hope to attain realization. We must strive and practise.

Only when a wave falls back into the sea can it become unlimited,—never can it be so as a wave. Then after it has become the sea, it can become a wave again and as big as a one as it pleases. Break your identification with the wave, and know that you are free.

True philosophy is the systematizing of certain perceptions. Intellect ends where religion begins. Inspiration is much higher than reason, but it must not contradict it. Reason is the rough tool to do the hard work; inspiration is the bright light which shows us all truth. The will to do a thing is not necessarily inspiration.

*

*

*

*

Progression in Maya is a circle that brings you back to the starting point, with the difference that you start ignorant and come to the end with knowledge. Worship of God, worship of the holy ones, concentration and meditation and unselfish work—these are the ways of breaking away from Maya's net. But we must first have the strong desire to get free. The flash of light that will illumine the darkness for us, is in us; it is the knowledge that is our nature. (There is no such thing as our "birth-right": we were never born). All that we have to do is to drive away the clouds that cover it.

Give up all desire for enjoyment on earth or in heaven. Control the organs of the senses and control the mind. Bear every misery without even knowing that you are miserable. Think of nothing but liberation. Have faith in your Guru, in his teachings, and in the surety that you can get free. Say, "Soham, Soham,—I am He, I am He," whatever comes. Tell yourself this even in eating, walking, suffering. Tell the mind this incessantly—that what we see never existed, that there is only "I". Flash!—the dream will break. Think day and night, "This universe is zero, only God is". Have intense desire to get free.

All relatives and friends are but "old dry wells"; we fall into them and have dreams of duty and bondage, and there is no end. Do not create illusion by believing you can help anyone. If you are a dualist, you are a fool to try to help God. If you are a monist, you know that you are God—where to find duty ? You have no duty to husband, child, friend. Take things as they come ; lie still, and wherever your body floats, go ; rise with the rising tide, fall with the falling tide. Let the body die ; this idea of body is but a worn-out fable. “ Be still and know that I am God.”

The present is the only existence. There is no past or future even in thought, because to think it you have to make it the present. Give up everything, and let the body float where it will. This world is all a delusion ; do not let it fool you again. You have known it for what it is not ; now know it for what it is . If the body is dragged anywhere, let it go ; do not care where the body is. This tyrannical idea of duty is a terrible poison and is destroying the world.

Do not wait to have a harp in heaven and rest by and by. Why not take a harp and begin here ? Why wait for heaven ? Make it here. In heaven there is no marrying or giving in marriage. Why not begin at once and have none here ? The yellow robe of the Sannyasin is the sign of the free. Give up the beggar's dress of the world ; wear the flag of freedom, the ochre robe.

SUNDAY, August 4th.

"Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declared I unto you".

This one and only God is the knownest of the known. He is the one thing we see everywhere. All know their own self; all know, "I am",—even animals. All we know is the projection of the Self. Teach this to the children; they can grasp it. Every religion has worshipped the Self, even though unconsciously, because there is nothing else.

This indecent clinging to life as we know it here is the source of all evil. It causes all this cheating and stealing. It makes money a god, and all vices and fears ensue. Value nothing material and do not cling to anything. If you cling to nothing, not even to life, then there will be no fear. "He goes from death to death who sees many in this world." There can be no physical death for us and no mental death when we see that all is one. All bodies are mine; so even my body is eternal, because the tree, the animal, the sun, the moon, the universe itself is my body. Then how can it die? Every mind, every thought is mine. Then how can death come? The Self is never born and never dies. When we realize this, all doubts vanish. "I am, I know,

I love, '—these can never be doubted. There is no hunger ; for all that is eaten is eaten by me. If a hair falls out, we do not think we die ; so if one body dies, it is but a hair falling.

The superconscious is God — beyond speech, beyond thought, beyond consciousness. There are three states :— brutality (Tamas), humanity (Rajas), and divinity (Sattva). Those attaining the highest state simply are. Duty dies there ; they only love, and like a magnet, draw others to them. This is freedom. No more do you do moral acts, but whatever you do is moral. The Brahnavit, the knower of God, is higher than all gods. The angels came to worship Jesus when he had conquered delusion and had said, "Get thee behind me, Satan." None can help a Brahnavit ; the universe itself bows down before him. His every desire is fulfilled ; his spirit purifies others. Therefore worship the Brahnavit if you wish to attain the highest. When we have the three great gifts of God — and human body, an intense desire to be free, and the help of a great soul to show us the way, then liberation is certain for us. Mukti is ours.

*

*

*

*

Death of the body for ever is Nirvana. It is the negative side and says, "I am not this, nor this, nor this." Vedanta takes the further step and asserts the positive side—mukti or freedom. "I am Existence Absolute, Knowledge Absolute, Bliss Absolute; I am He,"—this is Vedanta, the capstone of the perfect arch.

The great majority of the adherents of Northern Buddhism believe in mukti and are really Vedantists. Only the Ceylonese accept Nirvana as annihilation.

No belief or disbelief can kill the "I". That which comes with belief and goes with disbelief is only a delusion. Nothing touches the Atman. "I salute my own Self." "Self-illuminated, I salute myself; I am Brahman." The body is a dark room. When we enter it, it becomes illumined, it becomes alive. Nothing can ever effect the illumination; it cannot be destroyed. It may be covered, but can never be destroyed.

*

*

*

*

At the present time God should be worshipped as Mother, the Infinite Energy. This will lead to purity, and tremendous energy will come here in America. Here no temples weigh us down; no one suffers as they do, those in poorer countries. Woman has suffered for aeons, and has thus acquired infinite patience and infinite perseverance. She holds on to an idea. It is this which makes her the support of even superstitious religions and of the priests in every land, and it is this that will free her. We have to become Vedantists and live this grand thought. The masses must get it, and only in free America can this be done. In India these ideas were taught by individuals like Buddha, Sankara, and others, but the masses did not retain them. The new cycle must see the masses living Vedanta, and this will have to come through women.

“Keep the beloved, beautiful Mother in your heart of hearts with all care.

Let no evil counsellors enter ; let you and me, my heart, alone see Mother.

Throw out everything but the tongue. Keep that to say, “Mother, Mother !”

Thou art beyond all that lives.

Moon of my ilfe ! O Soul of my soul !”

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Mind is an instrument in the hands of Atman, just as body is an instrument in the hands of mind. Matter is motion outside, mind is motion inside. All change begins and ends in time. If the Atman is unchangeable, It must be perfect ; if perfect, It must be infinite ; and if infinite, it must be only One — there cannot be two infinities. So the Atman, the Self, can be only One. Though It seems to be various, It is really One. If a man were to go towards the sun, at every step he would see a different sun, and yet it would be the same sun after all.

Asti, 'isness', is the basis of all unity, and just as soon as the basis is found, perfection ensues. If all colour could be resolved into one colour, painting would cease. Perfect oneness is rest. We refer all manifestations to one Being. Taoists, Confucianists, Buddhists, Hindus, Jews, Mahommedans, Christians and Zoroastrians all preached the golden rule and in almost the same words; but only the Hindus have given the rationale, because they saw the reason: Man must love others because those others are himself. There is but One.

Of all the great religious teachers the world has known, only Lao-tze, Buddha and Jesus transcended the golden rule and said, "Do good to your enemies. Love them that hate you."

Principles exist: we do not create them, we only discover them. Religion consists solely in realization. Doctrines are methods, not religion. All the different religions are but applications of the one, Religion adapted to suit the requirements of different nations. Theories only lead to fighting ; thus the name of God which ought to bring peace has been the cause of half the bloodshed of the world. Go direct to the source. Ask God what He is. Unless He answers, He is not. But every religion teaches that He does answer.

Have something to say for yourself ; else how can you have any idea of what others have said ? Do not cling to old superstitions ; be ever ready for new truths. "Fools are they who would drink brackish water from a well that their forefathers have digged and would not drink pure water from a well that others have digged." Until we realize God for ourselves, we can know nothing about Him. Each man is perfect by nature ; prophets have manifested this perfection, but it is potential in us. How can we understand that Moses saw God unless we too see Him ? If God ever came to anyone, He will come to me. I will go to God direct ; let Him talk to me. I cannot take belief as a basis ; that is atheism and blasphemy. If God spoke to a man in the deserts of Arabia two thousand years ago, He can also speak to me today ; else how can I know that He has not died ? Come to God any way you can ; only come. But in coming do not push anyone down.

The knowing ones must have pity on the ignorant. One who knows is willing to give up his body even for an ant, because he knows that the body is nothing.

MONDAY, August 5th.

The question is: Is it necessary to pass through all the lower stages to reach the highest, or can a plunge be taken at once? The modern American boy takes twenty-five years to attain that which his forefathers took hundreds of years to attain. The Hindu gets in twenty years to the height reached in eight thousand years by his ancestors. On the physical side, the embryo goes from the amoeba to man in the womb. These are the teachings of modern science. Vedanta goes further and tells us that we not only have to live the life of all past humanity, but also the future life of all humanity. The man who does the first is the educated man; the second is the Jivan-mukta, ever free.

Time is merely the measure of our thoughts, and thought being inconceivably swift, there is no limit to the speed with which we can live the life ahead. So it cannot be stated how long it would take to live all future life. It might be in a second, or it might take fifty life-times. It depends on the intensity of the desire. The teaching must therefore be modified according to the needs of the taught. The consuming fire is ready for all ; even water and chunks of ice are quickly consumed. Fire a mass of bird-shot ; one at least will strike. Give a man a whole museum of truths ; he will at once take what is suited to him. Past lives have moulded our tendencies ; give to the taught in accordance with his tendency. Intellectual, mystical, devotional, practical,—make one the basis, but teach the others with it. Intellect must be balanced with love, and the mystical nature with reason, while the practical must form part of every method. Take every one where he stands and push him forward. Religious teaching must always be constructive, not destructive.

Each tendency shows the life-work of the past, the line or radius along which that man must move. All radii lead to the centre. Never even attempt to disturb anyone's tendencies ; to do that retards both teacher and the taught. When you teach Jnana, you must become a Jnani and stand mentally exactly where the taught stands. Similarly in every other Yoga. Develop every faculty as if it were the only one that exists ; this is the true secret of the so-called harmonious development. That is, get extensity with intensity, but not at its expense. We are infinite. There is no limitation in us. We can be as intense as the most devoted Mahommedan and as broad as the most roaring atheist.

The way to do this is not to put the mind on any one subject, but to develop and control the mind itself; then you can turn it on any side you choose. Thus you keep the intensity and extensity. Feel Jnana as if it were all there is; then do the same with bhakti, with yoga, with karma. Give up the waves and go to the ocean; then you can have the waves as you please. Control the 'lake' of your own mind; else you cannot understand the lake of another's mind.

The true teacher is one who can throw his whole force into the tendency of the taught. Without real sympathy we can never teach well. Give up the notion that every man is a responsible being; only the perfect man is responsible. The ignorant have drunk deep of the cup of delusion and are not sane. You, who know, must have infinite patience with these. Have nothing but love for them, and find out the disease that has made them see the world in a wrong light; then help them cure it and see aright. Remember always that only the free have free will: all the rest are in bondage and are not responsible for what they do. Will as will is bound. The water when melting on the top of the Himalayas, is free, but becoming the river, it is bound by the 'banks'; yet the original impetus carries it to the sea, and it regains its freedom. The first is the fall of man; the second is the resurrection. Not one atom can rest until it finds its freedom.

Some imaginations help to break the bondage of the rest. The whole universe is imagination, but one set of imaginations will cure another set. Those which tell us that there is sin and sorrow and death in the world are terrible; but the other set which says ever, "I am holy; there is a God; there is no pain,"—these are good and help to break the bondage of the others. The highest imagination, which can break all the links of the chain, is that of Personal God.

"Om tat sat,"—is the only thing beyond Maya; but the Personal God exists eternally. As long as Niagara Falls exists, the rainbow will exist; but the water continually flows away. The Falls is the universe, and the rainbow is the Personal God, and both are eternal. While the universe exists, God must exist. God creates the universe and the universe creates God, and both are eternal. Maya is neither existence nor non-existence. Both Niagara Falls and the rainbow are eternally changing — Brahman seen through Maya. The Persians and the Christians split Maya into two and call the good half 'God' and the bad half the devil. Vedanta takes Maya as a whole, and sees beyond it the non-dual, Brahman.

Mohammed found that Christianity was straying from the Semitic fold, and his teachings were to show what Christianity ought to be as a Semitic religion — that it should hold to one God. The Aryan idea, "I and my Father are one" disgusted and terrified him. In reality the conception of the Trinity was a great advance over the dualistic idea of Jehovah, who was for ever separate from man. The theory of the Incarnation is the first link in the chain of ideas leading to the recognition of the oneness of God and man. God first appearing in one human form, then re-appearing at different times in other human forms, is at last recognized as being in every human form, in all men. The monistic is the highest stage; monotheistic is a lower stage. Imagination will lead you to the highest even more rapidly and easily than reasoning.

Let a few stand out and live for God alone and save religion for the world. Do not pretend to be like Janaka when you are only the progenitor of delusions. The word Janaka means progenitor, it is also the name of a king who, although he still held his kingdom for the sake of his people, had given up everything mentally. Be honest and say, "I see the ideal but I cannot yet approach it!" but do not pretend to give up when you do not. If you give up, stand fast. If a hundred fall in the fight, seize the flag and carry it on. God is true for all that, no matter who falls. Let him who falls hand on the flag to another to carry on; it must never fall.

The Bible says: Seek first the Kingdom of heaven, and everything else will be added unto you. But when I am washed and clean, why shall impurity be added unto me? Be only glad to get rid of it. Give up and know that success will follow, even if you never see it. Jesus left twelve fishermen and yet those few blew up the Roman Empire.

Sacrifice on God's altar earth's purest and best. He who struggles is better than he who never attempts. Even to look on one who has given up, has a purifying effect. Stand up for God; let the world go. Make no compromise. Give up the world; then alone are you loosened from the body. When it dies, you are azad, free. Be free. Death alone can never free us. Freedom must be attained by our own efforts during life ; then, when the body falls, there will be no rebirth.

Truth is to be judged by truth and by nothing else. Doing good is not test of truth ; the sun needs no torch by which to see it. Even if truth destroys the whole universe, still it is truth ; stand by it.

Practising the concrete forms of religion is easy. It attracts the masses ; but really there is nothing in the external.

"As the spider throws her web out of herself and draws it in, even so this universe is thrown out and drawn in by God."

*

*

*

*

TUESDAY, August 6th.

Without the 'I' there can be no 'you' outside. From this some philosophers came to the conclusion that the external world did not exist save in the subject ; that the "you" existed only in the 'I'. Others have argued that the 'I' can only be known through the 'you' and with equal logic. These two views are partial truths, each wrong in part and each right in part. Thought is as much material and as much in nature as body is. Both matter and mind exist in a third, a unity, which divides itself into the two. This unity is the Atman, the real Self.

There is Being, "x", which is manifesting itself as both mind and matter. Its movements in the tangible world are along certain fixed lines called law. As a unity It is free ; as many It is bound by law. Still, with all this bondage, the idea of freedom is ever present, and this is Nivritti or "turning from attachment". The materializing forces, which, through desire, lead us to take an active part in worldly affairs, are called Pravritti.

That action is moral which frees us from the bondage of matter and vice versa. This world appears infinite because all things move in a circle — they return whence they came. So there is no rest or peace here. We must get out. Mukti is the sole end to be attained.

*

*

*

*

Evil changes in form but remains the same in quality. In ancient times force ruled, to-day it is cunning. The misery in India is not so bad as in America, because the poor man here sees the greater contrast to his own bad condition.

Good and evil are inextricably combined, and one cannot be had without the other. The sum total of energy in this universe is like a lake ; every wave inevitably leads to a corresponding depression. The sum total is absolutely the same ;

so to make one man happy is to make another unhappy. External happiness is material and the supply is fixed ; so not one grain can be had by one person without taking from another. Only bliss beyond the material world can be had without loss to any. Material happiness is but a transformation of material sorrow.

Those who are born in the wave and keep in it, do not see the depression and what is there. Never think you can make the world better and happier. The bullock in the oil mill never reaches the wisp of hay tied in front of him ; he only grinds out the oil. So we chase the will-o'-the-wisp of happiness which always eludes us, and we only grind nature's mill, then die merely to begin again. If we could get rid of evil, we should never catch a glimpse of anything higher ; we would be satisfied and never struggle to get free. When man finds that all search for happiness in matter is nonsense, then religion begins. All human knowledge is but part of religion. In the human body the balance between good and evil is so even that there is a chance for man to wish to free himself from both.

The free soul never became bound. To ask how It did, is an illogical question. Where no bondage is, there is no cause and effect. " I became a fox in a dream and a dog chased me." Now how can I ask why the dog chased me? The fox was a part of the dream and the dog followed as a matter of course; but both belong to the dream and have no existence outside. Science and religion are both attempts to help us out of the bondage; only religion is the more ancient and we have the superstition that it is the more holy. In a way it is, because it makes morality a vital point and science does not.

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." This sentence alone would save mankind if all books and prophets were lost. This purity of heart will bring the vision of God. It is the theme of the whole music of this universe. In purity there is no bondage. When we remove the veil of ignorance by purity, then we manifest ourselves as we really are and know that we were never in bondage. The seeing of many is the great sin of all the world. See all as the Self and love all; let all idea of separateness go.

* * * *

The diabolical man is a part of my body as a wound or a burn is. We have to nurse a wound or a burn to help it get better; so continually nurse and help the diabolical man until he heals and is once more happy and healthy.

While we think on the relative plane, we have the right to believe that as bodies we can be hurt by relative things, and equally that we can be helped by them. This idea of help, abstracted, is what we call God. The sum total of all ideas of help is God.

God is the abstract compound of all that is merciful and good and helpful; that should be the sole idea. As Atman we have no body; so to say, "I am God and poison does not hurt me," is an absurdity. While there is a body and we see it, we have not realized God. Can the little whirlpool remain after the river vanishes?

Cry for help, and you will get it; and at last you will find that the one crying for help has vanished and so also the helper, and the play is over: only the Self remain.

This once done, come back and play as you will. This body can then do no evil, because it is not until the evil forces are all burnt out that liberation comes. When that state has been attained, the dross has been burnt out, all that remains is "flame without smoke," "fire without fuel". The past momentum carries on the body; but it can only do good, because the bad was all gone before freedom came.

The dying thief on the cross reaped the effects of his past actions. He had been a Yogi and had slipped; then he had to be born again. Again he slipped and became a thief. But the past good he had done bore fruit, and he met Jesus in the moment when liberation could come, and one word made him free.

Buddha set his greatest enemy free because by hating Buddha so much, he kept constantly thinking of him. That thought purified his mind and he became ready for freedom. Therefore think of God all the time and you will be purified.

*

*

*

*

(Thus ended the inspired talks of Swami Vivekananda. The following day, blessing the Thousand Islands, he left the Thousand Island Park and returned to New York.)

THE SONG OF THE SANNYASIN*

WAKE up the note ! the song that had its birth Far off, where worldly taint could never reach ;
In mountain caves, and glades of forest deep,
Whose calm no sigh for lust or wealth or fame
Could ever dare to break ; where rolled the stream
Of knowledge, truth, and bliss that follows both.
Sing high that note, Sannyasin bold ! say,

“ Om tat sat, Om ! ”

Strike off thy fetters ! bonds that bind thee down,
Of shining gold or darker, baser ore ;
Love, hate ; good, bad ; and all the dual throng.
Know : slave is slave, caressed or whipped, not free ;
For fetters though of gold, are not less strong to bind ;
Then off with them, Sannyasin bold ! Say—

“ Om tat sat, Om ! ”

* Composed at the Thousand Island Park, New York, in July 1895.

“Om tat sat, Om !”

There is but One, The Free, The Knower—Self !
Without a name, without a form or stain.
In Him is Maya, dreaming all this dream.
The Witness, He appears as nature, soul.
Know thou art That, Sannyasin bold ! Say,

“Om tat sat, Om !”

Where seekest thou ? That freedom, friends, this world

Nor that can give. In books and temples vain Thy search. Thine only is the hand that holds
The rope that drags thee on. Then cease lament, Let go thy hold, Sannyasin bold ! Say,

“Om tat sat, Om !”

Say, "Peace to all ! From me no danger be
To aught that lives. In those that dwell on high,
In those that lowly creep, I am the Self in all.
All life both here and there, do I renounce,
All heavens and earths and hells, all hopes and fears."

Thus cut thy bonds, Sannyasin bold ! Say,

“Om tat sat, Om !”

THE SONG OF THE SANNYASIN 201

Heed then no more how body lives or goes.
 Its task is done : Let Karma float it down.
 Let one put garlands on, another kick
 This frame ; say naught. No praise or blame can be

Where praiser, praised, and blamer, blamed are one.
 Thus be thou calm, Sannyasin bold ! Say,

“ Om tat sat, Om ! ”

Truth never comes where lust and fame and greed
 Of gain reside. No man who thinks of woman
 As his wife can ever perfect be ;
 Nor he who owns the least of things, nor he Whom anger chains, can ever pass thro' Maya's gates.

So give these up, Sannyasin bold ! Say,

“ Om tat sat, Om ! ”

Have thou no home. What home can hold thee, friend ?

The sky thy roof ; the grass thy bed ; and food,
What chance may bring, well cooked or ill, judge not.

No food or drink can taint that noble Self Which knows itself. Like rolling river free Thou ever be, Sannyasin bold ! Say,

“ Om tat sat, Om ! ”

Few only know the truth. The rest will hate
And laugh at thee, great one ; but pay no heed.
Go thou, the free, from place to place, and help Them out of darkness, Maya's veil. Without The fear of pain or search for pleasure, go Beyond them both, Sannyasin bold ! Say,

“ Om tat sat, Om ! ”

Thus, day by day, till Karma's powers, spent,
Release the soul for ever. No more is birth,
Nor I, nor thou, nor God, nor man. The 'I'
Has All become, the All is 'I' and Bliss.
Know thou art That, Sannyasin bold ! Say,

“ Om tat sat, Om ! ”

INDEX

- Absolute: being the—78, 102—and God (or Isvara) 74, 139; knowledge of the—85;—and Nature 37.
 Abstraction: 65, 110, 113,
 121, 196.
 Achit: 118 See also Nature.
 Action: —in Bhakti Yoga
 92; giving up—to the Lord 176; moral—181, 183; purifying—153;—
 and reaction 109, 130; spitting out—176 See also 'Fruit', 'Karma
Yoga' and 'Work'.
 Adam: 58.
 Adhyasa: 84.
 Adrishtam (or unseen-cause) 115.
 Advaitism: 68, 76, 86, 89,
 93, 101, 111, 116, 120, 121,
 141, 170, 179, 189.
 Affections: worldly—48.
 Agni: 172.
 Agnosticism: 99, 100, 108.
 Aham Brahmasmi: 106.
 Ahriman: 39.
 Allah: 172. See also 'Islam' and 'Mohammed'.
 All-Merciful: 74, 162.
 America: 182, 193.
 Anasuya: 147.
 Angel: 43, 64, 113, 153,
 158, 181.
 Antarjyotis: 133.
 Aphorism: See 'Patanjali' and 'Sutras'.
 Apta: 135.
 Arjuna: 54, 62.
 Aryans: 94, 159.
 Asana: 140.
 Aspiration: —Spiritual 67.
 Asti: 184.
 Atheism: 90, 126, 160.
 Atman: bliss of—147,— and Brahman 91; Buddha and—66; and delusion 136;—is the fearless 79;—is free 93, 107, 155, 182;—as the goal
 99, 105;—is the essence of all hallucination 148;
 —is incorporeal 115, 196;
 —is infinite 183;—is Isvara 131;—and knowledge 99, 120, 130, 137, 147—151, —is luminous in itself 115;—its manifestation 111;—is one 122, 130, 182;—is our real nature 41, 49, 52, 61, 91, 105, 120, 122,
 130, 142, 147, 148, 149, 174, 183, 192;—is perfect 183; power of—111;

proof of—109, 111, 128, 129;—is the source of all 99, 109, 111, 122, 143, 147, 149, 151, 192;—is always the subject 84;—is unchangeable 86, 183;—is unknowable 107, 142;—and the Yogins 99. See also 'God', 'Self' and 'Soul'.

Atri: 147.

Avadhuta Gita: 147.

Avatara: See 'Incarnation of God'.

Axe: stroke of 87, 153.

Azad: 106, 137, 176, 191. See also 'Liberty'.

Baptism: 45, 145.

Bas-relief: 117.

Begging Monks: 55.

Bell-eared (or Ghanta-karna); 76.

Bhagavat Gita: authority of—123, teachings of—62, 67, 133. See also 'Arjuna' and 'Krishna'.

Bhakti: 44, 49, 71, 73, 76, 92, 122, 131, 162, 165. See also 164 'Guru Bhakti' and 'Yoga'.

Bhakti Sutras: 44.

Bible: (citations from the)—St. John (1-1.) 37, 38, 44, 152, 190; St. Luke (6-27.) 184; St. Mathew (5-8.) 195, (6-10.) 141; Gospel of St. John 37, 38, 58; man and the—173;—the New Testament 58, 111;—among the Protestants 80; utility of—42. See also 'Scriptures'.

Bliss: —and God 53;—and joy 57;—and love 49;—and self 148;—and self-poise 39;—and the soul 50;—and the Truth 61;—and the world 52. See also 'Sat-chid-ananda'.

Blow: —of the hammer 64;—of life 158, 163.

Body: —and bondage 59; death of 192, 196; God—59; identifying with—43, 82, 85, 89, 118, 144, 150, 179, 196; in the and not of the,—56; limitations of—59, 144; —and mind 128, 129, 153; —is mortal 144, 179, 181; —and Nirvana 181;— of the perfect man 44, 162, 193;—a dark room 182, superiority of the human —93, 153, 154, 157; and ultra-consciousness 43;— and universe 43, 150, 181, 196; utility of—44, 61, 88, 93, 144. See also 'Mind', 'Name and form' and 'Organs of sense'.

Bondage: 52;—and Atman 147;—and causation 195; cessation of—140;—and dream (illusion) 140;— and duty 178; effect of —114 ;—and enjoyment 88 ; to escape from—60, 154, 195 ; eternal—60 ;—to fame and money 129 ; give up—52 ;—and idealism 82 ;—and injury to others 140 ;—and knowledge 122, 147 ;—and liberty 114 ;—and love 137, 168 ;—and purity 195 ;—and work 116, 133. See also 'Liberty' and 'Slavery'.

Brahma: 115, 147.

Brahman: 98 ;—is without action 91, all is—85, 160 ;—and Atman 91, 115, 120 ;—and Brahma 105 ;—and Buddha 67 ;—and food 62 ; knowledge of—85, 90, 91, 98, 115, 121, 160 ;—and knowledge 91 ;—and Maya 68, 87, 190 ;—and mind and imagination 107 ; realisation of—86, 87, 89, 161 ;—and an-karacharya 107 ; show—105 ; we are—63, 85, 105, 182. See also 'God'.

Brahmo Samaj: 57, 169.

Brahmavidya: 98

Brahmavit: 181.

Brahmins: 68, 93, 146.

Brihadaranyaka Upanishad: 142.

Buddha:—and caste 95, 125 ;—and his enemy 197 ;—an incarnation 37 ;—and morality 96 ;—and Personal God 66 ;—a revolutionary 126 ; teachings of—66, 67 ;—and the Vedanta, 125, 182, 183 ;—and woman's rights 155. See also 'Buddha and Christ' and 'Buddhism'

Buddha and Christ: adoration of—153, 156, 172, 173 ;—and the golden rule 184 ; our ideals of—155 ;—identified with God 58 ; imperfections of—155 ; the light of—173 ;—manifestation of Mother 75, 78 ;—names of a state 78 ;—the two greatest Prophets 44, 66 ;—are but waves on the ocean 156.

Buddhism: 93, 94, 100, 101, 182. See also 'Buddha'.

Burning :—of dross 196 ;—of widows 168.

Cause :—and effect 124, 171, 194 ; first—112 ;—instrumental 112 ;—material 112 ;—unseen 115. See also 'Time Space and Causation'.

Chain : 39, 42, 117, 128, 169, 189 ;—of gold and of iron 39, 49 ;—of Guru power 45.

Chicago : 142.

Children :—of God 47 ;—of light 47.

- Chinese cooly : 77.
Chit : 118.
Chitta : 129.
 Christ : the Absolute through—38 ; birth of—58 ;—and delusion 181 ;—and the divine man 38 ;—is helpful 38, 47 ;—an incarnation 37, 38, 45 ;—and Roman Empire 191 ;—and sacrifices 146—; and the shopkeepers 165 ;—the Son of God 52 ; see the—135 ;—and the thief 197. See also 'Bible', 'Buddha' and 'Christ' and 'Christianity'.
- Christianity : 37, 38, 100, 146, 184, 190. See also 'Bible' and 'Christ'.
- Churches and Temples : 42, 126, 157.
- Confucius : 184.
- Creation :—in the Bible 37 ;—is infinite (without end) 52 ;—and love 99 ; renewal of 44 ;—and rupture of equilibrium 51 ;—by Tapas 72 ;—and the Vedas 97, 157 ;—and the will 123.
- Creed (belief or dogma) : 117, 152.
- DAKSHINESWAR : 57, 71.
Dattatreya : 147.
 David : 75.
 Death :—analysed 87, 130, 181 ;—is certain 103, 144 ;—does not exist 85, multiplicity of—180 ; physical and mental—180.
- Delusion :—and purifying action 153 ;—and Atman 122, 136 ;—of bondage 148 ;—creates delusion 136 ;—and heaven 153 ;—and ignorance 85, 86, 188 ;—and Jesus 181 ;—and Maya 136 ;—and nihilism 101 ; the world is a—41, 149, 179. See also 'Illusion' and 'Imagination'.
- Desire :—makes beggars of us 87 ; being without—55, 105, 137, 175 ;—and bondage 175, check to—45, 137 ; conquest of 137, 144 181 ; the cup of—176 ;—and the external world 163 ;—for freedom 178, 181 ; fulfilling of—88, 106 ;—for God 163 ;—and heaven 86 ;—and human love 46 ;—is a yoke 86, 138 ;—and knower of God 181 ;—and love (Bhakti) 45, 137 ;—and the Lord 176 ; renouncing of—105 106, 137, 138, 153, 177 ;—and will 108.
- Deva* : 147.
Dharana : 88. See also 'Concentration'.
Dhyana : 88, 89, 92. See also 'Meditation'.
 Dualism : see 'Dvaitam'.

Dvaitam: 76, 89, 108, 148, 170, 178.

Emancipation: 133. See also 'Liberation'.

Essence:—of bliss 149;—of Christianity 38;—of existence 149;—of hallucination 151;—of Hinduism 170;—of knowledge 94, 149;—of love 40;—and ocean 130;—of the Vedas 87.

Eucharist: 146.

Ever-free: 149, 161, 162.

Evil:—changes only in form 194; elimination of—137, 152, 162, 166, 196; fear of—41, 86, 133, 180;—and freedom 39;—and good, 67, negation of—117, utility of—51, 141, 194; worship of—72;—and why 137. See also 'Good and bad' and 'Sin'.

Evolution: see 'Reincarnation'.

Fear: 41, 75, 78, 106, 109, 176: Bhakta and—164;—of God 75.

Form: free oneself from—59; human—45, 157. See also 'Body', 'Man' and 'Name and form'.

Freedom:—and actions 91, 108, 116, 141;—and Atman 107, 114;—and body 115;—and bondage 107, 199;—and books 116;—and causation 63, 115, 194;—and complexity 108, 124, 137; criterion of—63; desire for—154, 158, 178;—and Dhyana 92;—as goal 52, 158;—and God 77, 78, 86, 91;—and good and bad 39, 52, 92;—and ignorance 91;—and illusion 86, 107, 137;—and incarnation 39;—and knowledge 117;—and love 168;—and man 52, 93, 106, 108, 115, 124, 129, 158;—and name and form 63; open air of—157; perception of—152;—and personal effort 109, 110, 191;—and self-confidence 110, 176;—and self-poise 39, 52;—and superconscious state 181;—and unaffectedness 54; value of—61;—in the Vedanta 82;—and will 109, 110;—and worship 91, 116, 122. See also 'Azad', 'Bandage', 'Free will', 'Liberation' and 'Slavery'.

Free will: 108, 109, 110, 188.

GANGES: 69, 123, 165.

Gautama: See 'Buddha

Ghantakarna: 76.

Gifts of God: 181.

Gita: see 'Avadhuta Gita' and 'Bhagavad Gita'.

 Give: 40;—to God 46, 49, 103, 141, 164;—religion 45, 102. See also 'Bhakti', 'Charity', and 'Yoga'.
 Glass beads: 53, 165.
 God:—the highest abstraction 65, 117, 196;—and anger 40, 75; barrier between soul and—103; to bargain with—164; being—61, 105, 122; being and knowing—58, 105 148; catching—in a net 49; chastisement by—104;—as one's child 164;—and his greatest children 47;—is the Chit 118;—comes to every-one 70; to creat—77, 124, 162, 189;—and the devil 67, 190; diversity of the manifestations of—53;—is everywhere 41, 66;—is the real existence 60;—and fearlessness 106; forgetting—46;—with form 124;—is free 52;—and getting all 42;—the last generalisation 113; gifts of—181;—gives 40; to give all to—49, 141, 161;—our goal 61;—of gods 156;—and helping 168, 178;—and homogeneity 60;—is 'I' 105;—does not see iniquity 75; to know—96, 105, 117, 180, 181;—essence of knowledge 94,

122;—essence of love 40; mad after—45;—is man 65, 80, 95, 156, 190;—percolating through Nature 42;—nature of—53, 138;—Personal 66 98, 113, 122, 124, 163, 189;—the philosopher's stone 45; pitying—141;—plays with the world 40, 53; power of—37; proofs of—97, 126; reasoning on—47, 96; refuge in—46, 81, 140; see, perceive, realise—86, 89, 92, 94, 98, 105, 110, 126, 133, 142, 185, 195;—is the Self 52, 65;—is the Self objectified 122;—is the soul 52, 60, 143, 144; speak of—47; surrender our actions to—46, 47, 48, 49, 92, 133; think of—47;—of truth 92;—and the universe 117; will of—88; work of—55;—is the world, not the world, is nature, has become Nature 83, 112. See also 'Absolute', 'Advaitism', 'Agni', 'All', 'Almighty', 'Allah', 'Atman', 'Without attributes', 'Being', 'Beyond', 'Creator', 'Divine actor', 'Divine', 'Dvaitam', 'Energy', 'Eternal', 'Father', 'Friend', 'God of

- Truth', 'Guru of Gurus', 'Holy One',
 'Homogeneity', 'Infinite', 'Intelligence',
 'Isvara', 'Jehovah',
 'Jivatman', 'King of kings', 'Knower',
 'Krishna', 'Life of our life', 'Light of the world', 'Living', 'Lord',
 'Supreme Lord', 'Moon of life', 'Mother',
 'Nature', 'Omniscient',
 'One only', 'Paramatman', 'Perception',
 'Perfect', 'Principle',
 'Pure', 'Purusha',
 'Reality', 'Sat-chid-ananda', 'Self', 'Siva',
 'Soul', 'Sun', 'Tat',
 'That', 'Trinity',
 'Truth', 'Ultimate',
 'Unchangeable', 'Unlimited', 'Visishtadvaitam', 'Well-beloved',
 'Witness'.
- Good :—and freedom 53 ;
 —and Truth 39, See also
 'Good and bad'.
- Good and bad : not being affected by—141 ;—are chains 39 ;—are inseparable 39, 52, 53, 193 ;
 —make us slaves 53,
- Grihasta : 71.
- Gudakesa : 62.
- Guru : 45, 91, 99, 132, 167,
 178. See also 140, 153, 188.
- Guru Bhakti : 166.
- Guru of Gurus : 168.
- Hanuman : 73
- Hassan : 104.
- Hell :—and heaven 159 ;
 seeing—144 ;—and truth 61.
- Himalayas : 189.
- Hinduism : 70, 100.
- Hindu Pantheon : 105.
- Hindus : 72, 79, 95, 96, 100, 184.
- Holy Ghost : 45.
- Holy One : 148.
- Homogeneity : 60, 124.
 See also 'Differentiation', and 'Identity'.
- Hydrostatic paradox : 76.
- Identity (or sameness) :
 51, 60, 81, 100, 111, 168.
 See also 'Differentiation' and 'Unity'.
- Ignorance : 91, 93, 103, 105,
 117, 138, 176, 178, 185,
 188.
- Illusion :—and Atman 122 ; bondage and—107 ; cup of— 188 ;—and desire 137 ;—destroys— 138 ; eternal—86 ; free from—86 ;—and helping others
 178 ;—and manifestation 86 ; nature of—118 ; origin of—100 ; reject—86, 149, 153 ;—of self and of body 118 ; being subject to—172. See also 'Delusion', 'Imagination' and 'Hallucination'.

- Image worship : 71.
- Imagination : 189. See also 'Delusion' and 'Illusion'.
- Immortality : 44, 53, 125.
- Incarnation of God :—as Christ 38 ; and Divine manifestation 37 ;—gives religion 45 ;—and the theory of oneness of God and man, 190 ;—and Ramakrishna 37, 45, 71 ;—and Sankaracharya 95 ; ten—96.
- India : 57, 66, 71, 89, 95, 100, 110, 114, 132, 146, 155, 160, 168, 183, 193.
- Individuality : 125. See also 'Identity' and 'Personality'.
- Infinite : 44, 91, 99, 109, 129, 140, 149, 183.
- Ingersoll : 154.
- Instrument : body and mind as—61, 183 ;—of God 57 ; Tapas as mental—72. See also 'Tool'.
- Islam : (Mohammedanism) 96, 100, 184, 188. See also 'Mohammed'.
- Is-ness : 123, 184.
- Isvara :—and the Absolute 139 ;—and the Atman 131 ;—and Bhakti 140 ;—and Brahman 98 ;—and Hindu Pantheon 105 ;—and Paramatman 138 ;—in Ramanuja 118. See also God 'Personal'.
- JANAKA : 190.
- Japa : 91.
- Jehovah : 146, 172, 190.
- Jesus : see 'Christ'.
- Jews : 146, 184—and righteousness 56.
- Jiva : 122, 124. See also 'Soul' and 'Atman'.
- Jivanmuktas : 58, 153, 186.
- Jivatman : 138.
- Jnana-bala-kriya : 122.
- Jnana Yoga : 68, 160, 188. See also 'Yoga'.
- Jnani : see also 'Jnana Yoga'.
- Judaism : 100, 111.
- KALI : 68, 83. See also 'God' and 'Mother'.
- Kant : 112.
- Karma : 85. See also 'Karma Yoga'.
- Karma Yoga : 54, 63, 93, 115, 118, 133, 165, 168.
- Karmi : 107.
- Katha Upanishad : 143.
- Kingdom :—of Heaven 56, 191 ;—of light 164.
- Knowledge :—absolute—47, 64, 74, 78, 82, 85, 91, 93, 94, 116—122, 130, 147, 150, 157, 167, 178 ; relative—55, 58, 60, 64, 85—93, 95, 116—120, 143, 147, 150, 157, 172 ; way of 47, 85, 93, 95, 102, 103, 116—122, 130. See also 'Jnana Yoga' and 'Reason'.
- Krishna : 37, 54, 62, 75, 122, 153, 171.

Kumbhaka : 132.

Kundalini : 74.

LAOTZE : 184.

Laying of hands : 45.

Liberation : conditions of—182, 195; desire for —178;—and Dhyana 92;
—given by Jesus and Buddha 197;—in one life
173—by work 60, 133.
See also 'Freedom'.

Life :—and death 52, 60;
—and the Divine Mother 74;—and evil 51;—and freedom 52, 61; nature of—51, 92;—of past and future 186; source of—51;—and soul 61. See also 'Existence', and
'Reincarnation'.

Life of our life : 41.

Light : children of—47;
circle of—61, 101, 172; inner—65, 133, 167; machine of—113; new—70;
—in oneself 115, 137.

Light of the world : 78

Lord :—of souls 62; supreme—162. See also
'God'.

Love :—absolute 49;—for all 133, 137; bliss of—48;—in Buddha 126 :—
never denounces 66; effect of—75, 76; extreme —44;—and freedom 164;
human—46, 162; inexpressible — 162;— and knowledge 47, 103;—as Mother 74, 99; sign of—45, 46; sorts of—46; sun of—46; supreme—45, 46, 162;—and will 103. See also 'Bhakti', 'Mother' and 'Parabhakti'.

Lunatic asylum : 45.

Luther : 159.

Madhya : 90.

Mahesvara : 147.

Maitreyi : 142.

Malabar : 114.

Malik : 104.

Manifestation :—of the Atman 86, 111;—of God
38, 78; the highest—78, infinite—87;—and Maya 37, 38, 138; of power 73;—is secondary 59; endless series of—169;
and the wave 130;—and worship 78.

Mantra : 132, 136.

Mastery :—of our brain 109;—of desire 137, 142;
—of our mind 144, 170,
177, 188;—of senses 178.

Matter :—and being 111;—
and fear 42;—and mind 42, 183, 193;—and principle 59;—and soul 83.
See also 'Body'.

Maya : breaking away from—177; and cause and effect 142, 171;—and change 150; to conquer
—140;—and delusion 136;—desert of—141; effect of—68, 128, 136, 138,

- 151, 190 ;—is the energy of the universe 87 ;—and God 124, 189 ;—and great ones 139 ;—and Jivatman 138 ;—and life and death 52 ;—and manifestation 37 ; nature of—189 ; the net of—178 ;—and Paramatman 138 ;—and time, space and causation 112 ; wall of—139 ;—and the Word 37 ;—and why of it 138. See also 'God', 'Illusion', 'Nature', 'Universe', 'World'.
- Meditation* : 88, 92, 99, 137, 145, 177. See also 'Dhyana', and 'Raja Yoga'.
- Mercy of God : 38, 47.
- Merry-go-round : 169.
- Microcosm : 76.
- Milton : 63.
- Mimamsakas* : 108.
- Mind :—and Atman 137, 150, 183 ;—is a compound 108 ; concentrated—127, conquest of—134 ;—and eternity 117 ;—and knowledge 118, 147 ;—and the letter 59 ; limiting by 49 ;—and matter 41, 42, 183, 193 ;—and Nature 150 ;—and philosophy 134 ; powers of—126, 153 ;—and senses and organs 84, 88, 144 ; super-conscious 134 ; unconscious—134. See also 'Body'
- Mira Bai* : 160.
- Missionaries : 100.
- Mohammed* : 58, 95, 190. See also 'Islam'.
- Mohammedans : See 'Islam'.
- Monism : see 'Advaitism'.
- Monotheism : 190.
- Moon :—of my life 179.
- Morality : 96, 109, 125, 134, 160, 193, 195. See also 'Good and bad'.
- Moses : 44, 111, 172, 181.
- Mother : the Divine—69, 73, 74, 78, 124, 183 ; invocation to—41, 82, 183. See also 'God', 'Kali' and 'Prakriti'.
- Mud puddle : 53.
- Mukti* : 181, 182, 193. See 'Liberty'.
- Mundaka Upanishad* : 98.
- Mythology : 111, 125, 143, 171, 172.
- Name and form : 59, 63, 74. See also 'Body'.
- Narada* : 45.
- Nature : changing 150, 161 ;—and God, 37, 42, 75, 88, 112, 161 ; mortal—144—and religion 70 ;—and Self 150. See also 'World', and 'Universe'.
- Nescience : 85, 112.
- Net : to catch God in a—49 ; Maya's—140, 150, 151, 177.
- Neti Neti* : ('not this,

INDEX

213

- not this') 107, 150, 181.
New Testament : see
 'Bible'.
Nihilism : 100.
Nirvana : 65, 182.
Nishtha : 42, 170.
Nivritti and Pravritti : 59, 193.
Ocean :—and the Absolute 74 ;—and the Mother 75 ;
 —and the true 'I'—156 ;
 —and wave 43, 130, 177, 188.
Om : 72, 88, 91, 131.
Omnipotent : 74, 83, 162.
 See also 'Power'.
Om tat sat : 83, 118, 141,
 185.
Organs of sense : see
 'Sense'.
Ormuzd : 39.
PADARTHA : 162.
Paradesa : 158.
Paramahansa : 167.
Paramatman : 138.
Parsees : 39. See 'Zoroastrianism'.
Patanjali : aphorisms of—129, 136.
Paul (St.) : 70.
Perception : degrees of—158 ;—and differentiation 118 ; and inference 138 ; —and reasoning (point of separation) 151, 177 ; sensory—134 ; superconscious—98, 134 ; superiority of—120, 126.
Personality : 58, 61, 166.
 See also 'Identity' and 'Individuality'.
Philosopher's stone : 45.
Philosophy :—of the beyond 87 ;—and books 80, 108 ;—and creation 87 ;
 goal or role of—102, 110, 111, 145, 149, 177 ; Hindu
 —89, 108, 110 ;—and love 104 ; and the mind 134 ;
 —and religion 90, 102,
 110 ;—of Sankaracharya
 83, 96, 97, 118, 125 ;—in St. John 84, the three stages of—110 ;—and the Vedas 157 ;—of Vyasa
 89.
Play :—of children 50, 81 ;
 —of God 40, 49, 53 ;—of life 110, 196.
Pleasure :—and good and bad 52 ;—of the mind 50 ;—and pain 52 ;—of the Self 50 ;—of the senses 50, 61 ;—is a serpent 56 ;—in the world 51.
Power :—and God 74, 97 ;
 —is one only 67 ; word of—57 ;—of thought 129.
 See also 'Omnipotent' and 'Sakti'.
Prakriti : 68, 121, 137. See also 'Mother'.
Pramantha : 88.
Pranas : 121.
Pravritti and Nivritti : 59,
 189.

Proofs of God : 96, 126, 139.

Prophets : 45, 59, 70, 80, 111, 152, 157, 167, 184.

See also 'Incarnation of God'.

Protestants : 80.

Puraka : 132.

Puranas : 90.

Purification : 106, 145, 148, 193. See also 'Purity'.

Purity : 44, 57, 58, 65, 133, 148, 195. See also 'Sin'.

Purusha : 121, 137.

QUALIFIED MONISM :
see 'Visishtadvaita'.

RABBIA : 104.

'Rajas'. see 'Tamas, Rajas, Sattva'.

Raja Yoga : 93, 129, 136, 139, 142. See also 'Patanjali', and 'Yoga'.

Ramakrishna : biography of—67, 71, 74, 124, 166 ;—and the glass cask 65 ;—incarnation of God 38, 45, 71 ;—and Keshab Chandra Sen 57 ; teachings of—53, 59, 70, 95.

Ramanuja : 90, 91, 94, 118, 121.

Realism (materialism) : 65, 82, 193.

Reason :—and Buddha 125 ; vicious circle of—138 ;—and inspiration 95, 177 ;—and intuition 93 ; limits of—125, 177 ;—and religion 101, 126 ;—and Schopenhauer 113.

Rechaka : 132.

Reincarnation : 169, 170, 196.

Religion :—and bliss of soul 49 ;—and books 80 ; commercial — 164 ;—and fear 75 ;—among the Hindus 79 ;—and human knowledge 195 ; last—70 ; the one—59, 64, 70 ;—and perception 126, 152 ;—and realisation 184 ;—and reason 110, 127 ; role of — 42, 102, 116 ;—point of separation 74, 102, 125, 177, 195 ; scientific—70, 110, 111, 135 ;—and superstition 90.

Renunciation : 47, 106, 159, 164, 165, 174, 175, 19

Resurrection : 189.

Revelation :—is eternal 79.

Rites and ceremonies :—among Brahmins 93 ;—among the Christians 146 ; among the Moham-medans, 96 ;—in religion 110, 127, 192 ;—according to Sankaracharya 97 ; value of—91, 97 ;—and the Vedas 85, 98.

Rope and the serpent : see 'Serpent'.

Roy (Raja Ram Mohan Roy) : 169.

Rupa : 74. See also 'Name and form'.

SACRIFICE :—and ceremonies 91, 96, 97, 115, 133 ;—of oneself 174, 191.

Sacrilege : 164

Saivas : 77.

Saktas : 72.

Sakti : 37, 73, 83. See also 'Mother', 'Maya'.

Samadhi : 82, 124, 127, 137, 171. See also 'Inspiration' and 'Intuition'.

Sameness : 63.

Samsara : 83.

Sanaka, Sanandana, Sanatana, Sanatkumara : 59.

Sanctification : 79.

Sankaracharya : 83, 94, 95, 105, 113, 115, 118, 122, 125, 163.

Sankhya : 121.

Sannyasin : 46, 69, 97, 141, 174, 179.

Sat : 123. See also 'Truth'.

Sattva, Sattivika : see 'Tamas, Rajas, Sattva'.

Sat-chid-ananda (or Existence-Knowledge-Bliss) : 64, 147, 148, 150, 182.

Satyakama : 156.

Sava : 68.

Schopenhauer : 113.

Science : 85, 98, 111, 133, 195.

Scriptures : authority of—96, 97 ;—are eternal 46, 80, 173 ; origin of—48 ;—and personal history 90 ; utility and limits of—42, 46, 80, 152, 167, 173 ; worship of—80.

See also 'Bible' and 'Vedas'.

Self : apparent—and mental—161 ; our basis of—50, 161—and the body 118, 148 ; he whom the—chooses 107, 114 ;—eternal and unchangeable 144, 181, 182 ; the ego and the—77, 81, 147, 176, 182 ;—and God 52, 65, 122, 168 ; the great—55 ;—and hatred 81 ; knowledge of—65, 79, 85, 121, 180 ;—and love 142 ; live in the—51, 178 ;—and the mind 128, 148 ;—and nescience 85 ;—is one 184 ;—and prayer 172 ; pleasure of—50 ; power of—88, 176 ;—and purity 143 ;—and religion 131 ;—in Samadhi 124 ;—as the teacher 145, 156 ;—and the universe 63, 178, 196 ; variations of—63 ;—and the Vedas 85, 87 ; worship of—122, 142, 180 ; we are—64 ;—and work 133.

Sen (Keshab Chandra) 57.

Serpent : rope and the—85, 119 ;—and enjoyment 56.

Siva : Brahman is not—90 ;—and Sankaracharya 95 ;—one of Hindu Trinity 105 ;—is Visnu 77 ; we are—82.

Sin : atonement for—38, 146; elimination of—45; expiation of—81;—and ignorance 93, 105;—and multiplicity 196; negation of—57;—and reincarnation 196; seeing—outside 134, 152;—and weakness 117. See also 'Evil' and 'Purity'.

Sishya : 132.

Slavery : —to books and prophets 167; escape —51;—and hatred 81, 121, 180;—and love 142; from—53;—and free will 188; and ignorance 195; unreality of—147, 149. See also 'Chain'.

Soham : 92, 106, 173, 178.

Soul : all the 126;—and Buddha 67;—has no caste 86;—is free 53; —is God 61;—God and man 153;—God and Nature 75;—and matter 83; moving 122; nature of the—49, 83; one—60, 61;—of our souls 168, 183; progress of the—49, 169; series of—169;—of the universe 78;—unchangeable 61. See also 'Atman', 'Jiva' and 'Purusha'.

St. John : see 'Bible'.

St. Paul : 70, 141.

St. Thomas, the Apostle : 100.

Sufis : 79, 95

Superconsciousness : 43, 89, 100, 101, 102, 118, 134, 181.

Superstition :—of body 146;—and devil 139;—of differentiation 149;—of heaven 86;—of myths 143;—and reason 128; r e j e c t—147, 176;—of relativity 147;—and religion 90, 183, 195;—and tradition 185.

Sushumna : 98.

Sutras : 44, 83, 89.

Sevtaketu : 135.

Svastha : 161.

Tamas. see 'Tamas, etc.'

Tamas, Rajas, Sattva : 51, 52, 87, 93, 105, 122, 161, 181.

Taoists : 184.

Tapas : 72, 88.

Tat-Tvam-Asi : see 'That'.

Teachers of all teachers : 162.

That : thou art—105, 106, 174.

Thing-in-itself : 150.

Thought : constant—91; —and day and night 165; effect of—54, 64, 90; externalised—58, 158;—of God 47; good and bad—64; nature of —65. See also 'Meditation', 'Mind'.

Tiger-god : 53.

Time, space, causation : 74, 112, 149.

Trinitarian : 38.

Trinity :—Brahma, Vishnu and Siva 105 ;—of God, soul and Nature 76, 118, 161, 163 ;—and idea of Jehovah 190—of knower, known and knowledge 88, 93, 148 ;—of power, freedom and unity 62, 64.

Truth :—and Brahman 97 ;—and Buddha 126 ; God of—92 ; God is—118 ;—and doing good 192 ; impartiality of—128 ;—and injuring others 140 ; new—185 ; proclamation of—87, 92, 157 ; relative—122 ; religious—46 ; search after—61 82, 98, 128 ; shadow of—50 ; simple—15 ;—and superimposition 87 ;—uncompromising 143, 157, 192 ;—and the Vedas 105. See also ' Sat'.

Universe : to create and destroy the 107 ; God and the—117, 139 ;—and hypnotism 105 ;—internal and external 50 ;—and motion 89, 189 ;—has two phases 83 ;—and body 43 ;—and we 64. See also ' Nature' and ' World'.

Unpanishad : 90, 98, 142, 143, 145. See also ' Bhagavad Gita', ' Scrip- tures', ' Books' and ' Vedas'.

VAIRAGYAM : 106, 175.

Vaishnavas : 76.

Vedanta Sutras : 83, 89.

Vedas : belief in the—97, —and Buddha 125 ; God and the—96, 105, 157 ; essence of—85, 87 ;—and idols 66 ; ocean of milk of—90 ;—and philosophy 90 ; proof of—97 ;—and realisation 87, 105, 143 ; revelation of—97 ;—and Sankaracharya 113 ;—and Schopenhauer 113 ; study of the—91, 111, 143 ; sub-divisions of—98 ;—truths taught by 86, 91, 97, 121 ; the truths are—46 ;—and the universe 107, 157 ; universality of—96. See also ' Bible', and ' Scriptures'.

Vidya 93.

Vishnu : 71, 77, 90, 105, 147.

Visishtadvaita (qualified monism or monodualism) : 90, 120.

Visistam : see ' Differentiation'.

Vritti : see ' Chitta'.

Vyasa : 83, 89, 90, 105.

Wave : abandon the—188 ; Christs and Buddhas are—156 ;—and depression 73— of regeneration 67. See also 'Ocean'.

Will :—and Atman 155 ;—and concentration of mind 127 :—and creation 123 ;—and freedom 108, 109, 145, 188 ; of God 88 ;—and inspiration 177 ; and responsibility 188 ; strengthening the—145 ; Thy—be done 141.

Work : —without attachment 63, 133 ; —and duty 109 ; the highest 103 ; —and liberation 60, 133, 141 ; and love 46 ; necessity of—47 ; result of—47, 63, 91, 92, 98, 116, 130, 151 ;—without selfishness 178 ;—without thought of self 54 ; true—54 ; value of—60 ;—and the Vedas 116. See also 'Action', 'Duty', 'Karma Yoga' and 'Fruits'.

World : abandon the—56, 80, 132, 142, 144, 191 ;—and the Absolute 80 ;—and consciousness 94, 124 and egotism 55 ;—is eternal 121, 191 ;—and God 61, 112, 124, 190 ; do good to the—57, 78 ; —world and man 81 ; in the—and not of the —62, 132 ; our—80 :—a picture 53 ;—and Pra-kriti 121 ; proofs of—108 ;—and sin 57 ;—and soul 83 ;—and will 123. See also 'Creation', 'Microcosm', 'Nature', 'Universe'.

YAJNAVALKYA : 142.

Yankee : 77.

Yogas : 127, 139, 145, 148. See also 'Bhakti', 'Jnana Yoga', 'Karma Yoga' and 'Raja Yoga'.

Yogic exercises : 132, 136, 139.

Yogi : 88, 117, 129, 133, 136, 139, 144, 197.

ZOROASTRIANISM : 39, 100, 184, 190.

